CONSERVATION OF FOOD TO CONTINUE AFTER THE WAR

Plans For Next Several Years Gone Into by Local Administrators

That the conservation of food will continue for the remainder of the war and for a period of at least a year and a half after the war's close, was the word brought back from Philadelphia by John P. Guyer, representative of the county food administration, who conferred with Howard Heinz, state food administrator, and the representatives of other Pennsylvania county food administrators.

The need for the regulations on foodstuffs will continue through the winter in spite of the apparent prosperity and abundance of the food harvest, during the next couple months, was the message given Mr. Guyer by the state food administrator, who was pointed out by Mr. Guyer on his return this morning that in spite of any increase in foodstuffs in this country due to the large harvest, the need among the states abroad will continue so great that the conservation program in this country will have to continue unabated.

A resume of the food situation in the state and country, and the needs of the allies for food, were outlined at the conference. This phase of the day's proceedings is being kept secret, says the food administrator, but the general summary of the food situation is that food will be on hand in sufficient quantities to prevent shortages, and that the conservation plan is worked out.

At the local food administration, sugar statements continue to come into the office, but sugar purchase certificates will not be issued on the statements which came in after Monday. Eight hundred and sixty-one certificates were issued to Dauphin county and Harrisburg consumers.

Bismarck Advice as to Hun Marriages Should Be Revived, Press Says

Amsterdam—Bismarck's injunction that German diplomatic representatives abroad should not marry any but German wives, ought to be revived, says the Koenigsche Volkszeitung in an article which strongly disapproves of the union of Count von Bernstorff's son with Marguerite Vivienne Burton Thomas, of Burlington, N. J., and even more so of the marriage of his father, the former Ambassador in Washington.

The latter's conduct, both before and after the beginning of the war and until America joined in, has, it says, shown many strange vagaries which would be incomprehensible but for Luckemeyer, was an American woman.

New Coal Veins and Improvements Help Output

Hazleton, Pa.—Increased production of anthracite coal is indicated in the Lehigh region by the discovery of new veins and by important improvements intended to increase the output.

Beds of virgin anthracite have been found under the Tomhickon reservoir, west of Hazleton, and preparations are being made to clear the valley of water and strip the veins. The coal can easily be prepared for the market, mining engineers say.

In the Cranberry district, 22-inch vein of coal has been uncovered and this also will be stripped and the coal marketed.

Production of fuel will be increased by a revival of the abandoned workings. The Hollywood colliery of Pardee Bros. & Co., abandoned thirty years ago because it was supposed to be worked out, will be reopened this summer because of the great demand for fuel. A shaft has been driven into lower veins that were deemed to be inaccessible in the twenties. Tunnels are now being run to get out the anthracite. A complete electric equipment will furnish power for several hundred miners.

War Reduces Population of Belligerent Europe

London—The war has caused the belligerent countries of Europe the loss of not less than 12,500,000 potential lives, because of the decrease in the number of births resulting from the war, says Sir Bernard Mallet, registrar general of Great Britain. He believes that other belligerent countries have suffered in this respect more than has Great Britain.

Sir Bernard estimated that every day of the war means a loss of 7,000 potential lives of children to the United Kingdom, France, Italy and the Central Powers. Dealing with the decline in the birth rate here he said the births registered in England and Wales in 1913 numbered 851,800. In 1915 they fell to 814,614, in 1916 there was a further fall to 780,520, and in 1917, to 668,346; a decline of 24 per cent compared with 1913.
