DAUPHIN WATER CASES ARE HEARD

Public Service Commissioners to Get Briefs in Prolonged Hummelstown Case

Complaints against water rates of long standing in the Hummelstown district and against service in the Progress and Penbrook sections of Dauphin county were submitted to the Public Service Commission today together with numerous others from about the state. Five commissioners held hearings and will be here until Friday night. To-morrow the Harrisburg Railways fare increase will be heard.

The Hummelstown water rates, which have been pending since the summer of 1917, were finally submitted and the briefs will be sent to Commissioner James Alcorn. This is one of the big water cases in this section and involves valuation. The complaints against the water companies serving Penbrook and Progress in which it is alleged that the supplies are inadequate and that fire protection is not sufficient; that water has been turned off without enough warning and other conditions were submitted to Commissioner John S. Riling.

The Commission to-day resumed hearings with one of the largest lists before it. The Reading-Allentown and, Reading Tractfor; Reynoldsville Electric and Sinking Springs Water cases were postponed.

Among his many reminiscences are those of his first vote for Zachary Taylor for president of the United States and William F. Johnston as governor of Pennsylvania. Never since then has he missed voting the national or state ticket, always loyal to the Whig and afterward to the Republican party. Last week his appearance at the poils was marked with much interest. Mr. Price is in excellent health and is vitally interested in the events of the day. His only affliction is a partial blindness, which makes it impossible for him to read, but many friends are willing to do that for him, and he never forgets what he has once heard.
