

Farms Are Planned For U. S. Soldiers

Pittsburgh—For $2,000,000 Uncle Sam can give a home to every soldier returning from France, whether it be the 1,000,000 now there or the

2,500,000 who will be there next spring. Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane told the members of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce at their noonday luncheon here. Secretary Lane states there are at present 250,000,000 acres of uncultivated land in the United States; that there are 15,000,000 acres of swamp land and as many acres of desert soil and stump land left in the Northwest by the lumbermen. "Why not rehabilitate this land for the soldiers?" asked the secretary. "We can meet them at any point on the Atlantic Coast upon their return from France and say 'Help build a great dam to irrigate the arid desert soil, or help cultivate the land devastated by the lumbermen and build a home. The United States will support you while doing it and give you 40 years to pay back your debt." The Secretary of the Interior, pleaded for the Americanization of foreign workmen as one means of preventing labor disorders after the war. Teaching them the English language will enable them to read the papers, books and the signs about the shop, and will help increase their earnings. Every shop should have a class in English, he said. Maj. N. Jay Boots of the aviation section of the United States Army, explained to the members of the Chamber of Commerce the method of training aviators at Selfridge Field, Michigan, illustrating his talk with lantern slides.

WORLD'S SMALLEST LIBRARY London.—What is perhaps the world's smallest public library is claimed by a village not far from London. The village itself is very small. It is merely a newspaper file that hangs upon a wall in the village street, but the community is grateful for it. This was attested to a stranger by an accident, white-haired village who, pointing to the "library with his stick, said: "Wonderful useful that be these days when folks can't get the papers as they did, along of all this shortage and rations and such." Use, McNeil's Cold Tablets.—Adv.
