

MONSTER NAVY GUNS AT FRONT MAKE HUN FREAK LOOK SILLY

Washington, Oct. 26. — Details of the achievement of the Navy Department in making available for use on the western front the great naval guns which press dispatches have reported to be hammering the German railway centers back of the Oise-Serre front, were made public last night by Secretary Daniels.

The navy guns, which have been in operation since September 15, originally were intended for new battle cruisers, but a change in the design of the vessels left the guns unavailable for that use.

STORM BREAKS ON WILSON'S PARTY CALL

read the President's statements, that he had known from Democratic Senators for the past six weeks that Mr. Wilson had promised the Democratic National Committee to make the appeal, but that he had qualified his promise by the condition that he would make it only in an emergency.

Republican leaders, too, called attention to the fact that Mr. Wilson cannot have believed that the election of a Republican House of Representatives could affect him adversely in the management of the war, for even if a Republican House were elected it would not meet until a year from next December, unless called by Mr. Wilson in extra session after next March, and not even the most hopeless pessimists doubt that President Wilson's splendid diplomacy, as shown in his negotiations with the German government, can fail to have brought that government to its knees long before the present Democratic Congress adjourns.

Ex-President Taft, member of the War Labor Board, upon being shown the President's political message, stated: "All that I can say is that I emphatically disagree with the President in his view of the situation. I hope to express my disagreement more fully later."

Not only will the ex-President have more to say upon the subject now than he has, but the President has come squarely to the front with a partisan plea, the Republican leaders will feel justified in entering the arena to the degree affected by the result of the election. To deny otherwise is to deny the facts of history," Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, stated.

The statement issued by Republican leaders in Congress follows: "Some time ago the President said 'Politics is adjourned.' Now, in the closing days of the campaign, he has turned the efforts of all parties for the Liberty Loan—now, when all public meetings have been given up owing to the influenza epidemic, the President sends out a direct party appeal calling upon his countrymen to vote for Democrats because they are Democrats without any reference to whether such a vote has been or are in favor of war measures and have a war record which deserves support."

Repudiates Ford Support "The voters of Michigan, to take a single example, are called upon to support Mr. Henry Ford—notorious for his advocacy of peace at any price, for his contemptuous allusions to the flag, for the exemption of his son from military service—the only son of a family of 16, who is blind and support the President. The President is quite ready to admit that Republicans are loyal enough to fight and as loyal as they are doing by the thousands; loyal enough to take up great loans and pay enormous taxes; loyal enough to furnish important men at no salary out of the pockets of the United States in Washington. But they are not loyal enough, in the President's opinion, to be trusted with any share in the government of the country or legislation for it."

"If the Republican party controls the House we can point out some of the things they will do. They will replace Mr. Dent, of Alabama, in the head of the military affairs committee with Mr. Julius Kahn, to whom the administration was obliged to turn for assistance to take up the first draft bill against Mr. Dent's opposition. They will put a Republican at the head of the ways and means committee, as in the case of the House, instead of Mr. Kitchin, of North Carolina, who voted against the war. They will give the country a speaker who did not oppose and would never oppose a draft bill and would never say, as Speaker Clark did, that there is precious little difference between a conscript and a convict."

Republicans Loyal to War "Although the Republicans of the House are in the minority, they cast more actual votes on seven great war measures than the Democratic majority was able to do. What is the record of the Senate? On 51 roll calls on war measures between April 6, 1917, and the 29th of May, 1918, the votes cast by Republicans in favor of such measures were 72 per cent, while only 67 per cent, of the votes cast on the Democratic side were in favor of such measures. Those were the President's own measures. Does that record look as if we had hampered him? The Republican party in Congress has supported the administration policies since the start with a unanimity and an absence of criticism unprecedented in party history."

There are some domestic questions where we should undoubtedly lead the administration. We should not, for example, fix a price on the farmer's wheat and leave the planters of the United States at the mercy of the question in which the Republican party believes thoroughly in economic preparation for the coming of peace and they are clearly of the opinion that the Congress of the United States should not be excluded from that great task."

American People's War "This is not the President's personal war. This is not the war of Congress. It is not the war of the Democratic or the Republican party. It is the war of the American people. It is more. It is the war of the spirit of the Allied powers, of the civilized world against the barbarism of Germany. In this great burden and responsibility the Republican party represents more than half the citizenship of the country demands its rightful share. "If the Republican party is entrusted with power in either or both Houses they will do everything possible to drive forward the war and hasten the day of victory. The President speaks of the necessity of telling the plain truth. That the Republican party in Congress has suppressed would do for their own friends to shield. And they will do more. They will give all the money to the last dollar necessary to sustain our armies and our fleets, but they will check the waste now going on of the money given by the most generous people on the face of the earth."

HUNS TAKEN BY AMERICANS

Lieutenant John W. Snyder, at attached to the 204th Sanitary Train, has sent a number of pictures to his mother, Mrs. Lucy C. Snyder, 1465 Makret street. Above are shown two views, one of German prisoners being marched to detention camps by American troops, and the other, Hun prisoners under guard, with a large crowd of Yankees outside the fences looking over their captives.

