MIDDLETOWN

Robert Weaver, who claims to live at Harrisburg, was ordered to the premises of Adam Hottstot, in South Wood street, Saturday afternoon, when it was said to have tried to entice Pearl and Esther Hottstot, five and seven-year-old daughters of Mr. Hottstot, away from home while they were playing in front of the house.

The uncle of the children, Edward Murray, forced Weaver away from the place when the frightened children called him from the house. Weaver is said to have claimed that the mother of the girls, who lives in Harrisburg, sent him for the children. Mr. and Hottstot have not been living together for several years.

Middletown went over the top in the fourth Liberty Liberty drive on Saturday afternoon. A meeting of the captains and lieutenants was held in Emaus street and when the report was turned in the mark of $376,000 was reached.

THRILLING SIDELIGHTS ON STATE'S FIGHTERS IN FRANCE

Harrisburg Represented in the Gallant 110th; Letters From the Front Give Inkling of Dangerous Work Well Done

In the Spanish-American war the "Fighting Tenth" Pennsylvania regiment won its honorable place in military annals and as the 110th Pennsylvania Regiment has been increased the luster of its achievements.

Colonel Tompkins, of the Regular army, has succeeded Colonel Kemp as commanding officer of the famous 110th Pennsylvania Regiment, whose record in the hard fighting on the western front has been the subject of many a magazine story and comment by military authorities.

Colonel Tompkins was received by the officers of the regiment on a certain day in August when he entered the room all stood at attention. "Gentlemen," said the Colonel, "I wish you wouldn't stand. It is I who should stand in your presence."

Quite a considerable number of men of Company M were killed in battle, among the latest reported being Private Meade Graham Withers, who was a battalion runner.

He refers in his last letter home to a comrade who had been killed in battle and says: "My heart was almost broken for I thought more of Al than I ever realized. My hand was the last one to touch him. I have been through a month's campaign, but I trust stronger than ever."

According to the Lattrobe Bulletin, on September 14th, Lieut. Col. W. W. Fetzer, of Milton, was killed by a German shell at headquarters when several others met death.
