"Both pennants were awarded to eastern counties. Lehigh received one as the county having no intermediate societies in March, 1917, but organizing the most since that time. Lehigh now has two flourishing societies. The county having societies in March, 1917, making the largest percentage of increase until July, 1918, is Schuylkill, with an increase of 300 per cent, having had one society and organizing three new ones. Congratulations to both counties, and may this be but the beginning of larger work in both.

"My report to the state executive committee showed 181 societies, but this number has been changed during my attendance at our convention. Thirty-four societies have been organized during the past year, fifteen previously existing, but not reported to me, have been dispovered, and twenty-two have dispanded.
