

HEAVY SALE OF TICKETS FOR TURKEY DAY GAME BETWEEN TECH AND STEELTON HIGH

Turkey Day Battle Big Job For Cockill's Steelton Team

To say that Tech is High school champion of Pennsylvania tells but half the story. Experts who look the teams all over are confident that Harrisburg Tech could lick anything in this broad land and her class. And that she could take care of the average college team is a certainty. No one in these regions ever saw such a perfect machine and what George Cockill will be able to do with such proficient athletes next Thursday, is making every tongue wag. Cockill has a way of handing out unexpected jolts, and he may spring one on Turkey Day, but it will take some magic.

The results of games this year is so vastly different that one can hardly see how Steelton can make a goal, for she has only scored 32 points so far against her enemy's 93, while Tech has busted all records with a total of 381 against her foe's measly 3. This shows that:

Carlisle	6	Steelton	6
Millersville	27	Steelton	0
Stevens Trade	0	Steelton	19
Lebanon	53	Steelton	0
Williamsport	7	Steelton	7
Total	93	Steelton	32
Mt. Carmel	0	Tech	33
Lebanon	0	Tech	13

Tickets were going like hot cakes today at Harry Messersmith's store on Market street. They cost 55 cents and permit the owner to go through the gate immediately instead of waiting in line. School children are asked only 30 cents. A lineup of each team was sent out to-day with the numbers to be worn on Thursday, so that each player may be identified. A prospective roster would do well to cut this out, although the amazing fine programs will, of course, print the list.

"Steelton Team Is Game" Says Tech Correspondent

With a record score of 381 points in six contests, Tech will play what may be the final contest of the season when the Maroon lines up against Steelton Thursday for the Thanksgiving contest. Tech is picked to win, but because of the numerous cancellations, Steelton's ability is not well known. Cockill's clan made at least one good showing when they went to Williamsport recently and played a 7 to 7 tie with the Leocoming county lads.

There has been considerable talk about post-season contests, but it is likely that the final game will be the Steelton battle. Greensburg canceled because of the epidemic, and then according to reports, took on an easier team. If these reports, current among the Tech students, are true, it was a poor piece of sportsmanship on the part of the westerners. Tech took its beating when Greensburg was state champion, and the team was now anxious to give a record.

Then there has been talk of playing a champion from some other state. But where is there a team in the state of New Jersey that is strong enough to make the trip to Harrisburg for the championship? Tech will play the guarantee, and has the eleven, but no one to play. All dressed up, and no where to go, summarizes the situation.

Then the Middletown Aviators are mentioned for another contest. Of course they would put up a good strong game against Tech. Tech defeated them on their own grounds several weeks ago by four touchdowns. These soldiers are men, with more brawn and ace than the Tech boys. The latter's arm and limb be risked against the heavier men, when Tech can well rest on its present laurels?

There may be lots of talk, but chances are that if you want to see the Tech team in action, you had better reserve a seat at Messersmith's for the Steelton game on Thursday. Tech has a champion

Harrisburg Wants Good Officials Turkey Day

Great interest will be taken in the officials of Turkey Day battle here because this season has resulted in many brutal football contests which will hurt the game if not checked. Tarsus was badly pumelled by West Enders, so much that Tarsus refused to play another game for the city championship. Penn beat up Swarthmore. The Middletown Aviation chaps were treated awful rough by Lebanon High School on Saturday. Middletown had to beat not only the players but the officials. Hughes, the stout Aviation guard, was carried off the field badly injured, and is suffering now in the hospital.

Lid Lifted From Building

The decision of the Council of National Defense at Washington to lift the ban on building operations will be responded to in Harrisburg as well as in other communities.

The federal restrictions have found this city, and many others, unable to provide the housing facilities needed to accommodate the greatly increased number of workers due to the great industrial activities.

We have had to makeshift in many ways, to provide housing for our people, the restrictions being such as have made it impossible even to reconstruct old buildings. The result has been congestion in many quarters.

Now that the war is over there will be an unprecedented demand for all kinds of building material. In the United States 600,000 buildings are required. Millions of houses are needed in Europe.

Begin to build now before the rush starts.

We are prepared to give you figures on any amount of lumber.

St. Mary's Keen to Meet Tech or the Aviation Huskies

The manager of St. Mary's Catholic Club team at Steelton sent a challenge to-day to Tech High and Middletown Aviation for a game on Saturday at Cottage Hill, the receipt of which are to be given to the Red Cross. The manager said that if it were not agreeable for either of these teams to go there that St. Mary's would jog to the other's home field. If this Saturday is not convenient St. Mary's is willing to take on the foe some later date and he thinks inasmuch as Tech trimmed the Aviators that the latter team should respond. No reply to the challenge had been received to-day up to noon.

