

MINE WISAPKS WELL HELD DOWN

Chief Button Says That in Spite of Abnormal Condi- tions Statistics Are Fair

During the first five months of 1918 there were 368 fatal accidents inside of the coal mines of Pennsylvania and 71 outside as compared with 379 inside and 52 outside, in the same period of 1917, according to figures compiled by Seward F. Button, state chief of mines.

Chief Button says that this is a good showing. "That there should be a decrease in the number of fatalities inside the mines under the present conditions when every effort is being made to push production to the utmost, with the inevitable disregard of some of the rules of safety, is convincing evidence that the mining operations of Pennsylvania, notwithstanding their magnitude are carried on with a remarkable degree of efficiency and with unusual care for the welfare and safety of the employees," said he. "The dangers that are always present in the mining of coal have been augmented to a considerable extent by the employment of inexperienced men as a result of the drafting of many of the more competent miners."

The chief says that the increases in outside accidents was due probably to inexperience of workmen who operate the cars or are engaged in such work as brings them close to the cars and in order to overcome these dangers he has given instructions to inspectors and officials throughout both the anthracite and bituminous regions to give special attention to this phase of work until conditions are normal.

Children Use Telephone to Ask Time Before School

While the number of telephone calls asking the operator for the time of day was considerably lessened following the request of the Bell Company recently that this practice be discontinued, it is found from records that there were still quite a few such calls coming in. It was also found that these calls were, for the most part, made between 8 a. m. and 9 a. m. and between 1 p. m. and 1:30 p. m.

Upon investigation it was found that children were responsible for what few requests there were for the time of day.

The theory was advanced by one telephoner that the public, seeing the request of the company and realizing its importance, refrained from asking the operator for the time of day, but neglected to tell their children about it and, as a result, the youngsters were about the only ones to use the telephone for such requests, and they did their asking just before the school hours, when everybody at home was too busy to answer the question, or the children could not tell the time from the clock, or, it was pointed out, possibly the youngsters found that a good way to imitate their elders in using the telephone.

"It is very gratifying," said Local Manager Fetter, "to know that the public realizes what a help the discontinuance of this practice will be. It takes an operator just as long to answer a question as to the time of day as it does to complete an ordinary connection, and it is this time only—and not the expense—that we wish to save and put to the more important uses of the war program. If this need can be explained to the children, I am sure that within a few days we will find that a great amount of time and equipment will be saved, for the children are as quick to help as are the adults."

Y. M. C. A. CAMP FOR

Plans for a boys' camp under the auspices of the Central Y. M. C. A. will be made public in a few days, association officials said to-day when they learned that the camp, at the State Y. M. C. A. camp, has been indefinitely postponed. A number of Harrisburg boys are listed as applicants for admission to the camp, and efforts will be made to have more boys attend the local camp.

E. B. CAMPAIGN IS SUCCESSFUL

With the campaign to raise $250,000 for the endowment fund of Lebanon Valley College closing this evening, Aaron S. Kreider, of Annville, general chairman of the committee, believes the United Brethren Church of Eastern Pennsylvania and Maryland will succeed in raising the designated amount. The Wednesday evening a total of $192,988 had been raised. Distributed by zones, these amounts were raised:

ARTILLERY PASSES THROUGH

Three batteries of artillerymen disembarked from their train at the Harrisburg station yesterday and saw what they could of Harrisburg in half an hour.
