CUBS RELY ON THREE PITCHERS

Field Marshal Mitchel, and Killifer Preparing For World Series

Every one interested in baseball is speculating on whether the post-season series this year will be the usual great drawing card. If Chicago and Boston are the contestants it is pretty certain that the series will draw well, especially in Chicago, where the fans are keen for the annual classic event. it is certain, however, that while the interest is national the attendance will have to be furnished by the cities engaged in the series, as the usual great foreign attendance will be ex-ceedingly limited this year owing to war conditions of trave, and general war conditions of traves and general expense.

Field Marshal Fred Mitchell, of the Cubs, will be the biggest man in the game if he can wallop the Red Sox with his pitching staff, for at the present moment he has but three high class men in prime condition. Jim Vaughn, Phil Douglass and Lefty Tyler. When these three are right, as they commonly are these days, they form a hurling triumvirate of exceptional class and attended to the complete of the with the ranking right-handers of his say and generation and fear comparison with none of them. Vaughn is the leading southpaw of the year, so far as the National League is concerned, and Tyler, though fallen away somewhat from his superlative form of 1914, is still a star of the first magnitude.

If Tyler and Vaugnn are both on Tyler and Vaugnn are both on If Tyler and Vaugnn are both on edge for the series Mitchell will have an asset beyond price in this pair of southpaws. The Redsox are, not especially partial to good left-handed pitching, and can be beaten by a southpaw when a right-hander would be in momentary dtnger of losing bis life. "Herb" Thormahlen and "Slim" Love were both consistent winners against them last spring, and other left-handers of the first flight have been equally effective, against them.

Three pitchers of the Douglas-Vaughn-Tyler type are all any club needs in a world's series, providing all three are on edge, and the fact that Fred Mitchell is their manager should be guarantee enough that the Cub "Big Three" will be thoroughly primed when they engage the Redsox or any other American League club that may qualify for the series. Mitchell is a specialist in that line and, with one possible exception, can do more with a pitching staff than any other leader in the National League. He proved that during his connection with the Boston Braves and his handling of the Chicago heaving corps has but added to his reputation. Three pitchers of the Douglas

Engineers and Firemen Play Brooks A. C. Today

The very speedy Brooks A. C. team, champions of York, to-day take on the Harrisburg Engineers and Firemen club down there. Manager Chub Eeatty expected to get the bunch under way at 3 o'clock at the Union Station. The ballplayers made a great record this year, losing out to West End by an eyelash; but the Brooks outfit have beaten everything in the neighborhood of York, so this evening's contest should be historic.

Taylor was outclassed by the others and Kumagae realized that it was up to him. He was by long odds the fastest man on the court and critics here do not see how he can be stopped in the national singles championship.

Even when Taylor made many inexcusable double faults the Jap was was decidedly unsteady. The feature match to-day will bring. Magnates Have Agreed Upon World's Series

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 15.—Chicago baseball fans are not to be deprived of seeing a world's series after september 2, if the Cubs succeed in winning the National League pennant, according to Secretary Walter Craighead, who said to-day that the magnates of both major organizations have agreed to play a series after that date. He spoke assuringly of the world's series and added that there should be no doubt that the leagues as well as the National Commission are making plans to play the games. He ing plans to play the games.

ling plans to play the games. He does not anticipate any interference from the government because the club owners are to comply with the edict laid down by Secretary Baker.

"I am confident there will be a world's series. The club owners agreed at their meeting that one is to be played. Aside from that I can say no more, because the Cubs have not yet clinched the pennant and it probably would be unwise for me to discuss a series at this time. I'll admit I have been giving it serious thought and have mapped out in my mind what the Chicago club will do as soon as the Cubs win the champion ship."

Giants Say They Still Have Chance For Flag

Have Chance For Flag

Whether the success of the New York Nationals in making a clean sweep in their series with Boston means that the Giants have found themselves again and taken a brace, or was merely a continuance of the Indian sign which the McGrawites have had on the Brave all season—they have won every one of their 14 games with the Hub crowd this year—is a question that cannot be answered at present, but evidently Manager McGraw figures it indicates the return of his club's old fighting spirit for he refuses to stand for the Giants being counted out of the pennant hunt. The Gotham manager says he is convinced that his team still has a good chance for the flag and is confident of making a successful drive on the western trip that will change the complexion of things. "The Giants," he said, "still are in the fight for the pennant. The Cubs are apt to crack wide open. They appear to be hitting the down grade now, and if we get our share of the breaks it would not surprise me in the least to see the Giants nose out Mitchell's team in the last days of the race. New York is not beaten yet. Not by a long shot." McGraw's belief is not shared by the average fan, however. The lead of five full games now held by the Cubs is quite a margin it is considered that the season will end in less than three weeks, and the showing made by the Giants on their first two Western trips does not promise that their efforts to overcome Chicago's advantage on the coming tour will be successful. The McGrawites probably will have to do some tail hustling to hold even second place unless the Pirates let down in their present pace.

Charles Ray Plays New Part in Latest Ince Production

CHARLES BAY

The many admirers of the famous nomas H. Ince star, Charles Ray, The many admirers of the famous Thomas H. Ince star, Charles Ray, will have an opportunity of seeing their favorite portraying a new role in "Playing the Game," at the Regent theater to-morrow and Saturday. Usually Mr. Ray plays the part of a bashful country youth, but in this latest lnce production he takes the part of a young spendthrift whose sole aim in life is to spend the millions left him by his father. As a habitue of the Great White Way he is fast accomplishing his objective when, in a quarrel over a ring with Hickey Trent, he apparently kills this friend of the girl in the case. As a result he flees to Arizona, where on the ranch of his uncle he has many serious difficulties which he overcomes, wins back his manhood and also the love of Moys, the daughter of the ranch manager.

This picture is one of the best in which Mr. Ray has ever appeared. Plenty of comedy and highly dramatic scenes staged in the foothills of Arizona make it an interesting picture indeed. Beside the main attraction a good comedy and the Regent Telegram Screen will also be shown.

Another opportunity is extended to-day to see this picture, which is the subject of much favorable comment. There is magnificent scenery, and last, but not least, a popular star, and these are a pretty good guarantee of a splendid entertainment.

The attraction for Friday only is Alice Joyce in "To the Highest Bidder."

This evening the managers of Paxtang Park will treat their patrons to the first fireworks and Vaudeville at Paxtang Park than a year. However, Manager Davis has secured a most elaborate assortment of setpleces and aerial devices for the display this evening. The exhibition will start at 8:33 sharp on the lawn at the rear of the park theater. At the park theater one may see an excellent vaudeville bill after the fireworks are over. The bill is headlined by Luba Mêroft and Company in a classy little musical and singing offering that has proved a big hit with the park audiences this week. Others on the bill are: The Three Eddys, comedy acrobats; El Cota, king of the xylophone players: Hector, the mindreading dog, and Miss Onetta, the Ori-
