Putnam, Yankee Flying Ace, Brave Fighter in Air; Fought at Rheims

Washington, Sept. 20.—Lieutenant David E. Putnam, the American flying ace who lost his life in battle with seven German planes on the Lorraine front on Wednesday, was one of the bravest men in the aviation service. He was transferred to the American army corps early last June. His achievement June 10 of bringing down five German airplanes in one day has been eclipsed only once during the war. Aviation hero Rene Fonck, of the French army, having destroyed six machines in one day. Lieutenant Putnam's last aerial victory was reported September 2. Announcing the decoration of Putnam, the Journal Official of Paris said:

"By his skill and daring and contempt for danger," says the citation, "he has shown himself a pilot of the very first rank. Recently, in attacking a patrol of nine enemy machines, he downed one machine early last next day, while on escort duty, he boldly attacked a patrol of eight enemy airplanes and downed two, thus winning his fifth and last aerial victory. Three times he has been mentioned in dispatches."