United War Work Campaign Program

The campaign begins on Monday morning, November 11, and ends at midnight on Monday, November 18. An approved by representatives of the government at Washington the $170,500,000 will be divided as follows:

Table listing campaign program items and amounts: Y. W. C. A. ($100,000,000), National Catholic War Council (including Knights of Columbus) ($30,000,000), War Camp Community Service ($15,000,000), Jewish Welfare Board ($3,500,000), American Library Association ($3,500,000), Salvation Army ($3,500,000). Any surplus will be divided pro rata.

THE "SALVATION DIVISION" In gratitude to his division and a few others for their heroic work in the Huns who had come within thirty-eight miles of Paris when the French Capital was menaced by the German troops some months ago, to a place where they no longer endangered that city, the Keystone Division and the other divisions concerned are referred to as "Salvation Divisions" by the people of the French metropolis, says Private Rowe B. Myers, of Kirklin, Ind., in a letter to his mother, Mrs. Fannie Myers, of this city.

Private Rowe's division, he states, has been at the front in longer continuous service than any other American division and, he adds, perhaps longer than any division of the Allies. Myers was formerly a member of the Pennsylvania National Guard, Headquarters Company, 11th Infantry.

SACRIFICED HIMSELF TO LET COMPANION ESCAPE Washington, Oct. 25. — An official account of the death of Lieutenant C. P. Ross, Titusville, Pa., the first observer of the Marine Balloon Corps in France to be killed in action, was made public yesterday by the War Department. Lieutenant Ross was directing a heavy artillery fire against the Germans when enemy airplanes appeared and opened fire on his balloon. He delayed jumping until his companion got away safely; then his parachute caught fire and he was killed instantly by the fall. One of the new balloons being established in the South will be named after Lieutenant Ross.

NEW YORK CITY CHECKS

SPREAD OF EPIDEMIC New York, Oct. 26.—Dr. Doyal N. Copeland, city health commissioner, announced the passing of an amendment to the sanitary code, which makes it a punishable offense for landlords to fail to live up to contracts regarding the furnishing of heat to their tenants. Dr. Copeland expressed the fear that holding of heat might be disastrous in spreading the influenza. Several thousand complaints on the subject were received by the Health Department which caused the passing of the amendment.

More German Atrocities

A captured British officer with his throat cut from ear to ear. This brutal job had been done with a very keen-edged instrument. It was not the work of a trench knife. The ghastly wound looked as though it had been made with a razor. It probably was. Before the war we imported annually half a million dollars' worth of razors from Germany.

Since the war began, razor factories in the United States have enjoyed a greatly increased business. Their employees are well-paid, contented Americans. This industry must be perpetuated. German competition in the days to come must suffer a handicap in proportion to German crimes of to-day.

When the dove of peace lights in the pool of blood, shall we go on buying German razors? It doesn't seem possible, but, Mr. Buyer, it's up to you.

No spark is just as bad as no gas. And a weak—uncertain—fitful spark is worse than the poorest grade of fuel. You're particular about your gas—why not about your spark. If you aren't getting the red hot sort of spark that makes your motor hum, you ought to come in and ask us Why. With Choir and Organist

The influenza epidemic has played havoc with musical enterprises in Pennsylvania. Mme. Louise Homer was to have sung in Central state towns, but owing to the epidemic her appearance has been postponed. The distinguished singer was booked for Chambersburg next month.

Death claimed a choir singer during the week. Eugene E. Baptist, for a number of years bass soloist at Fourth Street Church of God, passed away last Tuesday at his home in South Thirteenth street. He was 33 years old. Services were held this afternoon, but because of the ban on public funerals associates in the choir were not able to be present.

It is learned that several organists of moving picture theaters in the city, fearing an extension of the ban on amusements, have temporarily secured positions outside the state. It was said this afternoon that the organists likely would return when the epidemic ends and the doors of the movie places open again to the public. Harold Booth, organist at the Colonial, has been at the home of his wife's parents in the Cumberland Valley.

There scarcely has been any musical activity in town at all during the past two weeks. Both organ and voice teachers say many pupils have been ill, and not a few of the teachers have been caught with greater or lesser severity by the influenza wave.

George Sutton, baritone of the Pine Street Presbyterian Church choir, now is at Newport News in the service of the army.

Music dealers say sales have fallen off greatly during the past ten days. They attribute the change in conditions to the prevalence of the disease. Last year at this time stores held many orders for festival music, but all this has been forgotten until health authorities lift the ban and choir leaders and singers are able once more to figure on Advent and Christmas programs.

Mrs. F. D. Clark, lately organist at Trinity Lutheran Church, Chambersburg has been chosen organist at Second Reformed Church, succeeding Meach Stroup. Mrs. Clark, who was Miss Nellie McGann, formerly was organist at this church. She went to Chambersburg upon the
