New York, Sept. 13.—That Chairman Will H. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson.

FIREWORKS THAT PLAY BIG PART IN BATTLES

The old-time Fourth of July evening, with its pinwheels and red flares, Roman candles and rockets, has bequeathed all its pyrotechnics to the service of the American soldier in France. Fireworks—most of them made by girl workers in New Jersey—are playing a vital part in the war, and Yankee ingenuity has devised many new ways of employing them.

How Much Longer Can Germany Fight?

We must beware of being too happy over the trouncing Germany is getting on the Western Front. Victory is coming, but the earlier we expect it the later it will arrive.

While "we are on the last lap and close to the winning post," to quote a French leader, at the same time we are reminded that it is in the last part of the race that a runner must make his supreme effort. "Should the German military command decide to have the war carried into Germany and seek to delude the people into a frantic last resistance at or beyond the Rhine, upon the plea that they are actually fighting for the Fatherland and to drive the invaders from the sacred soil," remarks the Boston American, "the Huns might prosecute the war still for a long time to come."

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week—September 14th—carefully weighs the result of the Allies' victorious push during the past several weeks and balances against their successes a computation of the further fighting strength of the German armies, drawn from various sources. This article throws much light upon the present relative strength of both forces.

"The Digest" Serves At Home and at the Front

A recent dispatch from American headquarters in France described our boys in the trenches as eager for news of the war, so much so that a dozen or more crowded together to read a single paper narrating the progress of the battles. We at home are no less anxious to learn how the fight is going as a whole and how our soldiers are distinguishing themselves and incidentally lending a poignant interest to the reports from the front. To know the whole truth about the great struggle in France and Flanders there is nothing so helpful as to read the weekly accounts in THE LITERARY DIGEST, carefully gleaned from the most authoritative sources. You can first satisfy yourself of the actual facts in this way and then mail the magazine to one of these news-hungry American boys overseas.
