

PUBLIC SERVICE HAS OBLIGATIONS

Interesting Decision Given by Chairman Ainey in Deciding Somerset Action

The Public Service Commission in an opinion handed down today by Chairman Ainey holds that the borough of Hooversville, in Somerset county, has not only the right to acquire an electric lighting system within its limits but beyond to a certain extent. The owners of the line, the United Light, Heat and Power Company, filed a protest against the proposed municipal acquisition and that if the borough secured the right it should be required to take over certain connecting lines, which it was contended would be of no use if separated. The right of the company to acquire the system was challenged.

The decision holds that the borough has the right to acquire the system and fix the price at $8,401.02 as the price to be paid, including the line from the borough line to a point known as Shaffer school house in Quemahoning township. In regard to the rest of the line in the township which the company contended the borough should buy it is held that the borough would be under no obligation to give service to the six customers. "Charter rights carry with them corresponding duties and responsibilities," says the decision. "When the companies elect to acquire the one comes the burden and duty of fulfilling the other. Were the borough compelled to acquire this portion of respondent's lines it could not utilize them for light and service, and on the other hand it would permit the protestant to dispose of all its physical property in Quemahoning township for which township it has secured charter rights and in which it is under public obligation to supply its service."

Many Reporters—State crop report service has been extended by the State Commission of Agriculture to include 750 crop reporters. They are located in every agricultural district and in some cases there is one to a township. The records made up this year are the most complete ever established by the Department.

Road Material Scarce—Road building contractors in Pennsylvania are commencing to feel the pinch of war according to letters which are coming to the State Capitol and the State Highway Department is being importuned to secure permits from the United States government for road construction material so that the men awarded contracts can start work. Several construction jobs are understood to have been held up by uncertainties as to which essential materials can be made available. Arrangements have been made whereby the State Highway Department, which is a big consumer of oils and other substances for road maintenance, passes upon requisitions for materials for road work. Road contractors have been having the same trouble as other employers of unskilled labor.

Draft Plans—State draft officials are urging members of local boards to perfect their plans for the big registration under the new draft law in circulars which are being issued. The new regulations are in process of shipment to boards.

Gets Compensation—Chapman Harry A. Mackey, of the State Compensation Board, has handed down a decision reversing Referee Cummings and allowing compensation to Jeanette Collins, Philadelphia, in a claim against a New York firm, the case involving a question of law. The claimant was injured on a demonstration in a Philadelphia department store and fell over a rug, receiving severe injuries. The referee held that she was not injured on premises under control of the defendant and that she was not in the employ of the defendant to an extent that covered liability. The employer's business was being carried on for the time being on the premises of the Philadelphia store, it is held.

Must Use Care—State draft boards throughout Pennsylvania were today warned in a circular from state headquarters to see that they did not send to camps men previously passed by boards, but rejected upon examination at army cantonments. The utmost care in forwarding only men physically fit is enjoined. A circular has also been issued which calls attention to the report of officers overseas that some men not of high mental grade have been sent as replacement troops.

Figures Late—Complete figures on the registration of men just twenty-one have not been returned by all draft boards as yet and the total will hardly be reached at state headquarters today. Some of the boards report examinations of men registered on Saturday as completed.

No Sessions—No sessions of the Public Service Commission were held today. The Derry township cases are due to come up to-morrow.

Great Spy Plot Uncovered in Arrest of Germans

By Associated Press

Muench, alias Kurt Brunner, is said to be a nephew of former German Ambassador Von Bernstorff. The suspicions of a sailor on a Pacific liner on which the men arrived here on April 26, 1917, led to their arrest. Secret papers are said to have been found sewed in the clothing of Muench. Muench is reported to have been a German officer captured by Cosacks early in the war. Zacho, reputed head of the spy system in Stockholm, was sent to produce his release and finally reached China with him. They reached here on forged passports, it is alleged.
