EDUCATE FOR BUSIN ESS Because business needs you and offers splendid opportunities to the young man or woman who is thoroughly prepared. DAY OR NIGHT SCHOOL SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

"Eyes of Youth," the notable New York success, will be presented at the Orpheum Theater on Wednesday, September 25 for two nights and Thursday matinee, directed by Max Marciniak.

"Eyes of Youth" is a play of boys and girls of 17 as they see themselves in a thing almost new to our eyes. The play has been written from "Billy Baxter Stories" and staged with masterly sympathy and delicacy by Stuart Walker, or it could not have played eight solid months this year in New York to capacity audiences.

"Seventeen" is really a play of adolescence, in which the same principles that govern boys and girls at or about "last year's High School," who speak for themselves and tell the world what they think, not those which their parents make up about them. One would carelessly call the play "tragically funny." It is not. It is a tragedy which looks funny to the outsider.

When Montague Glass and Jules Eckert Goodman decided to transfer the activities of the "Business Celebrated" partners, "Abe" Potash and "Maw" Perlmutter from Pleasure to the more serious and interesting world of the movies, the result of the inspiration was "Business Before Pleasure," the great Elinor Theater comedy success of the season 1917-1918, which A. H. Woods will present at the Orpheum Theater on Saturday, September 28, for an engagement of one night only.

This is the last opportunity patrons of the Colonial Theater will have of seeing Norma Talmadge in "Her Only Way." It is a play of laughter and tears. Those who witness this beautiful production will not be disappointed, for it holds out an appeal to old and young alike.

SUCCOTH TO END JEWISH HOLIDAYS

At 7.45 o'clock to-night at the Ohev Sholem, the services will begin with a sermon by Rabbi Louis Haas on "The Value of Symbols and Ceremonies in Religion." The Chizuk Emunah Synagogue, Sixth and Forster streets, services will also be conducted to-night by Rabbi M. Humanoff and at Kasher Israel at Capital and Briggs streets, by Rabbi L. Silver.
