announced. Some of these will be opened next Monday as a few more opened next alonday as a few more teachers have been found, but in other districts it will be necessary to consolidate schools unless at least 20 more teachers are found. Some of the school directors have already conferred with the county officials and are making arrangements for teachers and other moves in order to open all the schools. In some districts it was pointed, out that consolidation will be almost an impossibility because of the bad roads in the winter time which are almost impassable and over which children would be compelled to travel long distances to buildings.

"The situation is serious," Professor Zimmerman said. "In the upper end of the county Superintendent F. E. Shambaugh is at work now but he reports 17 vacancies to-day, some of them in high schools. In the lower end of the county there are almost as many places to be filled."
