

YANKEES GIVE ENEMY DOUBLE DOSE FOR LUCK

Americans Take Nothing For Granted When Hun Starts Anything

With the American Army in France, May 14.—A big enemy ammunition dump at Cantigny was fired by the American artillery yesterday morning. At the same time two fires were started in Montdidier, followed by numerous explosions.

The weather continues misty and rainy. There was no infantry action yesterday and only intermittent machine gun and rifle fire. The position of the Germans is becoming more and more intolerable, while the Americans are entrenching their positions more firmly. Any hopes the enemy might have had of breaking through in this sector are diminishing.

The Americans take nothing for granted, but return the enemy fire two to one, which is believed to set a new pace in this sector. What appears to trouble the Germans most is that the Americans never turn back when the enemy uses gas. They give him a double dose of the same, with everything else the enemy tries.

Alarm Clock Disturbs Fire. How an American alarm clock kept the whole German line guessing and caused the Germans useless expenditure of large quantities of machine gun and rifle ammunition all one night was related yesterday.

The Americans had been trying for some time to draw the fire of certain enemy units.

“Leave Fritz to me,” said a happy-faced young American, who, putting an alarm clock under his arm, disappeared into No Man’s Land under cover of darkness and fastened the clock to a wire.

Soon the alarm rang, hereupon the Germans opened fire. The wire had been so arranged that the clock continued to ring intermittently, and each time drew a violent fire from the enemy. Meanwhile the Americans rested in their trenches and enjoyed a hearty laugh.

An American officer turned the tables nicely on the enemy recently. The Germans had retired during a bombardment to concrete dugouts behind their trenches, leaving the first three lines to one man, who went around setting off fares so as to create the impression that the whole front was alive with Germans.

Street Signs Brought Back. An American patrol leader went over and discovered the ruse. He killed the one German, invaded the trenches and gathered dozens of street signs which the Germans had posted, returning to his own lines with the signs tucked under his arm.

Children Brave Heavy Storm For Patriotic Parade

Children who participated in Harrisburg's record-breaking parade yesterday afternoon appeared in school this morning none the worse for their drenching and listened to praises from teachers for the way they acquitted themselves in the demonstration.

PARADERS RETURN TO DESKS FINE AND FIT

None the Worse For Their Drenching, Pupils Who Braved Storm Hear Praise of Their Loyalty and Patriotism

The three or four thousand school children who participated in Harrisburg's record-breaking parade yesterday afternoon appeared in school this morning none the worse for their drenching and listened to praises from teachers for the way they acquitted themselves in the demonstration.

These teachers in turn have received the thanks of the chief marshal of the parade and his aids for their efforts in making the parade the success it was. It was through the tireless efforts of the parade marshals that the parade was so promptly in place and the pageant enabled to move promptly at the appointed time.

In spite of the downpour which drenched the paraders and threatened to call off the parade completely, the general committee in charge of the War Savings Stamp drive stated unequivocally this morning that the parade worked wonders in boosting the sales of War Savings Stamps and stimulating interest in the great campaign now being waged.

It is safe to say there was not a parent along Harrisburg's rainsoaked streets yesterday who will not respond to the silent appeal of the hundreds of marching children by doing his utmost in the purchase of War Savings Stamps.

Try to Pick Winners. Spectators this morning were trying to pick out the winners in the great parade. And every school has its band of eager patrons who refuse to believe any other school surpassed it. Those who had no children or friends in the long line of marchers agreed that every school showed up 100 per cent. patriotic and 100 per cent. perfect.

From the squad of eight stalwart bluecoats who led the parade to the bunch of Tech Freshmen who closed up the rear guard, the organization worked its way through the demonstration throughout. The three squads of letter carriers in their light blue uniforms, surprised every one by their fine appearance as marchers. These men have a reputation for themselves as War Stamp sellers and they received a lot of applause.

Following them were borne large banners of the Allies. These colors made a great hit along the line. The Girl Scouts under Miss Julia Stamm, in their natty uniforms had a host of admirers and spectators. They made still more by their fine appearance and perfect marching. These girls stuck it through the rain, and ended up at the square with the bands and joined in the community singing. The entire turnout of bands massed and played at the Square to large crowds of people.

The next division was led off by a fine-looking school, the MacLay, marching behind a huge school banner. Following them marched the children from the Cameron school, dressed in white and led by a banner with "Simon Cameron School" emblazoned on it in large letters. This was one of the largest schools in line. Boy Scouts carried a banner with the words, "Cameron has $13,300 in Liberty Bonds. How much have you?"

The pupils of the Steele school aroused much favorable comment, marching in the form of a square and carrying a large American flag in the center. This school had a good motto, "you come across he can go across," which it displayed on a banner.

In the next division the pupils of the Forney school, looking neat and bright in white dresses and waists, were led by a large blue and yellow banner bearing the name of the school. The Lincoln school, led by a blue and red banner, looked fine in white with W. S. S. caps. Woodward, led by a gray and yellow banner, looked neat and attractive with the girls dressed in white.

Hamilton Attracts Attention. The most practical and one of the best-received units was the Hamilton. Leading the school was a black and yellow banner with the name of the school. All the boys were dressed as farmers, wearing overalls and straw hats. The girls were dressed in white and carried pans and the banner "We Save." This contingent received continuous applause. The Realty school, following, kept up the good work with its neat appearance, dressed in white and wearing Red Cross caps. The Tech paraders probably were the worst treated at the hands of the weatherman. They waited through the drenching downpour until their turn came to take their position in the line of march, and it was just after their start that the downpour became almost too great for endurance. This large school marched to Fourth and Walnut, thereby showing the spectators in Market street what a fine appearance they could make, then they dropped out of line.

Drilled last week by officers for the Harrisburg recruiting party, these young men were the finest marching body in line, it was freely conceded. Each class was led by a banner, "One Hundred Per Cent. Perfect," and each marcher carried a stick with a War Savings Stamp card, well plastered with stamps, and a small American flag at the end of it. It was one of the best and one of the hardest working, and it elicited much applause the short while it was in line.

Americans Will Remain on Fighting Lines; Plan For Yankees Unchanged

London, May 14.—The Associated Press was officially informed last night that the statement sent out from Ottawa Sunday night attributing to the war committee of the British cabinet the statement that it had been decided not to use the American army on the western front until it became a complete and powerful force, was due to an error, which has now been corrected.

Washington, May 14.—American troops, brigaded with French and British battalions, not only are bearing their share of the allied burden in the stand against the German armies in front of Amiens, but will continue to fight as integral parts of the two great allied armies as long as the menace of the Hindenburg offensive continues. Absolutely nothing has happened, it is officially stated here, to change the arrangements made by General Pershing and General Poch some six weeks ago, whereby America agreed to throw her manpower immediately into the struggle along the western front, even though this decision robbed many of the higher American officers of their immediate commands.
