Commissioners After War

The Public Service Commission is gradually getting plans adopted for the abolition of a number of grade crossings and the erection of railroad stations after the war. Over a dozen orders have been made postponing changes until the close of the world struggle and directing that plans be made in advance.

This same course will probably be pursued in other cases which are pending and agreements will be made upon the character of the changes to be effected and every detail prepared for the carrying of the plans into execution when normal labor and material conditions come again. In the crossings are several upon the Lincoln, William Penn and other highways, which are extensively traveled, while others are complained of by the state itself.

for the untold horrors that have come into the world in the wake of ruthless Prussian ambition for supreme domination, is recommended by Maurice Leon, authority on international law.

This period of reparation, it was suggested by Mr. Leon, should extend for fifty years to strike a balance with the fifty years, approximately, in which the German people have been voting the war budgets that put the Prussian military leaders in the position in 1914 where, filled with confidence by the duration and extent of their preparations, they ignited the blaze that set the world aftre.
