

FULLERTON DOPES THE SECOND BASEMEN IN SERIES; KIWANIS PLAYS AT GETTYSBURG

THE BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG

Greatest Contest of Civil War to Be Fought Today by Kiwanis and Black Cats

Gettysburg, Aug. 27.—Foreseeing all business, more than two score members of the Kiwanis Club of Harrisburg, arrived here to-day accompanying their peerless baseball team which is to meet the Black Cats, of Camp Colt, this afternoon.

When the smoke of battle has lifted and the dead have been buried, the living will retire to the mess tents at Camp Colt for a big fad, the visitors being the guests of the Black Cats. The event will be held in general conjunction.

Big Crowds Witnessing Junior League Games

Second Basemen in This Series Below Par, Says Fullerton

Imagine a world's series in which the dope indicates that Davey Shean, second base of the Boston Red Sox, is the class of three players who figure to have a chance to participate in the contests.

The dope figures show that the class of the second basemen in this world's series is more than a hundred points lower than in the 1917 series and it is possible that the final figures will indicate that second base is the weakest point in the teams engaged.

Shean is perhaps one of the most interesting cases in the history of the game. Discarded by the Boston Red Sox because of weak hitting he has been a faithful if rather plodding player, smart, intelligent, a psychologic effect on all players in being with a winning team, and usually takes form of a sharp increase in hitting. Also it is inevitable that in the quiet times that make great stars in baseball.

When we come to apply these to a world's series, however, the psychological effect diminishes. Shean has pitched like a Cub because the pitching which the Cubs will use to stop Ruth, McInnis, Hooper and the great hitters of the team also will tend to stop Shean's chances of hitting safely. You often find that the supposed weak hitters of a world's series team are the batting heroes.

Amazing Tennis Playing by Country's Youth at Tournament

Perhaps the most convincing evidence of widespread interest in the tennis season now approaching is the climax in the championship at Forest Hills, is the remarkable success of the junior and boys' program.

The fact that Vincent Richards, of New York, the boy champion, who will not be sixteen until next spring, could win the national doubles championship when paired with William T. Tilden 2nd, from the veteran team of Frederick B. Alexander and Beata C. Wright, shows that the plan is working out perhaps even better than its sponsors had hoped.

In the junior and boys' championship which begins to-morrow about fifteen cities will be represented, thus assuring a field that is truly national in character. The cities sending their winners are Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Montclair, New York, Pittsburgh, Providence, Philadelphia, Rochester, St. Louis, Seattle, Utica, and Washington.

WILSON DELAYS BONE-DRY NATION UNTIL JULY 1, 1919
