Austrian Note Shows Desperation of Foes For Peace, Says Rome

Rome, Wednesday, Sept. 18.—In a long article, which is taken as reflecting the views of Vatican officials, if not the Pope himself, the Corriere della Sera, the semi-official organ of the Vatican, declares Austria should be more explicit in her delimitation of the old frontiers than the note undoubtedly carries show the desperate need of peace, the article says, "There is no need for a conference when President Wilson and others already have set forth the allied conditions."

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic acid stomach is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can take a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digester. It is a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation.

This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pain pills or cathartics.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat." G. A. Gorzars.

McCord, who lives with her grandmother, Mrs. Leah Masterson, of 139 Sansafra avenue. Little Mary received word of her father's safe arrival of the other day. Mr. McCord received his preliminary training at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg.

THE KAISER AS I KNEW HIM FOR FOURTEEN YEARS

By ARTHUR N. DAVIS, D. D. S. (Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

(Continued.) After England declared war, the efforts to capture spies were doubled, and the mob had a new lot of signs to tear down. We were forbidden to talk English on the telephone or in the street. We kept to our homes rather closely. Most of the buses, taxicabs and horses had been commandeered, and the only signs of life in Berlin were furnished by soldiers marching through the streets and officers driving madly about in high-powered cars which exceeded all speed limits and other traffic regulations.

After a few days, things began to return to normal again. The food supply seemed ample and the headlines in the newspapers were so encouraging and reports of victories every one expected the war to be over within a very short time and they began to eat up the stores they had so excitedly collected.

Of course, there were no private motors, few taxis and almost no trains but there was apparently an abundance of the necessities of life. E. J. Stackpole, representing the Y. M. C. A.; W. R. and dry groceries were all rationed and it was now no longer necessary for women to stand in line in front of the shops sometimes all night to wait the morning opening.

Shopping by the card system was very complicated and the quantities permitted by the ration cards so small that a well-balanced meal was an impossibility. To dine in a restaurant was necessary to take a whole pocketful of cards and make a careful analysis of them before ordering the meager meal which the law allowed.

Empty boxes were used to decorate the depleted show-windows of the shops. The fact that they were empty was not known to the public and very often the windows would be broken by hungry mobs who couldn't resist the sight of what appeared to be so much food. This led the government to order the shopkeepers to label the boxes: "Empty Boxes" in order to avert such disturbances and riots.

There was simply nothing to buy in the food line except substitutes, and of these there were hundreds, each with its own label and its own mark: "If things get much worse, we shall soon be eating rats as the Parisians did in 1870" brought the retailer "Well, that wouldn't be so bad; what I'm dreading is the time when we shall have to be content with rat substitute!"

When we finally had cards for coffee substitute and had to have them stamped to buy a quarter of a pound of candy substitute per month—and both were so wretched we couldn't eat them—I gave up interest in substitutes and commenced to patronize the speculators, figuring that it was better to risk the penalties imposed by the law for such violations of the food regulations than to ruin our health through undernourishment.

For a long time we were permitted to receive "present" of bacon, ham, sausages, eggs and butter from Denmark but this was finally prohibited through the influence of the Central Einkaufs Gesellschaft—"The Central Society for Buying Food From Other Countries"—which
