You have now the enemy in your clutch, pass a just judgment. Let the leaden bullets of East Prussia buzz, and let each bullet account for the life of a foe. The Germans are the first, before the throne of God—Thou couldst not place the golden crown of victory in purer hands. We have become a nation of wrath; we think only of the war.

 We execute God's Almighty will, and the edicts of His justice we will fulfill, imbued with holy rage, in vengeance upon the ungodly. God calls us to murderous battles, even if worlds should thereby fall to ruins. We are woven together like the chase of the chang like the guident of the chang the country of the world like the lightnings blossom at the Lard God! Thy wrathful call obliterates our sinful nature; with Thine iron rod we smite all our enemies in the face.

The war now shows the elementary revolt against the moral idea of the world. We fight—thanks and praise be to God—for the cause of Jesus within mankind.

Verlly, the Bible is our book. Even if, for a long time, we did not value it as such, we now acknowledge that it was given and assigned to us, and we read in it the original text of our destiny, which proclaims to mankind salvation or disaster—according as We will it! God's people will come forth from this war strengthened and crowned with victory, because they stand on the side of God; but all God adventured on the saries will find out that God and the tright of the nations according to His will.

To allow to the weak the same right of existence as to the strong. Viscous nation means presumptures encroachment upon the natural laws of development.

To allow to the weak the same right of existence and ought to be swallowed up.

It is moral, inasmuch as it is reasonable, that the small states, in spite of treaties, should become the prey of the strongest.

And so the self-confessed high waymen, the barbarians of Prussia

THE Donnybrook Fair at the Board of Trade this afternoon will have the effect of completing the demoralization of Democ y in Pennsylvania. —To-day's meeting of the Democratic state committee is one of the big things of national politics just now. The course of National Committeeman A. Mitchel Palmer in repudiating the nominee of his party for Governor of Pennsylvania at a direct primary and the approval and applause given him by the Democratic national chairman are such unheard of proceedings that men all over the country are watching the developments in Harrisburg to-day.

—Some people here profess to see a new phase of presidential interference in party affairs. Heretofore the President as the leader of the party has taken a hand in primaries, but if he is at the back of the two bosses it will be the first tme that the power and prestige of the chief magistrate has been thrown against a man who holds the certificate of nomination by the Democratic voters of a state in a direct primary, where —The upshot of the matter will probably be that the Democratic state organization will conduct a campaign for a decapitated state ticket, while the nominee for Governor will run his own show. Such an anomalous condition would be the logical result of the management of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania in the last seven years.

The Prohibition party is still insisting, through its leaders, that a separate ticket shall be supported, not-withstanding the clear and unequivocal position of Senator Sproul, the Republican nominee for governor, on the prohibition amendment. (From the Portland Oregonian) The movement to utilize crippled soldiers in reconstruction work and in aiding the recovery of wounded men brought back from the front recognizes the principle that this is good for both parties to the transaction. The cripple who has mastered his disability is mefited by the knowledge that he is doing a definite service to his fellowmen, and the convalescent is certain to be inspired by the example set for him. Of all the factors operating against recovery, the surgeons find that the feeling of despair is the most seri-

Fiorello H. La Guardia was elected to Congress as a Republican from the Fourteenth New York district two years ago. This week he was renominated by the Republicans and indorsed by the Democrats, though the district in normal times is overwhelmingly Democratic. And La Guardia was 5,000 miles from New York during the entire campaign. It was an unusual compli-

New York during the entire campaign. It was an unusual compilment to pay a man who has not yet finished his first term in Congress.

La Guardia is a major in the American aviation service on duty in Italy. When the war came to America he did not stand on his exemption rights as a member of the House; he volunteered for active duty and accepted service in the most dangerous arm of the service. Though his district has not had the benefit of his counsel or his vote in Congress it has had the inspiration of his example as a patriot and fighter in the cause of liberty. The Fourteenth district has been highly distringuished and honored by its representative.

tinguished and honored by its representative.

It is not supposed that La Guardia will return to America for the fall campaign; there is, indeed, no particular reason why he should. It is possible he will not be able to sit in the next House. But his constituents will be content. They are furnishing an example of patriotic devotion that might well be emulated elsewhere.

