

NURSE SURVEY IS BEGUN HERE

War's Demand For Trained Women Is Very Heavy

NURSES ARE NEEDED
Peace or no peace, your services are needed by the American Red Cross. In order to get a correct census of nurses, both pupils undergraduate and graduate, the local Red Cross chapter has begun a nursing survey. Questionnaires which you are asked to fill out, are obtainable from Mrs. James I. Chamberlain, chairman of the Survey Committee of the Harrisburg chapter, American Red Cross, in the basement of the Public Library.

You will not be drafted! This is a census for war purposes!

Beginning this week, the Harrisburg chapter of the American Red Cross has commenced a survey of the nursing resources of this district in co-operation with the national nursing census undertaken by the national organization. Mrs. James I. Chamberlain will act as chairman of the Survey Committee.

The plan of the survey will be to locate every nurse who comes within the scope of the survey; to induce her to be recorded on a questionnaire; to impress on each community the necessity of meeting the nursing situation; to help the American Red Cross in its campaign to secure enrollments. To this end, a special committee will be detailed to register all questionnaires. Included in the survey will be graduate nurses, pupil nurses, ungraduate nurses, trained attendants, practical nurses, midwives, women who have taken Red Cross courses. All of these are invited to get into communication immediately with Mrs. James I. Chamberlain, chairman of the Survey Committee at Red Cross headquarters.

It is not intended that the nurses who fill the questionnaires obtainable at Red Cross Headquarters, will be subject to call for service. The idea is rather to gain an idea of the nursing resources of the country in order that when there is any further need, there can be more definite preparations made.

Pleads For Loyalty to Big War Effort; Pulpit Shows Grief

The Rev. Merton F. Fales occupied the pulpit of Westminster Presbyterian Church yesterday morning and evening by direction of Carlisle Presbytery. There were interested audiences present both morning and evening. All felt the absence of their pastor, the late Rev. Edwin E. Curtis, and reference to his passing out brought tears to many eyes. The pulpit had been draped in black as a sign of the congregation's sorrow. The morning sermon topic was "The Rainbow of God's Promise." The special music consisted of the singing of Dudley Buck's "Rock of Ages," by a quartet, Miss Wilson singing the identical solo, and Ashford's "My Task," sung by Augustus G. Shantz, tenor.

In the evening there was a plea for the United War Fund, the minister emphasizing the need of all persons, without respect to nationality or creed, contributing. He said there had been some question shown in certain quarters on account of the difference in creed. Mr. Fales said this should not be, and he pleaded, in the name of the Presbyterian Church, which is noted for its liberality, that the greatest support be given those who are engaged in the work of raising the big fund.

The activities at Westminster will be resumed this week. The Boy Scouts, Men's League, the midweek prayer service and other weekday church work are to proceed. The services will be held next Sunday, as usual. The announcement of who is to occupy the pulpit is to be made during the week.

Loyal Comrade Refuses to Leave Wounded Pal; Gives Life in the War

From the battle field of France to the little town of Indiana, Pennsylvania, comes a story of Damon and Pythias that is one of the finest stories this war has developed, in the opinion of the people of that borough. Lieutenant William Caldwell, of Armagh, is reported dead from wounds, while Lieutenant Charles Simpson, is among those slain on the field of battle.

Both were members of Company F of the 11th Infantry, and in the heavy fighting in which Caldwell fell wounded, the company was ordered to retire. Simpson saw his comrade fall and refused to fall back, saying to his platoon:

"I will never retreat as long as my friend Caldwell lies on the ground. So he ran a mile, obtained a stretcher and then, assisted by Frank Compton and three other boys of Indiana, carried Caldwell through shell fire for three miles to a place of safety. For this brave act Simpson was promoted to a commission, and in the next charge he fell mortally wounded dying before he could be taken to a hospital.

Gen. Muir Goes Higher; Keystone Division Now Commanded by Gen. Hay

Major Charles Muir, who succeeded General Charles M. Clement in command of the Twenty-eighth Division, has been promoted to be commander of the new Fourth Corps in Europe. His successor is Major General William H. Hay. This change was reported about ten days ago, but the War Department would not confirm it at the time. Major General Joseph E. Kuhn still is in command of the Seventy-ninth National Army Division, which was trained at Camp Meade.

