

"Blackfish" Run Ashore at Nantucket Island

New York.—One hundred and fifty "blackfish" (or about that number) ran ashore and were stranded on the beach of Nantucket Island the other day. This becomes more interesting when it is understood that blackfish are not fishes at all, but small whales from fifteen to forty feet long and weighing from one to three tons apiece. They were driven up on the beach by fishermen and allowed to die there—just for sport. No use was made of them. The huge carcasses simply rotted and poisoned the air. The meat of these whales was worth in the market twenty-five cents a pound. Their hides, for leather, were worth eight cents a pound. The oil derivable from their jaws (the finest known for certain lubricating purposes) was worth $8 a gallon. This is "conservation." Massachusetts style. Naturally, the United States Fisheries Bureau is indignant. So likewise the food administration. But what can they do about it? In 1879 1,500 blackfish ran ashore at Provincetown, near the tip of Cape Cod. They all went to waste. Nobody had the gumption to turn them to any useful account. The blackfish is a silly mammal, if one of a herd happens to run ashore, the others will follow it. Two or three men in a boat, getting outside of a bunch of them and banging on tin pans and shouting, can so frighten them that they will all rush for the beach and become hopelessly stranded. OUR ARMY CHEWS LESS, BUT LIKES CIGARETS Washington.—The big American Army in France is not chewing as much tobacco in proportion to its numbers as the old Regular Army, but is smoking an enormous number of cigars. The Quartermaster Corps is shipping to the overseas forces from 500,000,000 to 600,000,000 cigars a month. The younger men prefer cigars to any other tobacco.

GERMAN MUTILATES U. S. MILITARY BOOKS New York.—The police of Mount Vernon are looking for a German who walked into the Public Library there recently and mutilated eight books valued at about $100, bearing on American military power. They have a description of the man and his arrest is expected.
