

NATION BONE DRY AFTER JAN. 1, '19, DANIELS ASSERTS

Believes Congress Will Pass Prohibition Amendment; No Fear of German Subs

Atlantic City, July 12.—In an interview here Secretary of the Navy Daniels made some interesting statements regarding prohibition and the war situation.

Mr. Daniels expressed the opinion that the nation would be "bone dry" after January 1, 1919. The Secretary, whose general order No. 29, made the navy dry four and a half years ago, said he believed Congress would pass the prohibition amendment, whose supporters won a 68 to 33 victory in the Senate. The ballot was on a test vote.

"There is no cause for alarm along the Atlantic coast," he asserted, in discussing the U-boat menace.

"As long as there is a submarine in the ocean there will be danger," he explained, "and one can always look for the sinking of a ship or two. But the German submarine policy along our coasts was to instill fear. The first day a submarine was sighted off the Atlantic coast, the biggest convoy wanted to start at once and it got through safely.

"If there had been a delay of a day or more, the German purpose would have been accomplished.

"When we entered the war Germany said we couldn't train the necessary men. We trained and are training them. Then Germany said we couldn't supply ships enough. We supplied them. Then their cry was we couldn't get the ships across. They went over.

"The next claim was that our men would be slaughtered when they met Russian veterans. We wait and see.

The Secretary smiled broadly as he recalled the brilliant record of the marines and other American fighting men at the front.
