MURDERERS TO POINT OUT SPOT

Continued from First Page. It is believed that the spot was in the pocket of the next day. Resuming their drive to Harrisburg, both young men say, they reached Idaville when they discovered they were short of gasoline. Returning to Carlisle, they spent almost all the $5.00 on gasoline and came to Harrisburg. They then drove up the river road to a point about a half mile north of the old Country Club lane, and after wrapping the body in an automobile robe, hid it in the bushes where it was found the next day. The revolver they threw in the river. This was about 2 o'clock Thursday morning.

They then drove about a mile further north on the river road, decided to go to Philadelphia, and drove by way of York to Philadelphia. At Philadelphia they decided to see the car, and Collins alone took it to George's Garage and salesroom in Broad street. There he gave the name of George J. Sherman, 22 Carlisle street, Gettysburg, and left the car. He was told to return the following day, but he confessed that he lost his nerve. Both men then returned to Gettysburg. Reinecker, to go to work at the butcher shop, and Collins at the Landis Tool Works in Waynesboro.

Collins was implicated through Detective White's postcard system as soon as County Detective Walters gave White the case to handle. White sent out cards bearing the description of Reinecker, a number of Bushman's car, and last Saturday morning received a telephone call from Gorson's garage, and learned that the automobile had been left there. White secured a description of the men, and found that it tallied with Collins. He already had suspected Collins of knowing something about the murder, for Collins told a brother-in-law of Bushman's, that he saw Bushman starting to Harrisburg in his automobile the night of the murder. Moreover, White learned that Collins had made threats to hit Bushman over the head with a hammer.

Wilson was arrested by Wilson Thursday night, and in an examination by White and Wilson yesterday, confessed the crime and implicated Reinecker, who was arrested at once. Both men then made statements in the Dauphin county jail last night.

YANKEES HURL HUNS BACK IN VERDUN DRIVE

In Face of Artillery and Machine Gun Fire Americans Repel Foe

Washington, Oct. 26.—Heavy fighting on the Verdun front is described in General Pershing's communique for Friday. Strong German offensive attacks east of the Meuse were repulsed everywhere except in the Belleu woods, where four successive assaults forced a partial withdrawal by the Americans. East of the Meuse the American lines were further advanced in the face of determined resistance.

On the Verdun front the battle has continued with violence east of the Meuse. Late yesterday our troops enlarged their important gains south of the Conservoye-Damillers road and captured completely the Bois d'Ormont. To-day the enemy counterattacked repeatedly with strong forces on the front from the Bois d'Ormont to the Bois d'Etrayes.

Yankees Fall Back Although supported by violent artillery and machine gun fire his attacks were repulsed with extremely heavy losses. Only in Bois Belleu did he succeed in slightly pushing back our line. At this point after three assaults had failed before the stubborn resistance of our troops, the German aviators brigaded with the draw from the eastern part of the wood. Hostile forces which attempted to penetrate our positions northwest of the Bois Belleu were driven back after a struggle lasting throughout the day.

Eleven enemy airplanes and one balloon were brought down by American aviators brigaded with the British from September 9 to September 22, the War Department was informed to-day through a Royal Flying Corps communique. British distinguished Service Crosses were awarded to Lieuts. G. A. Vaughn, Brooklyn; T. J. Herbert, Cleveland; M. L. Campbell, Wakeman, Ohio; L. A. Hamilton, Pittsfield, Mass., and J. A. Keating, Chicago.

Shoots Down Hun Plane Special mention is made in the communique of the bravery of Lieut. Vaughn, who, while on offensive patrol, was engaged by about fifteen airplanes, one of which he dived on and shot down in flames. He then attacked another which was seen to fall after he followed it down to 2,000 feet.

Other lieutenants mentioned as having brought down enemy planes included W. W. Lauer, Pittsburgh, and E. W. Springs, Lancaster, Pa.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY MONARCHY ABOUT TO CAPITULATE

"Safety First" Principle Prevails at Vienna and Budapest, Zurich Says

Paris, Oct. 26.—In well informed circles it is said that the renomination of Count Julius Andrássy as successor of Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, is, above all, important from the viewpoint of conclusion of peace and an application of the "safety first" principle in Austria. It is said peace at any price now is popular at Vienna and Budapest.

The Zurich correspondent of the Journal says the new foreign minister is understood to be a partisan of direct peace negotiations with the entente without recourse to the offices of President Wilson. He says the situation in Austria-Hungary is such that the monarchy soon will capitulate and throw itself on the mercy of the Allies. The Czechs now are masters of the situation at Prague. The Slovaks have decided to change the name of Pressburg to Wilsonville. The Ruthenians of Galicia have declared for a separate Ukrainian state comprising regions of Austria-Hungary inhabited by Ruthenians. It is reported that the king of the ancient Danubian monarchy of Hungary. The correspondent says that in Austria no notice is being taken of decisions arrived at by Berlin.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a young man, nineteen years of age, with a college education and have a good position and salary. I met a young lady whom I love deeply, and am sure my love is reciprocated. I would like to marry her, but her parents are opposed to the match. I have written them and explained my situation, but they are not willing to give their consent. I am very much distressed and do not know what to do. I am sure you will be able to give me some advice.

Continued from First Page. and of the faith in his ability to carry it through. The 112th Infantry comprises men from Harrisburg and Central Pennsylvania and the oil country.

