

RAILROAD RUMBLES

RAILROAD MEN FOR WAR SERVICE

General Belief Here That the New Draft Will Take Many Men

With the registration of men between 18 and 45 years, commencing September 7, local railroad officials anticipate a further reduction in their forces. While it has been announced that railroad men will be exempted from draft, officials do not take this as meaning that all men will be placed in the deferred class.

There are employees on the railroad to-day, that to take them away, would greatly interfere with government plans, according to one official. Men who are essential will not be taken until absolutely necessary, according to the general belief.

Can Spare Few
Along the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad east of Pittsburgh and Erie, 178,000 men are employed. Of this number it is figured that not more than 15 per cent can be spared.

Every effort is being made to have women take the place of men, but it is announced a long time ago that there are jobs women cannot fill.

All men have been listed according to their age, work and families. When the registration lists are delivered, it is understood, will be furnished draft boards. There will be no special requests made for any officials. Men who have been exempted. What men will be taken is up to the government. It has been said that the next registration of men between 18 and 45 years, it is said the various departments will be notified. The Pennsylvania has already taken steps in this direction.

Reading Veteran Dies; Had Great War Record

David B. Smith, Civil War veteran and retired Reading Railroad engineer, died yesterday at his home, in Reading. He was 73 years of age and had a wide acquaintance in Reading Railroad circles.

This veteran had been employed by the Reading Railroad for fifty-one years. He started to work for the company at an early age. He was stationed many years at Mine Hill Junction, Schuylkill county, and was promoted to engineer about thirty-five years ago and had a market train running from Port Clinton to Philadelphia. This was also a market train, and was placed upon the pension list about five years ago.

Smith enlisted in the Civil War when a youth. When he heard the country's call for volunteers he ran away from his home and joined the Union Army. He enlisted as a private in Company C, Fifth Regiment of Cavalry, Pennsylvania Volunteers, on August 24, 1862, and was under the command of Lieutenant Gustave Reineckers. He was given an honorable discharge at Richmond, Va., on May 19, 1865.

He was a member of the Reading Relief Association, the Veterans' Association, a former member of the G. A. R. and the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers and Firemen.

and every other detail will be discussed during the coming year.

To Study Cartooning
Members of the school who have an inclination toward cartooning will be given a chance to study the masterpieces of the greatest cartoonists of the world. Then there will be a Story-Telling Club, to which a number of the students will be eligible. Bible study, travel, wiring—practically every subject in which Tech students would be interested has been suggested for discussion in one of the clubs. The last period Thursday morning has been set aside as the time when the entire school will form the various clubs.

Some of the organizations, with the teachers in charge, are: Bible Study Club, Mr. Beachley; Story Telling, Mr. Wallace; Cartoon, Mr. Campbell; Agricultural, Mr. Hill; French, Mr. Meikle; Social Dance, Mr. Sheaffer; Printing, Mr. Rees; Fishing, Mr. Pomp; Wiring, Mr. Longenecker; Rifle and Trapshooting, Mr. Shreiner; Bankings, Mr. Wolf; Natural Science, Mr. Wilson; Gas Engine, Mr. Hamaker; History, Mr. Hertzler; Camera, Mr. McCune; Spanish, Mr. Kuhn; Current Events, Mr. Nye; Stamp, Mr. Knauis; Stunts, Mr. Strawinski; Glee, Mr. Lindsay; Folklore and Legend, Mr. Bowman; Travel, Dr. Fager; Chess, Mr. Weisbrod; Bird, Mr. Grubb; Chemical, Mr. Saville.

The "club" proposition is an innovation at Tech and is in vogue in but few schools in the United States. Members of the faculty are enthusiastic about the matter, and it is expected to make a "hit" with the pupils.

Send Your Cookies to the Civic Club to Let the Soldiers Try 'em

You women who pride yourselves in baking toothsome cookies of the brand like mother used to make; here's your opportunity to show your skill and do a patriotic service. Mrs. William Jennings, keeper of the cookie jar at the Hostess House of the Civic Club for the entertainment of soldiers, has issued an appeal for cookies, cookies and more cookies. "We want to keep the jar filled with the kind of cookies mother used to make when we were children," Mrs. Jennings says. "Please send all contributions to the Hostess House of the Civic Clubhouse either Saturday or Sunday."

One of the largest representations in the procession will be that of the Bethlehem Steel Company. Marching with the Steelton division in the parade will be 2,000 employees of the plant. A slight change has been made in the route of the parade which will move under the revised route down Second street to the Square to be dismissed instead of moving down Reily to Front to Market to the Square.

Definite decision to locate the reviewing stand at State and Second streets has also been reached. As yet no agreement has been reached with the officials of the Harrisburg Liquor Dealers' Association to close the bars of the city during the day, but an agreement is expected soon.

SOME WOOD CHOPPER

Boulder, Col.—Herbert S. Hadley, formerly Governor of Missouri, now professor of law at the University of Colorado, is a boss woodchopper. As evidence of his prowess with the ax he has piled up on a sliding near a railroad fifty cords of pitch wood ready for consumers. About fifteen university students helped in the chopping, all paid by Professor Hadley, who is head of the Patriotic League of the university.

