Catarrh Sufferer Quickly Relieved

Breath Was Foul and He Felt Rotten All Over But Tanlac Quickly Relieved Him

"I had catarrh of the head and stomach and felt rotten all over," says a man who writes to me from 1229 North Sixth street, Harrisburg, Pa. "But to look at me now you wouldn't think I was the same fellow that I was when I was dragging myself around so miserably just a few weeks ago. And Tanlac fixed me up. I read in the paper about his curing a man of catarrh and I said to myself, 'I'll try it,' and by golly it has done the trick..."

Penna. Marine Killed in Battle in Santo Domingo

Newport, Pa., Aug. 27.—William Russell Jones, 19 years old, formerly of Newport, later living at Juniata, Blair county, a private in the 49th Company, United States Marines, was killed in battle in Santo Domingo, Hatamayo, Seido province, Santo Domingo, on August 13, 1918, as reported by relatives here.

HARRY ARNDT MAY BE ALIVE

Newport, Pa., Aug. 27.—Whether or not Private Harry C. Arndt, the 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther J. Arndt, of Newport, of Company A, 28th Infantry, is dead is a question that is bothering Newporters. Arndt was reported killed in action in July and then later his parents received a letter postmarked after his supposed death...

YANKEES SEE ONLY SMASHING VICTORY

In Letters Home Heroes of the Marne Are Full of Enthusiasm Over Manner in Which Hun's Finest Troops Were Met and Completely Defeated

After their first clash with the enemy, Pennsylvania boys are so confident of their ability to lick the Hun that they are shouting it 3,000 miles across the seas.

In their letters home, heroes of the Iron Division's gallant stand at the Marne are giving proof of a heroic hero's victory, their trust in the prowess of the American arm is the outstanding theme of their messages.

"Unbelievable things happen every day over here. Right now a battle over the air is going on over our heads. They are shooting at one another with machine guns, dodging and ducking one another, at the same time taking dives straight down to dodge, while machine guns and cannon are shooting at the Germans all the time.

"I am going to learn to speak German," he writes to his parents, "I think by the rate the Hun was going when I saw him last we will need to speak that lingo instead of French. The Hun is a brave man and a machine gun, but when he meets the cold strip of steel he is down on his knees saying 'Kamerad'."

"The people of Greensburg can be proud of Company I. It did its bit, if any one ever did it. They knocked out some of our men, but we killed or wounded every one of them."

"We took places that were full of machine guns. Some of our men were killed or wounded, but we did work that I never guessed we could do."

Lieutenant Paul Howe, of Freedom, Pa., writes to his mother at Greensburg, Pa., that he is proud of his company, the One Hundred and Sixty-fifth Infantry, and general that we can't sit still."

"No one fought better nor against better troops than just plain Americans. We are all so confident and delighted with everything in particular and general that we can't sit still."

Tom Nasser, of Stroudsburg, was a dispatch runner in the Marne battle. "Everywhere I did lick the Germans," he writes to his mother. "We killed them out of ten and fifteen to our one. Everywhere you can see dead Germans."

"To-day I was over in one place where we gave them hell. I saw one dead American with his gun and bayonet fixed on it, and I saw one around him, so you see how we give it to them."

66 Hours Without Food First Lieutenant A. G. Timm, once a graduate of this city, now of Company E, One Hundred and Twelfth Infantry, which is in France, has written home graphically of the recent fighting on the Marne and Vesle, in part as follows:

"We were on the front all the time since July 2. In fact, I am there all the time. I have been in the front for 66 hours without food. I am hungry, but I don't care. I am fighting for my country and for the freedom of the world."

"I suppose you get all the news in the paper about how the Americans are chasing Fritz. I'm sorry I couldn't stay in the game longer. The Americans are surprising the world, and from what I saw, I think one American is as good as two Boches."

Lieutenant Robert L. Butler, of Bethlehem, with a machine gun battalion, writes of the latest defeat of the Yankees on July 28 and 29:

"The Boche had a notion that he was going to put over a heavy barrage on us here and send us back to the Boche to clean up the remnants, and then there would be nothing left but to march through."

"Instead of the Americans retreating, they came back at the Boche with an attack. Our artillery gave him hell. German prisoners say that they have never had to stand such terrific artillery fire before. Our doughboys went forward, met strong resistance, but they kept on going forward and are still going."

Private Robert Hunters, of Beaver writes: "If those in the states who don't think the Americans are doing anything over here could see what we have seen I know they would change their tune. We are tight on the Boche's heels all the time, and where we are American artillerymen are making German retreats."

