

Stettinius, of Baker's Staff, to Represent U. S. in Munition's Session

Paris, July 25.—Edward R. Stettinius, Second Assistant Secretary of War of the United States, who now is in Paris, will take part in the inter-allied munition council. Afterward he will make a tour of inspection on the American front and then visit the French and British armies, and, perhaps, the Italian front.

Among the advisers accompanying him are Samuel M. Felton, director of railway supplies; W. S. Gifford, of the Council of National Defense, and Charles Day, of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Buyer and Manager For Kaufman Stores

FRANK S. HESSER

Frank S. Hesser has recently associated himself with the Kaufman Underselling Stores as buyer and manager of hosiery, women's neckwear, lace and millinery. Mr. Hesser's many years' experience well qualifies him for the position to which he has been appointed.

Renoult Pays Tribute to Valor of Soldiers of Allies in War Tunnels

Paris, July 25.—The Army committee of the Chamber of Deputies has received very favorable reports from members with the armies in the field on the operations now going on. Rene Renoult, president of the committee, sums up the observations made.

"The powerful German offensive, prepared in secret for more than a month and led by fifty divisions, was broken up, almost in a few hours, broken up and then victoriously swept back. It is to the peerless valor of the French soldiers and their American, British and Italian comrades and to the science of the military chiefs who proved unquestionable mastery in the conception and execution of the operations that these results are due.

More Workers Needed By Red Cross to Get Out Big War Orders

Labor Falls on Shoulders of Few Women Who Toil Intensely; Wives and Mothers of Men Under Fire Could Help Boys in Time of Need

"It is hot weather for Red Cross work," admitted a tired, though industrious official of the Harrisburg Chapter to-day when the drive was being planned for nurse aids. "But it is just as hot over there, where thousands of our boys think not of resting as they fight and die."

This is the keynote of a brand new anthem which must be immediately taken up by millions of women and girls in this country if they are going to do their part as the nation's youth are, standing to the colors, ready to give life for the cause and country. That a slump in workers would happen with broiling weather was somewhat anticipated, but not one so calamitous as is now registered.

Officers of the Harrisburg Chapter do not intend to complain. They are too busy for that. But they believe that the women of this city do not understand the urgency of the crisis, now that millions of American soldiers are going across and rapidly getting into action. What the Chapter wants is to have it understood that every woman and girl is a member of this great organization; that she will be welcomed like a long-lost sister if she steps into headquarters and asks to help. At the school house building in Walnut street, Miss Anne McCormick is right on the job ready to respond to any caller. The same is true of Mrs. Lyman Gilbert over in the Public Library basement. These women and all others active in the work, hope and pray that the Harrisburg will understand that the Red Cross is a thoroughly democratic organization which begs now for aid from any and all who call America their country.

Patriotism is not at high ebb these days, to judge by the lack of workers, and Red Cross folks are puzzled for example, to adjust the terrific demonstration of enthusiasm the other night when Harrisburg celebrated with the fact that while thousands of women took part in this jubilee none volunteered to work for the Red Cross. Another point which astonishes is that women who have a husband, father, brother or son in service, do not seem to realize that it is their duty to help look after that soldier who is helping her financially and risking his life.

SYRACUSE DRAFTS TO LEAVE WEDNESDAY
The quota of draft registrants for special service as guards at points of embarkation who have been inducted for training at the Syracuse Recruits Camp, Syracuse, N. Y., will leave at 11:30 next Wednesday morning, July 31.

Work on new Shoulders
The disproportion of Red Cross work as manifested to-day in this city would rattle a man like Charles A. Schwab, who insists that each worker deliver the goods. Tolling for two straight years at Red Cross headquarters there are nearly one dozen women of this city who have not had one minute's vacation in a long time, and that without a cent of pay and not one word of complaint. In the shipping department may be seen half a dozen men, who, in their spare time, please, who do the heavy work of porters and stevedores. The Red Cross establishment is a great hive of industry similar to any factory, run systematically. There are two women who for twenty-three months have done nothing but wrap up parcels for sending to the various auxiliary chapters. While at the regular hours and a good proportion of the faithful do not intend to take any vacation this summer.

The financial report of the Harrisburg Chapter shows that there is over $26,000 worth of material on hand, stored in the Fager building, the Library basement, at a garage and P. R. R. depot. It gives every detail of expenditure, so that if a federal examiner is sent to look over affairs he will find a clean slate. In the last few months a splendid system of keeping record of all products from each auxiliary has been instituted, and Harrisburg Chapter is in fine shape now to move as fast as Pershing's troops, providing only that the women and girls of our city lend a hand.

