

REMEMBER THE TAMPA, SPURS IN LOAN DRIVE

Woodmen of the World Subscribe $1,200,000 in Liberty Bonds

Washington, Oct. 10.—In answer to the insistent question, how is the Fourth Liberty Loan really going, a comparison to-day of records during this campaign with those of the Third Loan showed these facts.

The Fourth campaign of three weeks is half gone and $1,791,463,200 in subscriptions, or 30 per cent. of the six billions sought, have been reported. When the third campaign was half over, $1,371,000,000 or 33 per cent. of the total finally reached, had been subscribed. This record in the Third Loan drive, $420,000,000 less than at the corresponding stage of the present drive, was achieved in two weeks as compared with ten days which have passed in the current campaign.

These facts seem to show that progress in the Fourth loan is comparable to that of the Third, which was highly successful.

More than $13,000,000 has been subscribed in the navy toward the Fourth Loan. Rear Admiral Cowie reported to-day.

Why John Quit Drinking

By John's Wife

I'm the happiest little woman in all this little town; And my merry laugh and singing, Takes the place of sigh and frown. For JOHN HAS QUIT HIS DRINKING, And is like himself once more, And the world is just a paradise With such happiness in store!

One day I read some verses— "Mary's Miracle," the name, And I said, that's John exactly. And I'll send and get the same. So I sent for GOLDEN TREATMENT. (I'm so proud to be his wife, And I put it in John's supper, And I put it in his tea.)

And it didn't taste a little bit; Had no odor, so, you see, It was smooth in the sipping, For little Doctor Me. And I watched and prayed and waited, (And cried some, too, I guess, And I didn't have the greatest faith, I'm ashamed now to confess.)

And John never thought a minute, He was being cured of drink, And soon he's as well as any one, It makes me cry to think! Just makes me cry for gladness, I'm so proud to be his wife, Since he is cured of drinking, And leads a nice, new life.

"Since John he quit a-drinking!" I can't say it times enough! And I hate and loathe a liquor, As he would a poison stuff. And when I say my prayers at night (As thankful as can be), I pray for John the most of all— Then GOLDEN TREATMENT.

Home Treatment for Drunkards Odorless and Tasteless—Any Lady Can Give It Secretly at Home in Tea, Coffee or Food.

Clean the Furnace Day October 11

Fuel Committee, Chamber of Commerce

CLEAN FURNACE WILL SAVE COAL

committee wants the heads of Harrisburg households to turn into "Cellar Patriots" over night, and get up to-morrow morning with the firm determination to spend enough time in the cellar, tinkering with the furnace, to put it into shape for efficient work this winter.

The following editorial from the Saturday Evening Post was quoted by the fuel administrator as an example of the patriotic necessity for saving coal.

"In about thirty days, as to a great part of the United States, you will be lighting the furnace. There will be no time to clean the flues, the pipe and the chimney; or to replace the warped grate that lets a half of half-burned coal fall into the ash box every time the furnace is shaken; or to fix that defective damper on the door that is a bit sprung so it lets in draft when you want all drafts shut off. About New Year's you will be blaming the fuel administration."

"Look to the furnace right now. "One day last spring we passed a public building whose facade was being decorated with some big, handsome flags of our Allies. From the chimney of the powerhouse which supplied the building poured a dense, pitchy volume of smoke, showing defective combustion and a waste of coal. For more than a year Italy has been half-paralyzed by lack of coal. It costs sixty dollars and more a ton there. The nation can barely keep the most necessary industries going. Out in front of the building a crowd was observing the Italian flag—while the powerhouse wasted coal that Italy is famished for. Do not take it out in cheering."

BRITISH TROOP SWEEP FOE BACK

erms a screen of German machine gunners as they went. Canadian and British troops met in the center of Cambrai, which was entered from both north and south and quickly mopped up. Many Germans had escaped, but many hundreds who had been held there to launch a counterattack were either killed or captured. Some of the enemy troops are in deep cellars two stories underground and in the tunnels the Germans dug during their occupation of the city. These are being routed out and sent back to the cages.

Although many fires were started by the Germans, the town was found not to be as badly damaged as had been feared.

Villages Fall to Allies South of the city the Third and Fourth armies rapidly overcame enemy opposition. The Germans started fleeing soon after the attack began. The front line for twenty miles began moving rapidly eastward. Then came reports from airplanes that Wambaix had been taken. Soon the capture of Harcourt was reported. From that on tidings came in rapid succession of villages falling before the Allied advance.

Selviigny, Caullery, Ligny, Montigny and Marets were quickly reached and passed, and soon the Allies were closing in on Cauchy and Bertry. Simultaneously, from the north it was reported that Escourt, the enemy was badly smashed and that the British and Americans stood on the threshold of the wide-open country.

It was at that time that the cavalry, which had been waiting, poured through the wide breach in the now shattered Hindenburg system out into the country beyond. Fast also pursued the Germans, killing many and rounding up a large number of prisoners.

Cavalry forces now are apparently west of the towns reported captured. The Allies having thus broken through, the Germans north and south for many miles are being endangered, for their lines are being turned. Retreats on even a broader scale than that now in progress may, therefore, be looked for.

Officers directing the attack were distinctly satisfied as the news came back in reports from airplanes and by runners, but finally one came back that showed better than anything else how completely the enemy had been defeated. This was a report from an air patrol that British infantry had been seen marching as if on parade in a column of four rows into and through the town of Bertry. The men were swinging along entirely unmolested by the enemy.

Another patrol brought word of the Germans fleeing in the greatest disorder as far east as Le Cateau. Enemy troops and transports, it was said, were streaming along the roads and over the fields trying to make their escape.

British Steadily Advance British troops are steadily advancing eastward astride the road from Cambrai to Le Cateau. The Escourt Canal, north of Cambrai, has been passed virtually along its entire length, and left far behind. In the fighting south of Cambrai the British have cleared the enemy from the last line of the Hindenburg system, which in this locality was extraordinarily strong.

Many French civilians have been rescued from recaptured towns. Five hundred were brought back to freedom from one town alone.

It was soon after the Germans broke and ran that fires began to break out in the whole district behind them and the ground rocked with terrific explosions as stores of ammunition were destroyed. Everything combustible in the area around Cauchy, Inchy, Le Cateau, St. Benin, St. Souplet, Vaux-Audigny and Bohain was fired, and since then towns and farms farther east have started burning.

The enemy apparently has spread his carnival of destruction both north and south. Airmen have reported "explosions are occurring all over the place one after another."

Latest reports saw the advance continuing rapidly.