Another Iron division soldier, Private Kimber Wharry, of the 109th Infantry, writes that his unit is back in a rear camp. "Expect War Over by Christmas. The way the Boche is getting beaten," he writes, "makes me think the war will be over before I go in again. I guess you all have read in the papers how the American boys have beaten the Germans, and they sure did beat them bad. If the Germans keep on running like they are, we will all be sailing home by Christmas."

Harry E. Stevanus, of Coal Run, recently reported missing, was in a hospital in France, where wounds made it necessary to amputate one of his legs above the knee. From the hospital he writes to his young bride, whom he married last Christmas. "I brought down at least six Germans with my gun. But when they saw they stole my revolver and I was sad, as I loved it. It was an old friend."

Drafted boys from western Pennsylvania have been in action. Word has been received that Private Reynolds, of Brownsville, of the 119th Infantry, has been wounded. Recent dispatches indicate that several Harrisburg soldiers are fighting with the famous Western Pennsylvania regiment—the 110th Infantry, formerly the "Fighting Tenth."

Captain E. J. Stackpole, Jr., of this city is in command of Company M of the 110th and for several months has been in command of the division officer in charge of bayonet practice, returning to his company shortly before the division sailed for France.

This week an inquiry came from Dubois from relatives of Raymond Lingle, a private in Captain Stackpole's company, who was killed in the heavy fighting in the Marne. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Hawk, of Woodbine street, this city, who has made the supreme sacrifice, was a member of the 110th. Several members of Camp 100 have been killed and wounded in the recent fighting.

DON'T TRUST THE PACIFISTS, WARNS COL. ROOSEVELT

Former President Pleads For Speeding Up of War Program

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 27.—Speed up the war, prepare to defend ourselves afterward and make ready to solve the industrial social problems which will come with peace, were the demands of Theodore Roosevelt expressed in an address he delivered here to-day.

Colonel Roosevelt spoke at the Centennial celebration of the admission of Illinois to statehood.

"The two great needs of the moment," he said, "are to insist upon thorough-going and absolute Americanism throughout this land, and to speed up the war; and secondarily to these needs come the needs of beginning even now to make ready, day by day, for the tasks that are to come after the war, the task of preparing so that never again shall war find us helpless, and the task of preparing for the social and industrial problems which this earth-shaking conflict of giants will leave in its ruinous wake."

"To insist upon thorough-going Americanism among all our people is merely another way of saying that we insist upon being a nation proud of national past and confident of our future as the greatest of the nations of mankind; for if we permit our people to be split into a score of different nationalities, each speaking different language and each paying its real soul homage to some national ideal overseas, we shall not be a nation at all, but merely a polyglot boardinghouse, and nobody feels much loyalty to a polyglot boardinghouse or is proud to belong to it."

"We are not internationalists. We are American nationalists. We intend to do justice to all other nations. But in the last four years the professed internationalists like the professed pacifists have played the game of the militaristic and capitalistic tyrannies which now absolutely rule the Prussianized Germany of the Hohenzollerns. American pacifism has been the tool and ally of German militarism, and has represented, and always will represent, deep disloyalty to our beloved country."

"For the moment the pacifists and internationalists and pro-Germans dare not be noisy. But let our people beware of them as soon as the peace negotiations begin and from that time onward. They have worked together in the past and they will work together in the future. Pacifism and most sinister element of the combination while the pacifists are the internationalists prance in the foreground and furnish the rhetoric. Let our people remember that for the two and a half years before we entered the war, the pacifists clamorously insisted that if we kept unprepared we would avoid war. Well, we tried the experiment. We kept completely unprepared. Even after we broke off diplomatic relations with Germany we refused to make the slightest preparation. And nevertheless we drifted into the war. Pacifism and unpreparedness never keep a nation out of war. They invite war; and they insure that if war comes it shall be costly and long drawn out and bloody."

"Let us remember this when the peace comes. Don't trust the pacifists; they are the enemies of righteousness. Don't trust the internationalists; they are the enemies of nationalism and Americanism."

"When peace comes let us accept any reasonable proposal, whether calling for a league of nations or for any other machinery, which we can in good faith act upon, and which does really offer some chance of lessening the number of wars, and of diminishing their area. But let us never forget that any promise that such a league or other piece of machinery will definitely do away with war is either sheer nonsense or rank hypocrisy."

"Yet us rest our strength on an army which shall consist not of a special caste, but of the people themselves; on an army produced by the universal obligatory training of all our young men sometime between the ages of 19 and 21."
