A few days ago I received a letter from a man in Washington whose wife has purchased a suit and hat in my shop, in which he thanked me for the service I had rendered her. This gentleman has never seen my store, but he certainly was impressed by what his wife told him of the courteous and helpful attention that is shown to every customer.

Doubtless you take considerable interest in your wife's apparel, but perhaps you have neither the time nor inclination to help her in her selections. In that case you need have no hesitancy in recommending her to my shop. You can enjoy perfect confidence that she will receive . expert service and assistance in choosing suitable attire, and you will be pleased when the "bills come in."
