Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 5.—Pen Mår may become a recuperating camp this winter for Americans gassed or shell shocked on the war front in Europe. One cottage has opened its doors to the government for the purpose and been accepted. Henry Strohmeyer, of Baltimore, it is reported, who owns the former Barnett cottage on Grand View Heights, recently tendered his cottage to the government for the purpose named, and the offer has been accepted, effective October 1. It is said other cottage work are not used by their owners over winter and they can be devoted to the use of the invalided soldiers.

Mount Union. Pa., Sept. 5.—Mount Union is pianning to honor her boys at the front by having one of the largest celebrations ever held in this community on Saturday, September 14. The main feature will be unveiling of a large tablet, five by seven feet, upon which will be engraved the names of the boys at the front. The names will be inscribed in black and white enamel and can be read at a distance of twenty-five yards. It will be placed in the center of the town. A service flag and flag raising ceremony will be held on the same day. A tag day will be held soon to help bear the expense.
