GRANDMA'S BIRTHDAY

To-day is grandma's birthday, My mother told me so. She told me all about it, And that is how I know.

For grandma is not with us, She's many miles away; But I can celebrate, all right, For mother said I may.

I'll bake it in the sunlight,
'Til it is golden brown,
And ice; it with some thick,
sand.
That's lying all around.

Then I will stick some candles, Most seventy, I guess, All over all the top if it— And then—you know the rest:

I'll sing "A happy birthday,
Oh, Grandma, dear, to you;"
And though she's many miles away,
I b'leive she'll know, don't you?
