CIRCULATION OF FALSE RUMOR

clated Press dispatches Harrisburg was saved the ignominy of holding a premature peace celebration as the officials and officers of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce recognized that accuracy is the first consideration of the greatest news gathering association in the world.

Thousands Are Victimized

Even late into the evening thousands of people could hardly believe Secretary Lansing's statements had been hidden or thrown away by the paper carrying the sensational stories and the central part of the city was thronged with crowds awaiting the parade that, of course, never materialized.

Trolley cars and automobiles were almost hopelessly jammed in Market street, the lines at times extending from the subway to the Square. Thousands stood for hours waiting for later news which was given freely over the telephone leading into the Telegraph editorial rooms. The Telegraph's Associated Press reports finally were passed about until the excitement gradually died down.

Mayor to Give Signal

Many suburban towns were saved from premature celebrations by getting the Associated Press reports from the Telegraph by long distance telephone. The Telegraph answered scores of calls from points as far distant as seventy miles.

The Associated Press will give the details of the discussions as the events occur and the service will announce authoritatively when peace terms are forced upon the enemy. When this time arrives Mayor Kester will announce that Harrisburg is safe in celebrating the glorious victory that has been won by American and Allied armies on the field of battle.

Habitually Unreliable

It will be remembered that it was the unreliable McCormick-controlled newspapers which earlier in the week falsely worked the city into a fever pitch by a window bulletin on which it was stated that peace probably had been declared and that Secretary Lansing was going to announce the terms at 9 o'clock. The Associated Press dispatch that night prevented a parade for which bands had been engaged by patriotic citizens. It will be remembered that it was the same newspaper which announced the sailing of the Allied fleets through the Bosphorus, which feat has yet to occur; it will be remembered that it was the same newspaper that carried its usual correct version of the events of the day. It has generally been recognized for years that this association's stamp carries the weight of trust with every story.

CAMPAIGNERS ARE IN FINE FETTER

ings, prominent in Red Cross and National War Aid work, as vice-chairman; E. R. Eckenrode, secretary, and George W. Reilly, treasurer. In the city organization are: Arthur B. Starkey, who is conducting the industrial campaign; Paul Johnston, who is the indefatigable head of the ward committee; Fred Thornberry, Charles E. Pass, head of the fraternal organizations; J. F. Virgin, who is organizing the Victory boys and girls; Boyd M. Ogelsby and Mercer Tate, who have been active being organized in the city headquarters, there has been drawn into the organization campaigners, who have been getting ready for the local drive which begins next week.

Active County Campaigners

But the city campaigners have nothing on the county workers, who are being directed by Chairman E. S. Gerberich, of Middletown and his chief of staff, Recorder James E. Lentz, of Elizabethtown. These two efficient leaders are being assisted by Frank A. Robbins, head of the big Bethlehem plant at Steelton; Eara F. Hershey, of Hershey; Harry Horst, of Hummelstown; A. B. Cressler, of Middletown; H. W. Bowman, of Millersburg; John H. Kuntz, of Shellsville; Joseph L. Booser, of Penbrook; Arthur H. Baileys, county superintendent of schools, and his assistant, Prof. W. R. Zimmerman, who are organizing the Victory boys and girls. There is also a county advisory committee comprising Arthur B. Bacon, president of the Y. M. C. A., of Harrisburg; Mrs. John Reilly, representing the Y. W. C. A.; the Rev. J. C. Thompson, of Steelton, representing the Knights of Columbus; Morris Berman, of Middletown, representing the Jewish Welfare Board; William Jennings, the well-known Harrisburg banker, representing the War Camp Community Service; Miss Alice E. Eaton, representing the American Library Association and Captain M. Neilsen, representing the Salvation Army. Miss Eaton is also in charge of the Speakers' Bureau at district headquarters.

Boy Scouts Enthusiastic

One of the most interesting features of the work at the combined headquarters at the Gilbert building is the enthusiasm and energy of a large number of Boy Scouts who have been assisting in getting out the literature and posters. Chairman Gerberich and Recorder Lentz, who is also treasurer of the county campaign, have been scouring the county from one end to the other day and night. They expect to sleep after the campaign. Every town and hamlet and corner of the rural districts is being intensely organized with a view of putting Dauphin county not only over the top, but over any previous contribution for a welfare cause. It is expected there will be great rivalry starting with Steelton and right down through the line of county centers.

Chairman Stackpole Confident

District headquarters expresses great satisfaction over the splendid co-operation of the several county organizations, especially over the inspiring reports of activity in laying the ground work of the big drive beginning November 11. Chairman Stackpole expressed confidence in a tremendous over-subscription of the organization's quota of $800,000 for the district.

County Leaders Named

Chairman Gerberich has announced the following chairmen of the several towns and districts in Dauphin county:
