

Major General Liggett, Pennsylvanian, Heads Field Army of 200,000

An ancient, seagull tub named the Immanuense was rolling and staggering amid gigantic waves in mid-Pacific. Great combers were smashing down on her decks, their impact causing the ship to shiver and shake as though with the ague.

Near the Immanuense steamed the City of Peking, carrying the First and Second Battalions of the regiment, all on their way to the Philippines to restore order there.

Born in Reading, this state, in 1857, says the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, Major General Liggett, this is a wrong construction to place upon his program in a military sense for it was hard work, application and natural ability which earned for him merited promotion.

After his graduation from West Point in 1879, Liggett saw service on what was then the frontier of American "civilization." Made a captain in 1887, he fought through the Spanish War, and when that disturbance was ended he was sent to Zamboanga, in the Philippines, where he formed a lasting friendship with Black Jack Pershing.

Liggett advanced rapidly after that. He was made lieutenant-colonel and colonel, and then he went back to school in 1909, when he became a student in the great War College in Washington.

When Huerta was dispossessed, Liggett went to San Francisco to take command of the Western Department, to relieve Major-General Siebert, whom by a trick of fate he again relieved in France.

Personally, Liggett is the typical fighter, with a thoroughly-trained mind, well versed in the intricacies of modern warfare and blessed with lightning-like judgment, which seldom errs. He is gentle and kind to his men, yet commands their respect. Unknown to the public, those who have been his companions in the field leave him with a respect and confidence—and the grim, bulldog fighting qualities for which he is noted.

That the mobile army under him will give a good account of itself is certain, for Major-General Liggett is a born soldier and leader of men.

Rheumatism and General Run Down System of Long Standing Conquered by Tonnal

"I was a miserable soul," says John Bomberger, of Reistville, Lebanon county, Pa. "My whole system was run down so much and I had rheumatism so badly at times that I could not walk without the use of a cane and my judgment was so swollen that I could not lace up my shoes, especially after a cold spell of weather."

"I was given a sample bottle of Tonnal and it done me so much good that I at once bought a bottle and I am to-day in better health than I have been for years and I have not had a spell of rheumatism since I commenced taking Tonnal. I now eat anything my appetite desires and food certainly is nourishing me now as I am stronger than I have been for years."

Tonnal is sold at Gorkas' Drug Store, Harrisburg, where its merits are being explained by the Tonnal chemist, and a sample bottle given away free this week, and also at the Hershey Drug Store, Hershey, Pa.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Discoverer Tells Drugists Not to Make a Cent of Allenhu's Money Unless Allenhu Completed His Battles All Rheumatic Pains and Twinges.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally discovered Allenhu's medicine, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally composed a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery to others who took it, with what might be called marvellous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers.

Geo. A. Gorkas has been appointed agent for Allenhu in this vicinity and the undersigned, that he will freely return the purchase money to all who state they received no benefit.

FLYING WITH SHAFFER

"LIVING FAST"

LETTERS FROM A DAUPHIN BOY TO HIS MOTHER

Somewhere in France, April 6, 1918. Dear Mother—To-day my old friend Stickney landed here on his way to Plessis-Belleville. You remember, he was in the same school in Brooklyn where I got bamboozled out of 300 iron men. He files a Spad, and not having seen him for so long, I sure was glad he dropped in—he literally did that, you know.

—In fact, we were so glad to see him that we invited him to a dinner of carrots and steak. Naturally, when aviators get together tales both amusing and interesting are swapped, and the meeting was no exception.

For himself he has not had many experiences, but he told me an amusing one about my roommate at Plessis—that one I shared the fruitcake with, you know. Not knowing this boy personally, you may miss the comic side, for he has a drawing, dry voice, and as an amusing yarn-spinner has no equal. His name is Jacobs, and the other participant was Cook. Here is the way Stickney told it: The country round about this escadrille is all lowland, with nary a hill, and therefore one can fly when the clouds are very low, but, unfortunately, as it proved, the escadrille's headquarters were situated in the foothills of the Vosges.

You may wonder how that mattered, and I'll tell you. When the clouds hung low they could not get out for fear of running into the hills when in the clouds. It was just such a day of low-hanging clouds—about fifty meters high—and a Boche attack being on, messages were coming every few minutes from the trenches asking for airplane protection as the Boche planes were shooting up the French trenches so that nary a Polu would stretch his head out of an "abri." Pilots were sent out immediately, but they came down soon after, saying that they could not get past the hills on account of the low clouds.

