YANK RIFLES WINNING WAR

Germans Amazed by Accuracy of This Weapon When in Hands of Americans

Many persons who have never handled a rifle and show no relish for learning, wonder why all this commotion about trap-shooting at this period of American history. The Associated Press in its correspondence gives one explanation very definitely and authoritatively. Says the writer, under date line of Paris:

The effect of American rifle fire has been one of the great surprises to the enemy during the recent engagements along the front. As a result the rifle is fast cdming back to its own as the dependable weapon for infantry fighting. For a time its place was challenged by the hand grenade and some of the English and French experts took the view that the strength would be come across. Some 200 fans witnessed the semande would gradually supersed the rifle. Trench warfare had accustomed both sides to the grenade would gradually supersed the rifle. so that the rifle was seldom brought so that the rifle was seldom brought into use.

Even with the two weapons available, the troops had become accustomed to use the grenade rather than the rifle, and an enemy fugitive would often be chased until his pursuer was near enough to throw a grenade when a rifle ball would have brought down the fugitive from a grenade when a rifle ball would have brought down the fugitive from a Grejger, 1f.

All this has been changed however, by the open fighting of the present offensive and the unusually effective use the Americans have made of the rifie. General Pershing has maintained from the first that the rifie was the indispensable weapon for infantry, and while the grenade has not been neglected, every American unit has been thoroughly trained in rifie practice.

Many of the National Guardsmen as well as the regulars were crack rifle shots, winners in tournaments and veterans of the rifle ranges maintained at home. These ranges have become a notable feature of the training on this side, until the whole American organization has become specially proficient with the rifle. German prisoners all recount the same story, that the greatest surprise came from the impetuosity of the American troops, and after that the sweeping fire of the American rifle caused the greatest constenation and loss. Accustomed to waiting for a grenade attack at close quarters, the mass formations of the enemy were suddenly exposed to concentrated rifle fire at a distance, with every shot from a trained marksman who was not blazing into the air, but was picking out his target and sending his ball home.

This experience has fully sustained the American contention for the rifle as against the grenade, and French and English military experts are agreed in the enthusiastic approval they give the Americans as riflemen and in the view that the rifle has again demonstrated its right to be considered the paramount weapon for infantry fighting.

TICHON STRICT AND CALLED TO THE WILL SEED TO SEED TO SEED TO SEED THE WILL SEED TO SEED THE WILL SEE that in previous encounters of this character the Red Sox have always come out on top.

Since 1905, when the National Commission assumed charge of the world series and when the games became a broad-gauged, well-managed and well-disciplined affair, the Boston Reds have won out in no less than three tilts for the world's flag.

That was in 1912, when, after a bruising fight, beat New York Giants four straights; in 1915, when they took Philadelphia into camp four games to one, and in 1916, when they whipped Brooklyn easily four games to one.

In those three series, especially in the lafter two, the American League team won so easily it left the National Leaguer Champions have thang excuse on. According to all precedent, therefore, the Sox experts are right and have good reason for believing that the series is to be a regular cakewalk for the Boston team. But throwing out the dope and coming right down to present day facts and conditions, the betting should be accompanied to the best through the second team. A World Beater This Seas A World Beater This Season

Miami, Ariz.—Wild burros have become a pest in some parts of Arizona. The little long-eared animals are not exactly wild, for the reason that they do not have enough energy and spirit to be that way. They are a good deal like the bears of Yellowstone Park. They infest the mining camps and ranches and are a nuisance. Hundreds of them are killed for their hides and grease.

It has been suggested by Dr. C. C. Young, a noted Russian traveler and Karakul sheep breeder, who has lived in the Southwest for several years, that the wild burros be utilized as a source of meat supply for the people of this part of the country.

All eyes to-day will be upon George "Babe" Ruth to-day, star pitcher, slugger and outfielder of the Red Sox. "Babe" is considered the bis noise in the world series and is expected to drive in enough runs to cop the championship. Ruth's presence in the lineup strengthens the Red Sox at least 50 per cent. and his admirers are doing some tall boosting.

But here is where the grandoldope comes back for a brief visit. What has Ruth done in the past in world series games which deserves special mention? What has he done to lead one to believe he will knock the cover off the ball every time he comes to bat? After delving into the musty old records some startling information is unearthed. Gather closely and prepare for a knockout wallop.

In Two Series

Babe Ruth has played in two world's series and his batting average was exactly .000. Furthermore, the noted slugger was able to get one ball out of the infield, and that was October 9, 1916, the third time he batted against Sherrod Smith, and lifted a fly to Zach Wheat out in left field.

The dope also discloses other interesting data. Ruth struck out twice in that Brooklyn game which went 14 innings. His batting was decidedly negligible in 1915 and 1916, when he faced Alexander and Smith, two artillerists who are now playing the bigger game in France. This is what they did to him:

Ninth inning—Batted for Shore and grounded to Luderus.

Buth Againgt Smith—1916

Mrs. Peffley is recovering from injuries received in an accident in the Pennsylvania yards. She took a man's job to release her husband for war service.