Then the compilation of the enlistments in the Regular Army, the Navy and the Marine Corps will be sought through Washington and each local draft board will be asked to furnish names of men inducted from its official records. The Adjutant General's Department is in charge of the collection of the names of the State's Militiamen who were mustered into Federal service and in addition has compiled extensive information about Mexican border service. The other information will likely be gathered through the committee of the State Historical Commission on the state history and the state draft headquarters will have the records of men who served in the Civil and Spanish was has enabled a system to be worked out and with the draft headquarters records it is believed that the information will be available in much shorter time than after previous wars.

much shorter time than after previous wars.

The Rev. Dr. Robert Bagnell, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, who spent three months in France and England on a tour to American troop camps and army bases, has a number of interesting stories of the effective organization and work of the Y. M. C. A. One soldier to whom he spoke said: "These 'Y' fellows certainly are on the job. Why I believe if a German bomb would blow me a hundred feet in the air I'd find a 'Y' secretary up there with a cup of coffee to hand to me." Speaking of the work of the Y. M. C. A. in small French villages where American troops are quartered for a short time and then move on, Dr. Bagnell said the secretaries are always ready when the men leave and go right with them. "As soon as the order comes to pack the worker gets his equipment together, goes right on with the men and as soon as they reach their next stop for a camp he is on the job. Sometimes the same night the boys reach another town where they are to stay for a short period the secretary communicates with headquarters and sometimes has a concert company or some other entertainer or speaker sent out at once. That the boys appreciate this service is seen everywhere. None ever had anything but praise for the Y. M. C. A. work."

the Y. M. C. A. work."

In London the "Eagle" hut is the leader Dr. Bagnell said. This is the largest one in the world and has many buildings all connecting with a central one. There are rest rooms, a big auditorium, restaurant, in fact everything a soldier can want. Every effort is made by the Y. M. C. A. workers to get the boys there when they come to London on leave. They are told in the camps in England about the hut and secretaries give them directions to it so that if a soldier once gets to the hut there is little danger of him meeting any temptations in the largest city in the world. At the "Eagle" hut there are two women fully acquainted with the city. One of them is a noted social worker. When a soldier on leave arrives and wants to go sightseeing or visit certain places these two women map out his tour and in case a group of men are going a "Y" worker is sent along. In this manner soldiers on leave can see the most in the shortest possible time.

As the uniform always attracts in every city, and there are many pit-falls for the soldiers, Dr. Bagnell told of the system which has been developed in London. Workers patrol the streets at nights and when they see a soldier or sailor they stop him and inquire what he is doing. In case he has no mission and is just wandering around he is taken to a hut. Frequently men on leave are found at night under the influence of liquor. They are taken to the hut also and kept there until morning.

During his visit in the battle zones During his visit in the battle zones Dr. Bagnell met Representative M. Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, who was with the party of Congressmen who went to France. Dr. Bagnell explained that he did not take time to visit the front line trenches in the battle area because of the time which he would have lost in making the trip.

In one respect she's like all other women.

While Dr. Bagnell did not go to tally he had an excellent opportunity to study the Italian situation he said. He did not give any further explanation, but in speaking of his experiences mentioned that on one part of the tour he had a fine view of the Alps. It was suggested that he must have been in Southern France. He only smiled. Dr. Bagnell was under military regulations during his entire trip and is yet so far as making any public statement of the places he visited. He gave that as his reason for not mentioning any towns or villages. mentioning any towns or villages.

mentioning any towns or villages.

Some people are easily satisfied. A short time ago a man in New Jersey wrote to Deputy Attorney General William M. Hargest for the laws of Pennsylvania relative to marriage, Mr. Hargest replying that they were to be found in seven volumes of a standard digest. The Jerseyman at once replied with thanks, saying that the information was what he needed and suggesting that the laws be at once placed at every courthouse or place where persons would be likely to ask questions about them. He did not want other to be as inconvenienced in getting information as he had been before writing to Mr. Hargest. Just what the others of whom he was so solicitous would think of wading through seven volumes is a little hard to work out.
