City Helps Police Pay For New Storm Overcoats; Coppers to Wear Puttees

Military will be the tone of the police department uniforms when the latest ordered accoutrements arrive, according to information given out by County Recorder and chief of police, this morning.

In the first place, the overcoats have arrived. Four huge boxes containing the great storm coats were hauled to the police station to-day and will be distributed at once. It is likely that they will make their first formal appearance on Thanksgiving Day, according to the time-honored tradition of the department. The coats were furnished by N. Snellenberger & Company, of Philadelphia. The coats are "daisies," according to "Dorey" Fehlielsen, desk man, who was one of the first policemen to try one. They are cut military style, double-breasted, with two rows of brass buttons on the front, two brass buttons on the belt in the back and slashed pockets, containing blackjack sockets.

Dark gray is the color of the coats, and they make a distinguished appearance with the dark gray whipcord of the new uniforms. The cost of the new uniforms, $25 of which was appropriated from the surplus left from the salaries of the seven patrolmen who are at war. Half these men's salaries go to their wives, the remainder furnishing a comfortable surplus for the overcoats. It is the first time council has aided the police to purchase any part of their uniforms, and was a much-needed boost to the patrolmen who have paid for new uniforms recently.

The traffic officers and ambulance chauffeurs wear belted mackinaws. Leather puttees for all the patrolmen, and military breeches, have been ordered. They are the final habiliments which will make Harrisburg policemen the finest uniformed men in the state. Council is buying the puttees as the men are buying the breeches.

Two Boys Arrested For Breaking Into Homes

It is likely that Earl Geise, aged 14, and Howard Houck, aged 15, arrested late last night by Detective Harry C. White, of the White Detective Agency, on the charge of breaking into and wrecking the summer homes of John E. Fox, city solicitor, and William Pearson, supreme court prothonotary, will give a hearing Monday. White secured a full confession from Geise, it is said.

The summer homes, which are near New Cumberland, were almost completely wrecked so far as the interiors are concerned. Furniture and windows were smashed, furnishings were smeared with mud, ink and mud were thrown about the walls and hardwood floors. Tapestries were torn from the walls, and an expensive piano in the Fox home was irretrievably damaged. The damage will exceed $1,000. The entrance was gained by blowing holes through shutters with a shotgun and wrenching them open with a wrench.

COUNTY TOWNS GO FAR OVER QUOTAS

Chairman Gerberich and Recorder Lentz Continue to Receive Good Reports

Reports continue to come in from outlying districts running up the war work subscriptions throughout the country.

Today the Rev. A. R. King, chairman of the Hummelstown district, notified the county headquarters that his district has gone over the top and that Rutherford Heights did especially well, contributing $302.50 in cash and $129 in pledges. Professor S. C. Beitzel, of Halifax, announces that his committee has been successful in topping the quota set for that district, while chairman Earl K. Romberger, of Elizabethtown, has a 60 per cent over-subscription, raising $1,000 where $400 was asked. The county organization is pronounced the best ever engaged in any war work drive. It was in charge of E. S. Gerberich, of Middletown, as county chairman, ably assisted by County Recorder James E. Lentz. Chairman Gerberich has had much experience in campaigns, having engineered several of the Liberty loan drives in his home district, and took to the bigger job of county organization, an executive ability tested by years in experience and a rare capacity for hard work. Mr. Lentz, a former lieutenant, having a wider acquaintance throughout the county as a whole than any other man at headquarters.

With Choir and Organist

Worshippers at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church last Sunday heard for the first time the beautiful music of Rachmaninoff's new patriotic anthem, "Glory to Him, Our God Who Gave Us Freedom." The youthful voices in the vested choir added fervor to the rendition.

Prof. J. Fred Wolfe, who once directed the Harrisburg Choral Society, is to play on the great organ at Wilson College, Chambersburg, this evening. The program is to be purely Bach, of which Prof. Wolfe probably is the best-known American exponent.

At Westminster Presbyterian Church to-morrow the special music is to be Barnby's "Crossing the Bar" and the well-known "St. Christopher," both to be sung as duets arranged for soprano and baritone voices.

Franklin G. Williams, tenor, is to sing Dudley Buck's "Remember Now Thy Creator" at Reformed Salem Church to-morrow morning.

A feature of to-morrow evening's musical service at Market Square Presbyterian Church will be Gwilym Watkins' singing of Davies' "The Pilgrim."

Mendelssohn's magnificent work, "I Waited For the Lord," is to be sung as a duet by Masters Merrill Shepherd and Ross Paul at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church to-morrow evening.

There are to be two soprano soloists heard at to-morrow's service at the Fourth Reformed Church, Miss Amy Burd is to sing Randeberger's "Save Me, O God," in the evening. Miss Helen Lightner will give "Behold, God Is Mighty," at the Sunday school service.

Edwin B. Wase, organist at Augsburg Lutheran Church, is to play the Gaultmair "Funeral March and Hymn of the Seraphs" as the prelude to the evening service to-morrow. There are few organs outside of the great cities that are adequate to the demands of this composition as the great Frenchman planned it. It is remembered that he declined to play it on many occasions in his tour of America, explaining that the instruments did not contain the necessary combinations to emphasize its requirements.

How I Keep My Prices Sensible

Women who like really smart things to wear know by sad experience that they usually cost much more than clothing of about the same quality but of less distinctive style.

Here is where the buyer comes in. The responsibility of selecting high style garments can be entrusted only to people of experience and proved good judgment, and such people command very high salaries.

By acting as my own buyer I not only save the expense of a high salaried employe, but I am able to use to the best advantage my knowledge of the tastes and requirements of my many friends and customers.