Finally, these two Americans, Jacobs and Cook, said they would get there, so Cook, having no map, Jacobs said he would lead, as he had a map. And so they started, making a wide detour to get around the hills and then over the lines into Germany. Remember, the clouds were still very low, and they were sailing along about fifty meters above the ground, and strange, to say, they had flown fourteen kilometers into Boche territory before any aircraft shots fired at them. And they had not seen a Boche anywhere up to that time. I say up to that time, for just then everything opened upon them—infantry, machine gun, cannon, bombs, shrapnel and whatnot. It seemed that any Boche not busy just then took a crack at them with some sort of firearm.

Not only were things popping below, but at the same time a Boche plane dropped out of a cloud right over them and fired his little mite, what with the flying pan and the fire! Cook frankly admitted it got too hot for him, and map or no map he went up into the clouds, where he naturally was lost as soon as he came out, but fortunately was headed for France when he did come out, and landed back of the lines some forty miles from his escadrille. Jacobs, however, flew on this forest method. He went up into the clouds, too, but not far—just

MILITARY INSTRUCTIONS IN HARRISBURG PUBLIC SCHOOLS MAY FOLLOW PHILADELPHIA

Military instruction in the public schools of Harrisburg is bound to come. It should have come long ago in the opinion of all who recognize the value of such training. A movement is now on foot to establish military exercises in the Philadelphia schools. A dispatch from that city says the Federal government is prepared to co-operate with schools instituting such training under the act of June 3, 1916, detailed in general order 48, War Department, 1916. To a minimum of 100 uniformed cadets, if certain necessary conditions are met by the Board of Education, the government will provide for each uniformed cadet: One rifle complete, one cartridge belt, gun sling, bayonet, scabbard, haversack, mess kit, knife, fork, spoon, canteen, cup and meat tin.

Boche came over last night, and dropped some bombs, but none have dropped near here yet. Am becoming used to the racket now since it happens so regularly, and none drop near anyway.

London, May 30.—Before returning to London from Scotland, Premier Lloyd George said in a statement to the Glasgow Herald: "Scotland is as firm as her mountains. If there is any change between last year and this year, it is and even deeper note of reserve, of absolute unity and quiet determination, and the subordination of everything to the prosecution of the war."

"The people of Scotland have their minds fixed upon defeating the terrible menace threatening the world. They decline to consider anything but the doing of their duty, and they are absolutely right."

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT Products That Stand Supreme

Milk Not High in Comparison to Other Foods; Has Great Values

There is a good deal of agitation nowadays in the mind of the average business man as to how he is going to make both ends meet here in little old Harrisburg. It seems as if everything under the sun has suddenly shown a disposition to imitate a Zeppelin, and go away up in the air, as far as price is concerned. Of course, there are some foods which have not altered much in value, but as a rule those are the foods of which the average man gets out of fear of running into the hills when in the clouds. It was just such a day of low-hanging clouds—about fifty meters high—and a Boche attack being on, messages were coming every few minutes from the trenches asking for air-

Quality and Reliability in Uptown Grocery Store

"The only argument we have for this store is quality and reliability. If the buyer is set solely upon cheapness in price irrespective of quality," said B. B. Drum, the uptown grocer. "Merchandise must have integrity, and so must the merchant when he speaks of the goods and articles that he has to offer. People prefer to buy at the store where they get quick service, courteous treatment, delivery of goods, telephone service, credit, accurate and firmness of goods, what they ask for and not a substitute, and a hundred and one little attentions that go to make life worth living."

War-Time Pieces Popular With the Music Lovers

Since the advent of the United States into the world war, there has been a new interest in pieces put on the market about Sammie at home and abroad. These pieces, like those of Civil War days, are fast instilling themselves into the hearts of all Americans. There is nothing so thrilling or quite so quieting as a good old war piece when sung around the hearthstone on an evening. Music brings back sweet memories of other days and instills patriotism. A good many families have a brother or a son at the front fighting for his country, and what is nicer than to bring back memories of him through song?

Flowers Help Make Sick Room Cheerful

Many a time while visiting in sick-rooms where possibly some kind heart has thought of the wonderful cheering value of flowers, you will notice the vast difference they make from rooms where there are no flowers. A bunch of flowers sent to a friend during a sickness not only helps to cheer them up but also speaks volumes in showing the recipient that your thoughts are with him. Such a gift is not at all expensive and yet answers the purpose of a much more costly one and probably does much more good.