Pittsburgh Pipe Dream Caused Change in Baseball Rules

Many a baseball fan has been puzzled to understand why only one pitcher is allowed to pitch in a game. The answer is to be found in the story which is now to be told by the man who made the rule and runs as follows:

Pittsburgh and Boston were billed for an important series back in 1893. George Moreland, then an official of the Pirates, kept the boxes of balls in a safe and had exclusive charge of the umpire. One day for an experiment he took all but one of the balls and put them on ice. He didn't remove the cover or break the seal.

The next afternoon, the day of the big series, he went up to Al Buckenberger, the Pirate manager. "Al, I had a dream last night," he said. "I dreamed that Nichols was pitching for the Beane's and that he went to bat first. Smith singled, Donovan sacrificed and Stencil singled, scoring the only run of the game. We went to bat first, sent 'em home and won the game."

Buckenberger thought a moment, then said: "I'll follow that tip to-day. There's nothing in the rules against the home team batting first."

"Now, remember," cautioned Moreland. "Tell the boys I dreamed that Smith singled, Donovan sacrificed and Stencil singled. Then that Jake Beckley fouled the ball over the fence. It won't come true unless it is all followed."

Pittsburgh went to bat first, much to the surprise of the fans, and Beckley fouled the only ball that hadn't been placed on ice. The umpire tore off the cover and threw it to Nichols, who was the pitcher as Moreland had dreamed. "I'll never forget that game," laughed Moreland. "Everything came out exactly as I had dreamed. Smith cracked the pill for a single and Donovan sacrificed. Smith scored when Stencil crashed a single."

"Jake Beckley, always good at fouling them off, lost the ball over the stand and I threw one of the lead balls into the umpire. It was encased in its separate box and cover, so nobody suspected anything."

"Several of the balls were used before the battle was over. They were like punk. It was all but impossible to drive them past the infield. The infielders of both sides certainly were kept busy on assists."

"Under the conditions nobody could get a run and the game ended with Pittsburgh victor, 1 to 0. Everybody was howling about the balls, but they looked all right. Covers were on and the seal unbroken."

"It wasn't till long afterward that my secret came out and then a rule was passed making such a proceeding impossible in the future. Some dream, I claim."

Germans Wipe Out All But Few of New Jersey Regiment in Last Days

Passaic, N. J., Nov. 26.—Details of the desperate fighting in the Argonne in the closing days of the war were contained in a letter from Lieutenant Gover P. Heinzman, of a New Jersey Regiment.

"Our regiment went into battle October 12," Heinzman wrote, "and only a few of us are left to tell the tale. French soldiers tell us it was the worst slaughter of the war."

"Twice I stopped to bandage wounded men and both times the Boches shot them again, killing one who was lying across my lap. On another occasion a wounded man was carrying another who was more seriously wounded when a German sniper killed them both."

Palmyra, Nov. 25.—Slowly strangling to death as the result of a piece of meat lodging in his throat while partaking of his noonday meal, Harry Killinger, of this place, was rushed by automobile a distance of nine miles to the Lebanon Hospital. There the meat was dislodged and Killinger's life saved by the narrowest margin.

It was disclosed that Killinger having no teeth, had sought to swallow the piece of meat in an unmasicated condition.

Some have meat and cannot eat; Some want meat, but lack it. We can eat, and we have meat. But often we have to hack it.

Bowie, Md., Nov. 25.—Bowie's Red Cross day raised just $4,653 for the greatest of the charities. This sum represented the total admissions, just 2,890 men and 300 women, employees included, paying to witness the running of a clever program. No one was allowed to enter the grounds raised through the generosity of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association eclipsed that obtained on Red Cross day at any of the New York tracks.

"I'm sure I've tried 'ard to make it 'omelike, ma'am," was the reply of an Englishman when asked for an Englishman who had been in the States did not try to keep her husband from the public bars by making the home attractive. "I've took up the parlor carpet and sprinkled sawdust on the floor, and put a beer barrel in the corner. But, lor, ma'am, it ain't made a bit of difference."

The Hershey Olive basketball team would like to arrange games for the winter with any first class amateur five. They are willing to play at home or away from home. It is requested that all communications be addressed to Russel Zentmeyer, care of Hershey Men's Club, Hershey, Pa. On Friday night the Hershey five will play the cage team of the Lebanon Independents.

The St. Mary's Catholic Club of a Steelton, champions of Dauphin county, are without a game for Thanksgiving day. Address communications to Bell phone 104-W, or Dial phone, 9616.

It seems a shame that the champs of the county should go gameless on Thursday.

It takes these old judges to hand out a wallop, meanwhile looking sufficient as a crutch. The Youth Companion tells of a long-winded lawyer who finally apologized: "I hope, your honor, I am not unduly trespassing upon the time of the court."

"My friend," observed the Judge, "there is considerable difference between trespassing on time and encroaching on eternity."

St. Louis, Nov. 25.—Phil DeC. Ball, president of the St. Louis American League Baseball Club, said to-day that he has not indorsed the plan of Harry Hempstead, of the New York Nationals, and Harry Frazee, of the Boston Americans, to have former President W. H. Taft serve as "a one-man national commission
