yourseit. We will be right back, he said.

He remained away longer than he had intended to, and when he came back his manner was so excited that his sister asked quickly, "What is it? What have you found?"

Not Too Hopeful

"Don't let yourself get agitated," he warned in a low voice. "And don't get too hopeful. We have found another chain in 'the link of evidence that will prove Butler's innocence, I hope. Yet we must not count to surely on the strength of it."

"What is it?" she whispered.
"We were looking at the window of the little room when we saw a fresh cut on the woodwork of the frame."

I turned my electric torch upon "I turned my electric torch upon it. It'is a groove plowed in the woodwork by a bullet fired from outside the house. That bullet," he added softly, "is the one by which Amos Chapin met his death. There, dear, keep calm!" as his sister caught his hand in hers. "I promised to tell you the truth, so I am keeping nothing back. Now, if we can make the Pole confess where he got his pistol and what he did with it afterward, we may have some it afterward, we may have some good news for John Butler in a day

"I guess we won't have to wait as long as that," Miller affirmed, "To my way of thinking"—
"Hush—sh!"

"Hush—sh!"
The warning was Elizabeth's and her manner was as unruffled as if she were not facing one of the most important moments of her young life.
