DEMOCRATS WILL NOT DEFEND WILSON'S PLEA

After the election, as most of the Senators returned to their homes to-day.

Republican Senators to Fight On
The Republican Senators who remain in Washington including Senator Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the Republican Senatorial committee, and Senator Watson, of Indiana, and others who are not obliged to return home to fix their political fences, held a caucus. They decided to continue their criticism of the President's appeal for the election of a Democratic Congress outside the Senate chamber if the Democrats succeed in blocking discussion on the floor.

Representative Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, denied assertions made by Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, that Lincoln and McKinley both issued partisan appeals to the voters of the country to continue the Republican party in control, of Congress during American war.

Fess Replies to Tumulty
Mr. Fess' statement follows: "Mr. Tumulty's letter in response to the wish of the President, in which he attempts to justify the open letter of President Wilson requesting a Democratic Congress, falls of its purpose.

"First, No President in our history has made such a request to the American elector as the President. "Cases cited are a par with utterances of political leaders not clothed with the prestige of the power of the presidential office. Had such a request been made by Lincoln or McKinley, which never was made, they might have been free from the charge of an attempt to capitalize the patriotism of the country for partisan purposes, because, unlike President Wilson, they had a minority which attempted to block at every turn in their prosecution of the war.

"The first war Congress under Lincoln enacted three emergency war measures to supply funds for the speedy prosecution of the war. The Morrill act was the first and the Democrats voted almost solidly against it. The legal tender act, which provided further money power, was the second, and the vote stood ninety-three for it, all Republicans, and fifty-nine against, including all the Democrats who voted. The third outstanding war measure was the national bond act to supply a needed increase in currency. It was resisted by every Democrat in the Senate but three, while in the House the vote stood seventy-eight to sixty-four, almost a strict party vote.

Democrats in 1864 Sought Peace
"This opposition culminated in an official announcement by the Democratic party in national convention in 1864, in the midst of the war, by declaring the war a failure and a demand for a cessation of hostilities. This platform of six resolutions was confined to opposition to Mr. Lincoln and the war.

"McKinley in 1898 was confronted with an opposition minority too recent to be forgotten. It was well expressed in the vote on the fiscal measure to supply funds for the prosecution of the war, when out of 159 Democratic members of the Congress all but six voted against it.

"These facts should be examined in comparison with the conduct of the Republican minority in this war.

"In twenty-six measures there was not an adverse Republican vote cast.

"In all of the war measures the Republicans cast almost their solid vote."

Older Drafted Men to Be Given Modified Training
Washington, Oct. 30.—Older drafted men are to be put into shape for service through modified physical training exercises less arduous than the course designed for men between 21 and 31.

Camp commanders were ordered yesterday to train the older men gradually, especially in the early stages, so they will suffer no ill-effects from too strenuous exercise or overwork.

GOES TO CAMP LEE
George W. McHenry, one of the commissioners to take votes of Pennsylvania soldiers, will go to Camp Lee, Va. He was sworn in yesterday.

DORSETT SPEAKS FOR GOOD RDADS

how and where the money would be spent, but that doubt no longer exists, as it is well known that under the leadership of William C. Sproul, who is also a member of the Grange, and who without doubt will be our next Governor, the money will be honestly and wisely expended.

"The Grange favors a direct tax on all personal and corporate property. The corporate interests are willing to pay the bill for improved roads, but would much prefer that it be done by means of a bond issue, rather than by a direct tax.

"The farmers of Pennsylvania are beginning to understand the question, and many who voted against it five years ago will vote for it next Tuesday.

"There never was a time in the history of the state or nation when good roads were so much needed as now; and this need will become more acute during the era of reconstruction that will follow the war.

"Many counties throughout the state have recently authorized bond issues for constructing good roads. If a bond issue is a business proposition for a county it is doubly good for a state.

"Every great progressive movement has been made possible through the medium of bond issues. Cities have been built and improvements made; railroads have been built and equipped; and the present world war is being waged for God and humanity by money raised through bond issues.

"Up to date it is the most logical way to finance any large business enterprise.

"The Lincoln highway has paid for itself a hundred times during the past year; and had it been built with a concrete base its usefulness would have been increased one hundred fold.

"No one can tell how many lives were saved or how much the duration of the war was shortened by the supplies, ammunition and equipment transported over the Lincoln highway since the war began.

"The Hun was kept out of Paris and finally driven out of positions dangerous to the Allies because of the splendid road systems leading in and out of Paris and the surrounding country.

"Pennsylvania needs just such a system, or a better one; and a bond issue will be the beginning.

"Let every Pennsylvania farmer disabuse his mind of any thought of graft or political favors, and do what he knows to be best for his state and his country, both in times of war and peace.

"Let every Pennsylvania farmer

so to the polls on November 5 and cast his vote in favor of the road bond issue.

"E. B. DORSETT, Director, Bureau of Markets."

Furniture of Quality and Good Taste

Thirty-Six Handsome Styles of Dining Suites

Intelligent economy is practiced to best advantage by those who choose furniture of a kind that will last through the years — of the type that will stand the test of time and usage. Such is the character of the Dining Room Suites which we are now presenting in the Furniture Section.

Of the really noteworthy suites there are thirty-six in oak and mahogany. The designs include Wm. and Mary, Queen Anne, Adam, Chipendale and Sheraton. Each group shows little details of refinement upon which the government has now issued restrictions, and which cannot be duplicated again during the period of the war. Prices range from $150.00 to $370.00. Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, Fourth Floor.
