

ACADEMY FOOTBALL PROMISES TO BE HIGH-CLASS; TECH TEAM FURTHER STRENGTHENED

Gee Whiz! Tech Forces to Be Stronger on Saturday

"Fat" Lauster, Tech stalwart line player, will be back in his regular position Saturday afternoon against Wilkes-Barre after having missed the Mount Carmel contest last week. It was the first game he has missed since joining the squad in his freshman year. Coach Ehner is optimistic that "Vic" Bihl, who was on the casualty list for the first game, will likely be placed as a guard. Coach Smith has been using Gary at the center, and with Bihl's return, placed the latter at guard.

The advent of these three additional players will add considerable strength to the Maroon, and make them more formidable this week than last. Laurel Park Drawing Select Racing Crowds

Laurel Park, Maryland, where the Maryland State Fair is holding its annual program, is the recreation spot these days of many statemen and financiers from the Capital, says a Harrisburg visitor, who ran down to ogle the newly-beautiful plant. "You can see most of the big fellows," he remarked, "and I noticed a pile of them indulging in the pari-mutuel. A pile of money has been bet on the racing sport in old Anne Arundel county, something like $300,000, and it will be a $500,000 proposition before they are through. The track has been raised in some sections as much as five feet, and the horses who have raced it lately are unanimous in their opinion that it will be as fast as Santa Anita, which world's records were by the boards during the great event of racing which recently closed at the Spa. The Laurel will be in the hands of a master superintendent, Frank Keegan. This Keegan is the same individual who prepared the Juarez track for record-breaking performances and, with the cream of two-year-olds as well as the veterans in attendance there next month, not only are track records expected to fall, but with the marvelous as Roamer and Sunbird in the pink of condition for racing at the Maryland State Fair, there will be some mighty fast times reeled off during the twenty-seven days of the sport here at Laurel Park.

Twelve gymnasiums, with a prepared schedule as is given on this page, have been organized. Every one of these classes is going to receive some military training and setting up exercises. It is an inspiring sight to see kiddies of 12 to 14 years following in perfect line the commands "Squad right, and "squad left" as they participate in the manual of arms without flaw.

It is in line with the preparedness program, boxing bouts will be staged between the members of the gymnasium, not as a piece of sportsmanship but as a link in the effort to make the muscles strong and the eye keen. Even the policemen and businessmen will participate in this program of training. Husky lads from the city's law-keeping department will clash in volleyball with gray-headed businessmen and young men who are preparing to enter the army. Each man is clad in the standard uniform of white shirt, short white pants, white shoes and white socks. Standing erect in a straight row it is a sight which must send a thrill of

At the New Haven arena last season the Rutgers was one of the most finished gridiron machines of the year, and as many of the players who made up the team are still on hand, it is certain that the team will give a good account of itself this season.