The Twenty-eighth is the Pennsylvania Division, which will go down in the history of the war as the American unit which met the shock of the tremendous Prussian drive toward Paris in mid-July and turned the tide of battle which ended today in Germany's defeat.

Christmas Parcels For Boys in France Being Prepared by Red Cross

If you are one of those few doubtful Thomases who believe Harrisburg boys are lagging on the front line, take a little journey to the Red Cross Christmas parcel room next to the Hotel Senate in Market street. From the lips of fond mother you will hear the tales of bravery recounted by these courageous laddies and your attitude will be changed to one of rejoicing over the glorious victories being won through the help of soldiers who trod the streets of Harrisburg as civilians last year and before that time.

Volunteer workers at the parcel headquarters hear hundreds of tales of how the boys are pushing ahead, from the lips of mothers and sweethearts when these come in to have their Christmas parcels for the soldiers overseas inspected. "My boy was in the fighting at Chateau Thierry," said a white-haired mother to a worker this morning. "He said he never felt so good in his life as when he was running after those German God bless him!" and there were tears glistening in her eyes.

The workers have been kept very busy examining the Christmas parcels, ever since the opening of the headquarters last Monday. Filled to the limit with Christmas goodies and the practical things, too, for the boys, the parcels are brought to the headquarters where they are inspected, sealed, the label is affixed and they are sent under Red Cross supervision to their French destination.

Harrisburg Officer in Some Hard Fighting

Lieutenant Albert H. Stackpole, serving with Battery A, One Hundred and Thirtieth Field Artillery, in France, has been in the hard fighting since General Pershing began his cleanup with the St. Mihiel salient. He says in a letter to the home folks received yesterday:

"The news of the last three days has been wonderful. The drive began on the twelfth, you know, and we were right there in the middle of things. My battery came out absolutely unscathed, but Allen Douglas (a fellow officer) who has been attached to B battery was killed in the morning of the attack, while his battery was following the infantry over, but his battery was engaged and got our ladders up in time."

Lieutenant Stackpole tells of the strenuous fighting which followed in which his battery was engaged and the killing of a number of his friends. "After five days of intense work in the 'Toul affair,' he adds, 'we hiked five nights straight—and cold nights at that. Had one day's rest, and then started the Argonne push. We were up there for ten days. Two infantry divisions were successively in front of us until finally we lost so many horses that it was impossible to go ahead. So they hauled us out and hiked us over here where we can get our breath and become reorganized. I lost all track of days for a while—just existed—water was an unknown quantity; no dugouts, just holes in the ground, and trying to keep the artillery in connection with the doughboys. As I said, it was a marvelous experience, but terrible. At present we're in a very great place—high up in the hills—where we can look down and see brother Boche in his every movement. The captain and I with all the rest are living in German dugouts which were all fixed up for the winter. Fritzies must have hated to give them up."

Woman Just Knew Peace Would Follow Election of a Republican Congress

At 6.20 o'clock this morning after the whistles of the city had renewed their din, the telephone bell rang in the editorial room of the Telegraph. A woman's voice inquired as to whether or not at that hour there were any new developments to cause the resumption of signals of the signing of the armistice. She was told the terms of the armistice had not yet been made public and that the blowing of the whistles probably was due to the arrival of the day crews who were not to be outdone by their fellow toilers of the night.

"I just felt," she said, "the signing of the armistice would quickly follow the election of a Republican Congress. Isn't it just grand there is to be no more fighting?"

Pennsylvania, to have met in Pine Street Presbyterian Church, November 22 to 25, and postponed by reason of the influenza epidemic, will be held Tuesday to Friday, December 10 to 13, in Pine Street Church. There probably will be 200 commissioners in attendance and much business of peculiar interest to the denomination will be transacted.

Notices have been sent to the commissioners chosen by Presbyteries of the change of date and preparations interrupted by the influenza epidemic are in progress for the entertainment of the delegates. Each congregation will entertain a quota of the visitors.

Community Kitchens Success in London

London.—As a fuel-economizing measure the food ministry has requested English households to forego the luxury of individual cooking fires this winter and patronize the national kitchen wherever available. More than 600 of these hot meat clearing houses already have been established throughout the kingdom, and a large extension of the system is planned. More than 1,000,000 portions are being dispensed by them daily.