It is indeed a sad commentary that up-to-date sewing machines presented by patriotic citizens are often idle, because no one volunteers to run them. Hospital bed-jackets, layettes, bed shirts, underwear and a dozen other items of necessary clothing are being bought in bulk, cut up here and then wait weeks to be sewed. This is comparatively simple work and a woman, even taking her vacation, could help out the local chapter by taking on a job of this sort.

Bethlehem Steel to Vote on Big Bond Issue
Action on the authorization of a $500,000,000 bond issue and ratification on the sale of $50,000,000 7 percent notes will be taken by stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at a special meeting at Newark on August 8.

The $500,000,000 bonds will be issued under a consolidated mortgage covering all the property and assets of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Company, the operating company. Money raised in this manner will be used to finance extensive improvements and enlargements made necessary by the enormous war demands.

The sale of the notes, which the directors will be asked to ratify, recently took place to a syndicate composed of the Guaranty Trust Company, the Bankers' Trust Company, J. and W. Seligman and Company and the Chase Securities Corporation. When they sold the notes the Bethlehem management agreed to secure them permanently by $70,000,000 under the new mortgage.

ARRESTED ON OLD CHARGE
Frank Moyer was arrested this morning on the charge preferred against him last November by John Kelly, of Fort Hunter. It is charged he stole a copper kettle and brass fittings valued at $10. He is said by police to have left the town and was arrested upon his return.

GERMAN U-BOATS IN NEW TACTICS ON TROOP SHIPS

Naval Officers Mystified by Reports of Long Justice Battle

Washington, July 25.—The loss of the British transport Justicia is admitted by officials here to be a severe blow. The loss was confirmed in an official dispatch to the Navy Department from Admiral Sims. This makes the third British transport sunk in a week, the Carpathia having been lost off the coast of Ireland Wednesday and the transport Barunga Tuesday.

Naval officers here believe the German admiralty is following new lines of strategy in planning these attacks. The Germans appear to have attacked the Justicia with U-boats en masse and to have operated at a considerable distance off shore in order to catch the vessel after her convoys had left her.

No Night Convoy
It is clearly established that a number of U-boats operated together. It is assumed, in advance of detailed information, that the huge liner was convoyed until nightfall, after which she was left to rely on her speed and her anti-submarine nets.

These nets have already saved many ships, and in the present instance are understood to have made the work of the U-boat commanders very difficult. But the British admiralty probably did not reckon with the having to battle with a whole nest of submarines. Heretofore the Germans have seldom concentrated more than two U-boats on any one ship, especially a transport returning empty from abroad.

Naval officers are mystified by the reports that the Justicia battled for twenty-four hours with the U-boats before being finally sunk. They cannot yet understand how a fight of such duration could have been conducted without destroyers or other vessels falling victim to her assistance, excepting on the theory that the attack occurred at a considerable distance off shore, and some time after the convoying vessels had left the Justicia.

It is regarded as possible, but not probable, that the wireless of the liner was shot away in the first stages of the attack, thereby rendering it impossible for her to call for help.

There are intimations in the official dispatches that the Justicia made a very bold and clearly defined attack, but aside from this there is nothing to indicate that any of the U-boats were destroyed.

Holding Back Information
In some mutual quarters the report concerning the "defensive measures and methods which showed to excellent advantage" is assumed to refer to the sinking of the Justicia. For reasons not disclosed both the British admiralty and the Navy Department are withholding much of the information concerning the sinking of the big liner. It is noted that no mention was permitted by the British censors until the German wireless had given the first news.

It is believed that the German commanders may have known in advance the course which the liner took, and were therefore able to concentrate destroyers, net-boats and other vessels. The U-boats are not wasting much effort now on eastbound transports, which, being troop laden, are heavily convoyed and well guarded. They are trying to get them on their return trip. It has been the practice to convoy westbound ships only part of the distance. The big liner, it is noted, campaign this plan may be changed.

Boston, July 25.—Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commandant of the First Naval District, called attention of all shipmasters and factory managers last night to the danger to which "troops and sailors are subjected as the result of the sinking of whistles and ringing of bells in celebration of the sailing of troop transports."

"It is well known by all," the statement continued, "that an enemy submarine is lurking in the waters adjacent to this coast, that the sinking of coal barges and fishing vessels is merely incidental to the real mission."

"It is therefore the plain duty of every American not only to refrain from any demonstrations whatsoever in connection with ship sailings, but to refrain even from the discussion of sailings, of preparations for sailings which may come to his attention. It must be remembered that there are persons in our midst who would if opportunity offered, make traitorous use of any information of a naval or military character."

RABBI LOUIS J. HAAS RETURNS FROM CONFERENCE
Rabbi Louis J. Haas, of Ohev Shalom Synagogue, after a month's visit at Chicago, has returned to Harrisburg. While at Chicago he attended the twenty-ninth annual conference of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. He also visited the Naval Training Station at Chicago and other contentments in that section in the interest of Jewish Welfare Work.
