THE HEART BREAKER

A REAL AMERICAN LOVE STORY
By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

(Copyright, 1918, Star Co.)
CHAPTER III.
Dinner in the Brent household was a simple affair, yet the table was always daintily set, and the glass silver and china that had been a part of Mrs. Brent's wedding furnishings shone and glistened brightly.

Mrs. Higgins did not sit at the head or foot of the table. She insisted that these seats be occupied by the two sisters. But she presided from her place at the side of the board with a quiet dignity that proved her birth and breeding.

Her years as a housekeeper and companion had not made her forget that she was also a lady.

She was not much of a talker, but listened with evident interest as the two girls chatted. She asked no questions until Honora mentioned that Arthur Bruce was coming to take them driving.

"We are to be ready at 8 o'clock," she added.

Mrs. Higgins looked up anxiously. "You two girls are not going alone with him, are you?" she queried.

"Oh, no," Honora replied. "Mrs. Bruce will accompany us."

"I am glad," Mrs. Higgins approved. "I would not want you to go without a chaperon."

Mildred laughed scornfully. "I really fail to see why we should need a chaperon when we two girls are together," she argued. "I can understand why it might not be the proper thing for a young girl to take a night ride alone with some man she does not know well. But surely there can be no possible impropriety in two girls riding with a man whom they have known for years."

Old-Fashioned Ideas
"Well—perhaps I am old-fashioned, but I think it looks rather queer, my dear," Mrs. Higgins tried to explain.

"Who's going to see us?" Mildred demanded. "However," with a light laugh, "there's no use in fussing about it now. For Mrs. Bruce is going. Honora," turning to her sister, "why did you ask to sit on the back seat with Mrs. Bruce? Do you really mean that you prefer sitting there? Won't it be rather slow music for you? Wouldn't you rather be in front with Arthur?"

"I like Mrs. Bruce very much," Honora evaded. "I just suggested my sitting here for a time. It will be pleasant for Arthur to have a girl in front with him."

"But you might have been that girl," Mildred reminded her. "Honora did not reply. In her heart she was wondering if Arthur would by any chance have suggested her occupying the place by him. Then, as she recollected the look in his eyes when he saw Mildred coming up the path this afternoon, she sighed inaudibly. Of course he would want Mildred by him!"

Yet it had not been consideration for her sister that had made Honora Brent propose that she herself be next to Mrs. Bruce. It had been a desire to spare Arthur the painful knowledge that Mildred had been disappointed or chagrined at the knowledge that his mother was to accompany them upon their jaunt.

For the older sister did not feel at all sure that Mildred—pretty and willful—cared any more for Arthur Bruce than for any one of the various young men whom she knew. The two girls and Arthur had always been good friends. Since his return to Fairlands from college Honora had seen signs that the man's interest in her attractive little sister might develop into something warmer than mere friendship.

Her suspicions along this line increased as she watched the pair on the front seat during the moonlight drive across the river and up the valley.

Mrs. Bruce was an agreeable

Major Gray Coming to Tell How Susquehanna River Can Be Deepened

Major William B. Gray, noted engineer who made the Mohawk river navigable, will address a public meeting to-morrow evening at the Technical High school on deepening the Susquehanna river in order to bring big seagoing vessels up to the river. R. A. Zentmyer, chairman of the State Water Supply Commission, who has made a careful study of the Susquehanna, will speak also.

It is Major Gray's purpose to return to Harrisburg after he leaves the Army to set going a project for deepening the river. The meeting to-morrow evening will be free and of a purely educational nature. It is being held under the auspices of the Harrisburg Rotary Club and is endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce. The Engineers' Club will have a large representation. The Kiwanis Club and all other organizations interested have been invited and the general public will be welcome. There will be no charge and no effort to raise money.

Major Gray will come to Harrisburg by special permission of the War Department and will bring with him much interesting information on the possibilities of making the Susquehanna navigable.

Proposed to Erect Bridge as Memorial

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—Creation of an heroic monument to Pennsylvania's soldiers in the great war, by making the proposed Delaware river bridge between this city and Camden a striking architectural and artistic connection, is proposed by John T. Winarim, noted Philadelphia architect and member of the Pennsylvania Bridge Commission.

The cost of the structure will not, thereby, be increased to any appreciable extent, Mr. Winarim says, since the use of concrete as a material readily susceptible to molding will be ideal. He declares that Philadelphia should not let slip from its grasp this unusual opportunity of erecting a bridge that shall stand forever as one of the most beautiful and finest in the world.

Would Have French Aid
In his sketch, Mr. Winarim has, in a sweeping manner, depicted the brave sacrifices and emblazoned the high democratic principles which governed the mobilization of nearly two and a half millions of Americans in France to fight and die, if necessary, for the downfall of militarism and the persistence of freedom. He proposed that France be invited to send to this city a French artist of repute to collaborate with masters of this state in perfecting the idea in detail.

The greater part of the reconstruction work would be elaborated upon the plans, of which one would stand at either side of the channel. Their massive proportions are well calculated to lend themselves to artistry of a noble and daring nature, embracing the purest aims of the Allies in the unparalleled world struggle.

Harry S. McDevitt, Well Fitted For Place, to Be Next Private Secretary

General gratification was expressed on Capitol Hill to-day when it became known that in all human probability Harry S. McDevitt, deputy auditor general, would be the private secretary to Governor-elect William C. Sproul. He will succeed William H. Ball immediately upon the inauguration of a deputy auditor general.

Mr. McDevitt, who is an old newspaperman, was assistant executive controller under John K. Tener and made a statewide reputation by his studies of the state government for the Economy and Efficiency Commission. He made a report in the last two sessions, that of 1917 being considered the most masterly of the kind, and drafted a number of measures which were passed by the Legislature as in line with the desire for a better business system. He was appointed a deputy auditor general by Charles A. Snyder and has acted as his counsel in a number of actions.

While Mr. McDevitt is a lawyer, he is also a student of governmental problems, and will have his own system in the executive department.

It was reported at first that he would have preferred to become a deputy attorney general, but late word from Philadelphia that Senator Sproul, who left campaign details to him, offered him the place of private secretary and that he will accept.

Washington Repudiates Any Threat to Germany

Washington, Nov. 18.—It was stated authoritatively last night that Germany has not been informed by the United States government that the Russian Bolshevik representatives are received in Berlin, as reported from Copenhagen.

No reference has been made to the Russian Bolsheviks in any of the diplomatic correspondence between Washington and Berlin. It is said, however, that the Russian government has informed that the maintenance of law and order is a prerequisite of the armistice.

French Indemnity at $68,000,000,000

Paris, Nov. 18.—Germany's debt to France is estimated at $40,000,000,000 francs (about $68,000,000,000) by Le Matin in an editorial. The newspaper apportions the debt as follows: Return of the indemnity of 1871 with interest, 69,000,000,000 francs; expenses in the present war, 140,000,000,000 francs, and reparation for damages, 100,000,000,000 francs.

Le Matin declares that France must obtain acknowledgment of the debt before examining the way in which it is to be paid. France wants no indemnity profit, but all Frenchmen want lawful reparation.

A German answer, it adds, should return to the Allies a minimum of 7,000,000 tons of shipping in payment for that destroyed in the war, but they have at their disposal only 2,000,000 tons. Consequently the delivery of the entire German-Austrian merchant marine would constitute only half reparation.

WIVES LEFT BEHIND

London, Nov. 18.—The former German empress and wife of the former German Crown Prince, will leave for Holland in a few days on a special train provided by the Workmen and Soldiers' Council, according to Potsdam reports received at Copenhagen by the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph.