Housewives take their food, have it cooked and call for it in time for dinner. A small fee is charged for the cooking. A restaurant usually is operated in connection with the kitchen.

Kreider Asks Support For United War Fund Drive; Tells of Soldiers' Needs

A. S. Kreider congressman from the Eighteenth District, has heartily expressed his approval of the United War Work Fund, for which $170,500,000 will be raised during the campaign being waged the next two weeks. Mr. Kreider joins with the executive committee in an appeal for the support of the fund.

Mr. Kreider's endorsement of the United War Work Campaign follows: "Permit me, through your valuable columns to say a word in behalf of the organizations in whose interest a combined drive has been authorized and is now being conducted to secure funds with which to continue the splendid work that has been done by these organizations and which is so much appreciated and has proven such a blessing to our boys engaged in this most cruel and terrible of all wars."

"As the Representative of our District, I am, perhaps, in a little closer touch with the boys than some of us, as they frequently come to me for advice, counsel and assistance and they never come too often, so that I am in a position to know how much they appreciate the work of these Associations and those whose contributions make the work possible.

"Allow me to suggest that a contribution to this fund forms the best possible avenue through which we may express to our boys our appreciation of the sacrifice they are making and the splendid work they are doing and our desire to aid, comfort and cheer them.

"It is true, many demands are made on us for the prosecution of the war. The Government levies taxes which we pay, I hope gladly; the Government has asked us to buy Thrift Stamps, War Savings Stamps and Liberty Bonds, which we did, but this is an investment on which we draw a reasonable amount of interest and which is not a sacrifice to many of us; but a contribution to this fund is a direct contribution to the boys themselves, prompted by sentiment, a sense of gratitude, esteem and love for them.

"Can anyone underestimate the effect and influence on our boys, when they know we are with them in heart and soul, and our love for them finds expression, not only in high-sounding words, classical phraseology, but in a contribution of actual and real money which we have earned with our own hands with a loving heart and with the thought and hope that it may in some way alleviate the hardships and deprivations which they have taken upon themselves for our sake.

"Let us one and all give and support this movement, not grudgingly, or of necessity, but freely and cheerfully with a loving heart and mind and which we give freely and gladly for their sake."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WOMEN'S WORK IN THE EMERGENCY HOSPITAL

To the Editor of the Telegraph: Now that the Emergency Hospital at Fifth and Seneca streets has closed, I wish to call attention to the splendid work rendered there by women of Harrisburg during the influenza epidemic. Nurses, teachers, stenographers, housekeepers, business women, High School girls, Red Cross aids and others gave the full measure of strength and devotion to the care of the sick. The public school teachers deserve especial mention. They outnumbered all other professions and by their faithful attendance and efficient service made possible the smooth running of the Hospital.

Work in the kitchen and in the wards entailed long hours, arduous labor and grave risk of catching influenza, pneumonia and certain other dread diseases with which some of the patients were afflicted. The most revolting tasks were performed with a smile. Everything was done to promote cheerfulness. The orphaned babies in the children's ward were mothered with loving care. The entire hospital was pervaded with an atmosphere of willing service and reflected the spirit of the Great Physician who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Women's Winter Coats of Distinctive Styles Carefully Tailored and Moderate in Price

There are scores of models to delight in and choose from—and, in addition to their smart lines, they possess a perfection of tailored shaping that is not to be found in the average store. The styles that have been gathered for this special November coat event are all developed of the finest wools—Silvertones, Wool Velours, Duotones, Normandy Cloth and other high-grade weaves—and they are lined, some to the waist, but most of them right to the hem, of long-wearing silks

With Fur or Self Finished Collars

Some are finished with fur, some are tailor-stitched, some are trimmed with buttons and others are of the plain, all enveloping type. Loose, belted styles, with large convertible collars and patch or slip pockets, are to be found among those of the sturdier wools, which so many women prefer to-day.

The most favored colors are brown, Navy, plum, Burgundy, Delphine, khaki and black. All sizes. Prices are $35.00, $37.50, $39.50, $42.50, $45.00 to $65.00.
