Street Procession Precedes Big Religious Service on Sylvan Heights Lawn

With the tabufation of official re-turns for the primary election the list of cit and county Republican commit-teren who were elected and will evaluable. In other deteriots there was much local interest in the re-sults because of the number of can-didates in the field. The contests were largely in the city for precinet committeemen elections. In the county districts a large num-elected. In a few instances there were contests but most of these were conditient by a large majority for the committeemen were elected and one member to the county committee. In each city district one member was cleeted to the county committee. The complete results as filed at the office of the County Commissioners follow: City Committeemen thousand Catholic church Four men and laymen of Harrisburg and vicinity united in the celebration of Corpus Christi Day yesterday, with a huge procession through the principal streets of Harrisburg.

Almost 1,500 persons were in line in the procession. Children, as well men and women, marched and ook part in the ceremonial session which followed on the Sylvan eights lawn. The procession form ed in front of Cathedral Hall, in North street, and moved at 3.30. The route was from North street to Sec-

Good Merchandise

It Pays to Buy and Sell

One of the greatest services we can render is to exclude inferior qualities from our assortments, thereby assuring you of full value for your money. Goods made to sell at too low a price do not justify the amount you pay for them when they're put to the test of service.

We, in buying, have been in closest touch with all market tendencies and know that in many kinds of merchandise, quality has been sacrificed to make a low price. It is this sort of merchandise that we invariably try to exclude from our stocks.

That our policy of buying the reliable grades of mer-chandise has been fully justified and appreciated by those who want the best and most for their money, is evidenced by the prosperous growth of this establishment.

What pleasant day or evening could be spent in a better way than canoeing on the Susquehanna whether it be in the day time with beautiful sunshine or at night in bright moonlight.

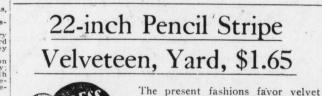

The Carleton is made in Old Town, Maine, the home of good canoe making. The models are a reproduction from a birch canoe belonging to the Penobscot or Tarratine tribe of Indians. It has been on the market for more than 30 years. These canoes have been in use all of these years by canoe users, in general-including professional guides and Indians themselves have made us firm in the belief that the Carleton
