MAJOR LUFBERY, NOTED FLYER, IS KILLED IN AIR

With the American Army in France, May 19.—Major Raoul Lufbery, one of the most famous of the American flying corps, has been killed in an aerial battle. He will be buried to-morrow with full millitary honors in which both American and French troops will participate. The German machine which brought Lufbery down, which was armed with two machine guns with an operator for each piece, apparently escaped. Lufbery's only wound, aside from those received when he dashed to earth, was a bullethole through the thumb. Apparently the same bullet punctured one of the gasoline tanks of his machine.

Harrisburg Misses Honor of Having Ship Named For It by Coincidence

Replying to a suggestion of the Telegraph that one of the new ships of Uncle Sam be named in honor of Harrisburg, Daniel H. Cox, manager of the Division of Steel Ship Construction of the Emergency Fleet Corporation writes as follows:

"You may be interested to learn that we already had under consideration the naming of one of the Emergency Fleet vessels Harrisburg, but found that there are now two vessels registered in Lloyds operating under this name. You will no doubt appreciate the confusion liable to occur where more than two ships are operating under one name, and if such a ship were unfortunate enough to meet with disaster, the report of such would be hable to cause undue concern, where in reality it would not be warranted.
"Your suggestion has been referred to the committee which decides upon such matters for consideration."

eration."

It will probably be news to many people of this city that already two vessels are operating under the name of Harrisburg. The plants of this city are having much to do with the fitting out of the new fleet in one way or another and this fact manifestly was in the minds of the Shipping Board which had already under consideration the naming of one of the vessels for Harrisburg.

Indications are that the Germans may extend the fighting front further south and east along the Aisne into the Champagne, It is thought they may strike south of Loan in an effort to gain the attention of General Foch and his reserve army, while their real effort is made further north in an attempt to separate the British and French armies.

Meanwhile, British raiding activity grows livelier. In a successful operation between the Ancre and Somme rivers, east of Amiens, Australian troops have occupied Ville-sur-Ancre and captured 360 prisoners. On the same front between the Somme and Arras, the British have carried out minor roads northwest of Albert and near Hamel. Artillery and aerial work continues at high pitch. In addition to dropping many tons of bombs on important railway stations, airdromes and billets, British aviators Saturday destroyed 21 German machines and disabled two others.

There is increased local fighting on the Italian front, especially in the mountains in the western Trentino. Austro-Hungarian troops have attempted attacks in the Mantello and Adamello region, but were driven by back by the Italians. In the Gludicaria Valley, in the same zone, the Italian scaptured prisoners in breaking up an enemy outpost.
