Patriotic effects figured largely in Broadway Jimmie," a musical comedy which is "resented at the Majestic the last half of this week. Jimmie Hodges and Sophie Davis act as costars in the production.

The opening scene is the exterior of a Pasha's garden in Egypt. In an Oriental opening, a number of girls of the harem sang an attractive little song. Sophie Davis followed with Cleopatra Had a Jazz Band." Although it is a time-worn number, she managed to win applause. Ollie Hodges sang "That's a Baby's Prayer at "Twilight," and one of the big hits of the production was scored, when Jimmie Hodges and Sophie Davis sang "Sweet Lump of Sugar." "Somebody Did Me Wrong," a negro song, was given very acceptably by De McGee, and Ollie Hodges VICTORIA

"A Prince of the House of Hangover" is the title carried by Larry
"Playing the Game" he left the Regent to his uncle's ranch in Arizona to be come a man. This is the theme in "Playing the Game" a new Paramount picture, in which the famous Thomas H. Ince star, Charles Ray, takes the leading part. This picture is being shown to-day and to-morrow at the Regent Theater. Leading a wild life on the "only" Broadway, spending money right and left, proves the undoing of Larry. Serious trouble sends him hurrying to the foothills of Arizona. Many interesting escapades, narrow escapes and thrilling moments, makes this picture a now departure from the ordinary Ray photodrama and give it a distinct heart appeal.

Last summer on the Jersey coast found the bathing for my two Barry, ss Layten, 1b ... Prowell, p ... small boys of four and five rather small boys of four and five rather dangerous because of the undertow, so I bought twenty-five cents' worth of clothesline. I tied an end around the waist of each of the two boys, while I stood back on the beach, allowing the boys as much rope as they needed for their pleasure. Twice the smaller youngster was knocked down, but was pulled in at once to safety. The rope was a great help to me, because it allowed my boys the pleasure of bathing in what otherwise would have been unsafe waters.—W. G. R., in Good Housekeeping. Among City's Tombstones

Denver.—Tombstones and beans!
Some more graves, then other rows of Kentucky Wonders!
Conservation to the utmost is being practiced in Germany, France and England, they say, but the sex-ton of the Golden Hill Cemetery, in West Colfax street, has them all decked off the boards.
He's making use of the untenant-ed portions of his graveyard by the cultivation of garden truck—mostly beans. He suggests that beans grow better than any other vegetable among tombstones.

"These dead folks certainly would to mind," was suggested.
"And this is such good ground for beans," the sexton added, "and we need every one we can grow."

This idea has solved the problem of suppressing verbal disloyalty and thousands of clubs have already been formed throughout the country. In many instances Anti-Yellow Dog Clubs have been formed under the direct supervision of the heads of great manufacturing companies where it has had the effect of ferreting out the deliberate agitators in the ranks of the workers.
