AMERICAN ARMY DRIVES ONWARD FOR NEW GAINS

Advance Along Entire Lines Despite Bad Weather Conditions

With the Amercan Forces on the Lorraine Front, Nov. 10. 5: 40 p. m.

—The second American Army this orning launched its initial attack in Lorraine. Its objectives were lim ited. The villages of St. Hilaire and Marcheville were captured, as also were a number of woods.

minent, an early cessation of hastilties was among the possibilities. This fact, however, only appeared to make the men more anxious to accomplish as much as possible against the enemy while he was deciding what resonse to make.

The resistance encountered was spirited on the whole, though consisting largely of machine gun activity. The terrain crossed and captured was on par with the most difficult ground the Americans have taken thus far. It gives them the most advantageous positions possible for a further advance.

The principal obstacle in the path of the Americans as they work northeast is a series of hills behind Chaumont-Devant-Damvillers, close to which place they already have pushed their line. The Americans have a halfeircle around the heights preparatory to encircling and outpinching them asthey have so frequently done in the last offensive. The American made things interesting for the enemy by advancing pretty much everywhere along their line. The enemy artillery fire was aimost exclusively from large calibre guns, indicating that he has withdrawn all his ighter pieces and is shelling from positions a great distance away.

Five American ambulances driven by mistake into the German lines northeast of Lion-Devant-Dun and were captured. This incident was witnessed by some comrades, who organized a rescue party and returned with the ambulances, four prisoners and three guns.

By evening the Americans were in complete control of both sides of the Meuse, and had in addition occupied Remoiville wood. They also crossed the irver at Mouson, thus making their lines on both sides complete from Villers-Devant-Mouzon southward.
