PIETRO POPULAR IN HARRISBURG

Noted Accordionist Is Given Big Reception at the Majestic

The bill at the Majestic the latter part of the week includes some old favorites who always meet with a hearty reception in Harrisburg. Among these are Pietro, the popular piano accordionist; Agnes Burr and Johnny Keenan in "Some Baby," and Colonel Diamond and his grand daughter.

Pietro was received last night with the customary ovation which Harrisburgers give him. He was in his usual excellent form, displaying remarkable technique, and playing popular, as well as classical selections. He received encore after encore, before he could satisfy the large audiences. The Majestic management aware of his popularity in the city, arranged to have him appear at the theater all week.

Colonel Diamond, 82 years young, and his granddaughter, give some very artistic dancing. Dances of the past and present day are shown by the octogenarian among them the gavotte, the hesitation, the one-step and the cake walk. The Colonel's partner possesses an abundance of grace and ease. She dances as an artist and has very good talent.

Other offerings were Wallace and Hollingsworth, with their new songs and dialog. This pair takes one back to the days of the good old times of our grandparents in their original comedian style. "Georgia" seemed to be the song which met with most approval by the audience. Piccard Brothers, comedians and artists present some clever, skilful and really remarkable feats, interspersed with plenty of good humor.

"WETS" CANNOT RUN ASSEMBLY

Antisaloon League Man Gives Notice That Water Wagon May Run Over Them

The Rev. B. L. Scott, superintendent of the Pittsburgh district of the Pennsylvania Antisaloon League, thinks it futile for the "wet" members of the Pennsylvania Legislature to attempt to prevent the ratification of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution. He says Pennsylvania will be "dry" whether or not the Legislature ratifies for more than 36 states will approve the measure. Those legislators who try to block action at Harrisburg, he says, will go to defeat in 1920 if they attempt to regain their seats.

Mr. Scott's statement in part follows: "In the last few weeks we have been interrogated many times as to whether or not the Pennsylvania Legislature, which is to meet the first Tuesday in January, 1919, would do on the question of ratifying the constitutional prohibition amendment. After a careful and thoughtful investigation, which covers the entire state, we are saying that, in the interest of the state, the next Legislature will ratify the amendment."

One of the most important reasons for this conviction lies in the stand that the governor-elect has taken in openly saying that he cannot support a candidate for governor and present day are shown by the octogenarian among them the gavotte, the hesitation, the one-step and the cake walk. The Colonel's partner possesses an abundance of grace and ease. She dances as an artist and has very good talent.

TO GIVE BALL AND VAUDEVILLE

Moorhead Employs Plan Big Program For Charitable Cause

A chorus of fifty female voices, a salesman's chorus of forty voices, the Pennsylvania Concert Quartet, a saxophone quartet and a number of other local features will be the principal numbers on the program of a grand ball, concert and entertainment to be given by the employees of the Moorhead Knitting Company for the benefit of the Associated Aids Societies of Harrisburg Friday evening, January 3. The big event will be held in the Chestnut Street Auditorium.

The Moorhead chorus, composed of employees of the Moorhead Knitting Company, will be trained by Mrs. Florence Ackley Ley, former prima donna with the Joseph Howard Musical Comedy Company and now soloist in the Messiah Lutheran Church. She will be assisted by her husband, Elmer H. Ley, bass soloist in the Pine Street Presbyterian Church in the training of the singers.

A feature of the evening will be the singing of the salesman's chorus, a male aggregation of forty voices. Stuart Black, pianist of the Kiwanis Club will play and the Pennsylvania Concert Quartet will sing. The Municipal Band will play for dancing following the entertainment. About six vaudeville specialties by local talent will be on the program besides several numbers by prominent local musicians. The proceeds of the entertainment will go to the Associated Aid Societies of Harrisburg for the purpose of caring for the needs of the city's poor. Officials of the organization have stated that funds are imperatively necessary for the carrying on of Associated Aid work. The concert to be given is the direct outcome of the plea for funds and it is expected that a large sum will be turned over to the city's unfortunate poor as the result.