"I believe that such acts as have been committed by the Boches in the past must result in their complete downfall. It is the putting forth every effort to hasten the day which will herald to the world that the power of the most colossal monster of dark deeds the world ever has known, and his coadjutors have been so completely beaten that they could not recover." The colonel said.

Harsh Words Mailed "List Only" "No, I am not too harsh, nor do these remarks apply to the people, but to the mad ideal that has governed or misled the world. I am troubled them. For the common folk of Germany I have no malice, and I do not forget them in my humble prayer. To knock this yoke from their necks is one of the objects of this war."

"Many of our comrades have given their lives, others limb and health, and these only add to our determination to push on to the faster and harder. Some few have sickened at the sights of the war, but the very greatest of mortals in the interest of humanity of the world and the like of which the world will never again witness."

"We start to-night on one of the greatest events of the year and long before you have received this hurried scrawl you will have read of it in the daily press. The sun will rise to-morrow on many cold forms that to-night are full of life and animation, for such is the fate of soldiers, and I want you all to know that your words of love and confidence have strengthened me for the fight."

Others letters and paragraphs in the dispatches have already told how the 112th, under Colonel Rickard, went bravely forth to battle the next day.

Little Talks by Beatrice Fairfax

LOVERS' QUARRELS. Half the letters that come to me relate to quarrels between people who are in love or who imagine themselves to be in love, or who were once in love.

They quarrel over everything, or nothing, as the case may be. Sometimes there are several people involved in the genuine or imaginary trouble, and sometimes the disagreement is a duet between "a lover and his lass."

Now all this trouble, and much of the same sort might have been saved by a little discretion and discipline. Love is like murder, it will out. Talking incessantly of the adored one is characteristic symptom of the tender passion and one that is provocative of endless misery.

If you must talk to someone about him talk to your mother or to some other person of whose affectionate interest you are assured. If you would "rather die than talk to your mother, as one poor child wrote to me, write everything you intend to say and burn your letter. This will have the effect of getting the subject off your mind, temporarily, and you run no risks with a possibly foolish confidant.

Jealousy is another stumbling block to the young man in love. Often he cannot see his inamorata speak to another man without suffering all the pangs of the inferno. His intelligence may point out that it is impossible for any girl not to have acquaintances, that very probably the young man she has just been speaking to is an old schoolmate and is utterly absorbed in a love affair of his own, but the mere sight of this young man raising his hat in passing drives the first swain to jealous frenzy, the girl can't understand why he is in this state, she resents his manner, he resents hers—and there is a very pretty quarrel about nothing at all.

Advice to the Lovelorn

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX SEEKS TO PROVE HIS LOVE DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am 22 and love a girl of 18. My long working hours are keeping me away from her; also I am not a good love-letter writer. I badly need your kindly advice. At our last meeting she said to her plainly, "I love you." She doubted me. I told her I had no experience in making love but was willing to do anything to show her the truth. If it was in my power, she said, "Yes, it is in your power, but I am not going to tell you what you should do, because if you would be too easy for you then." What is the thing she wants me to do for her?

UNHAPPY LOVER. I think you are extremely romantic, which is, of course, a desirable quality in a lover. Perhaps the girl you love sees this trait in you and is taking advantage of it. In an innocent couldn't possibly tell you what love letters she has in mind to impose on you, but I doubt if it is anything very severe. Have you tried sending her flowers or asking her to the theater? Persistence wins the day with many girls, unless there is some rival in the way. Do I understand that when you told her of your love you asked her to marry you? There could scarcely be a greater proof of love than that.

A DANGEROUS HABIT DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I have been going about with a young woman who is one year my senior. I am 21. I think a lot of this young woman, but a fault of hers is that she cannot resist the temptation to drink. I have made every effort to get her to give up this habit, as I don't think a girl who has a weakness for drink will make a capable wife. Will you kindly give me some advice as to how I could help her.

WORRIED. You are quite right. She must learn to resist this temptation, or she will be unfitted for any sort of life, married or single. Get some older person to give her a serious warning and explanation of what she is doing.

Drifts Into Misunderstanding. But girls after they have got into this kind of entanglement are often too much ashamed to ask for forgiveness, and they begin to act aloof and "stand offish," and the affair drifts into that stage of misunderstanding that is beyond the giving back part.

County Quotas for War Work Drive Ready

Central Pennsylvania Counties Asked to Contribute $800,000 to Great Drive

Headquarters for the Sixth Pennsylvania District of the United States War Campaign in this city to-day announced the quotas for the ten counties in the district as follows: Counties. Quotas Adams ..... $18,000 Cumberland ..... 55,000 Dauphin ..... 187,000 Franklin ..... 80,000 Juniata ..... 8,000 Lancaster ..... 245,000 Lebanon ..... 80,000 Mifflin ..... 24,000 Perry ..... 18,000 York ..... 137,000 Total ..... $800,000

"These of course, are the minimum quotas," said E. J. Stackpole, chairman of the district executive committee, this morning.

"In every county we expect returns far larger than the quotas set," the chairman went on. "The American army every day grows by leaps and bounds in France, North Russia and in Siberia, and every penny that can be spared will be needed to care for these men during the long, hard winter about setting in."

"New and Christian, Catholic and Protestant, are now combined in this great war work campaign, and it behooves every man and woman of whatever sect—or of no sect at all—to show his appreciation of the men who are making the supreme sacrifice," giving to the very last penny.