City League May Meet in Allentown in 1919

Erie, Pa., Aug. 29.—That Allentown will make every effort to have the 1919 convention of the League of Third Class Cities held in Erie, Pa., was reported to-day at the annual sessions here. Commissioner J. Herbert Koller, superintendent of public safety in that city, spoke to the convention delegates on Allentown's work in the last few years in having poles, signs and other obstacles removed from streets. Other speakers at the convention told of the financial difficulties facing a number of the cities, some of them suggesting that the municipalities may be compelled to engage in some enterprises to yield profits to the cities.

sum up as whole, the military operations extending from August 5 to August 25, since the battle still is in progress," he added, "the following results already have been obtained:

"The House conferees positively declined to accept the amendment," said Senator Chamberlain. "We rejected because we want to get the bill through. The essential thing is that the age limits be eighteen and forty-five years, and the conferees all are agreed on those ages."

"The House conferees do not say that they opposed the principle of the amendment, but they insisted that it already is in the selective service act. The present draft law, to which the man-power bill is an amendment, specifies that no exemption shall continue when the cause for such exemption no longer exists."

The Senate amendment requiring the government to sell uniforms and equipment to officers at cost was modified to require the War and Navy Departments to issue uniforms and equipment to officers at the request of the secretaries. The secretaries are authorized to make restrictions and regulations for issuing the uniforms, so that poorer officers will be able to obtain their necessary equipment without hardship.

Reclassifying Clause Out
The conferees struck out the Treadway amendment directing the provost marshal general to appoint a board of special examiners to go over questionnaires and reclassify registrants under the first draft.

The Senate conferees authorized the appointment of local boards of men living outside the local districts also was stricken from the bill.

The conferees adopted the House amendment requiring the education of the eighteen and nineteen-year-olds who are called to the military service. The Senate amendment requires that so far as possible they be given technical and special education while they are receiving military training. The Senate amendment requires that the youths be educated at government expense after the war.

"WORK OR FIGHT" STRICKEN OUT OF MAN-POWER BILL

Congressional Conferees to Settle on Final Terms of Act Today

Washington, Aug. 29.—Minor differences between Senate and House conferees on the man-power bill were cleared away to-day and the measure with the Senate "work-or-fight" amendment eliminated, was prepared for final congressional action.

After Provost Marshal General Crowder had explained that new instructions will provide that draft boards and not registrants must initiate deferred classification claims, the conferees struck out the Penrose amendment directing that registrants be not required to make or refuse to make such claims.

Senator Wadsworth's amendment extending the draft to the Navy and Marine Corps by providing that men may be allotted for those services, was retained.

Blanks Already Printed
General Crowder explained that the Penrose amendment would seriously interfere with plans for the new registration by preventing the use of millions of blanks already printed.

The conferees also eliminated to-day the amendment of Senator France, of Maryland, providing for a badge or other insignia for men deferred for industrial or other service.

A Senate provision retained in somewhat changed form removes the restriction against commissioning and admitting to officers' training camps men under 21 years of age.

The "work-or-fight" amendment to the man-power bill was stricken from that measure late yesterday by the Senate and House conferees. The bill will be submitted to the Senate and House to-day with the age limits fixed at eighteen and forty-five years, but without the provision that would take away from strikers in war munition plants the right to deferred classification in the draft.

No agreement was reached on the bill after four hours of conference. Provost Marshal General Crowder sent word to the conferees that the adoption of the Penrose amendment, which would have the local draft boards grant exemption to dependants without requiring the registrants to claim exemption would seriously delay the registration of the men who come within the new service limits.

The amendment probably will be stricken from the bill, although it is strongly favored by the conferees. General Crowder directed the committee that the questionnaires would have to be reprinted if the amendment is made a part of the new man-power act, and said that the registration probably would have to be delayed a month while new questionnaires were being printed and sent to the local boards.

The conferees also mentioned General Crowder to appear before them to-day. If the conferees strike out the amendment and the bill is signed without it the new registrants must claim exemption in their questionnaires, just as those who came within the first draft were required to claim exemption because of dependency.

The work-or-fight amendment was stricken from the bill, said Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and chairman of the Senate conferees, because the House conferees insisted upon it. The three Senate conferees, Senators Chamberlain, and Wadsworth, had been instructed by the Senate to insist upon this amendment, as well as all of the amendments adopted by the Senate.

To Expedite Matter the Senate conferees, however, when Representative Dent, chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs and chairman of the House conferees, and Representative Fields, of Kentucky, insisted that its adoption would delay final passage of the bill, and delay the draft of the men between eighteen and forty-five years of age, Representative Kahn, the third House conferee, voted for the amendment.

"The House conferees positively declined to accept the amendment," said Senator Chamberlain. "We rejected because we want to get the bill through. The essential thing is that the age limits be eighteen and forty-five years, and the conferees all are agreed on those ages."

"The House conferees do not say that they opposed the principle of the amendment, but they insisted that it already is in the selective service act. The present draft law, to which the man-power bill is an amendment, specifies that no exemption shall continue when the cause for such exemption no longer exists."

The conferees adopted the Senate amendment permitting wives of soldiers and sailors to hold government positions under civil service regulations.

The amendment extending home-ward rights to men called into the service below twenty-one years of age, under the same regulations as government employees, was adopted by the conferees.
