Cash in Your Cheers of November 11th

This store, as well as others, closed their doors on November eleventh to celebrate the signing of the armistice. Such a celebration has never before been seen in Harrisburg and perhaps never will again, except when the boys come back from "Over There."

You now have the opportunity to show whether your cheers were backed up by the sincerity of true patriotism. If so, you will back up the great army of Red Cross workers with a membership dollar. This great army, as angels of mercy on the battlefields of Europe and as patient workers in the local chapters, deserve your hearty support. They still have a great mission to perform, even though the war is over and the probabilities are that this world-wide organization will continue to do more effective work in future years than was ever deemed possible before this war began.

So, join the volunteers this week and take out a membership for every member of your family. Include this among your Christmas gifts.

Sale of 1200 Pairs P. Centemeri & Co., Finest Imported French Kid Gloves

Tomorrow, Friday and Saturday

$1.65 Pair 3 Pair $4.75 6 Pair $9.40

Just one hundred dozen pairs at this price. No more to be had, but we were mighty glad and lucky to get these. It is our allotment out of thousands of dozens because of a mistake in a cablegram to the manufacturer. As a result, two-thirds of the order was made in white and black in place of colors. These are the finest quality French imported kid gloves, without any imperfections, but as good as our best grades. Thrown back on the manufacturer because of an error in color instruction these gloves will be quickly disposed of just before Christmas, when every body wants them for gifts.

Mostly white, some black and a few in colors. The same glove in any store will cost you a great deal more money. An unusual opportunity to secure exceptional values in gloves at these prices—$1.65 pair—three pairs $4.75—six pairs, $9.40.

Bowman's Annex

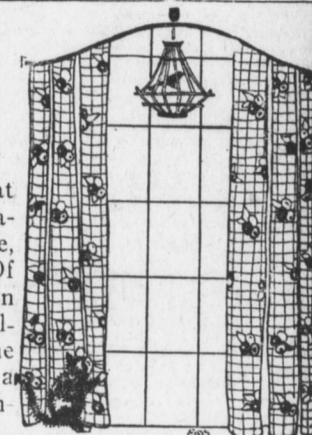

Gilbert Building

Opposite the Court House

If you cannot find what you want on the six large floors of this store, suppose you try the Bowman Annex. There you will find the closing-out sale of Henry Gilbert & Son's high-grade stock of holiday novelties. And bear in mind, these novelties were purchased long before the war; consequently, of the highest grade workmanship and material, minus the high war prices that became effective on similar merchandise later. Prices are especially low. Also a complete line of Toys sold there.

Drapery Department

Curtains are gifts that are both useful and ornamental, and, therefore, doubly welcome. Of course, you can rely upon their quality and desirability, for we sell only the most select qualities as a protection to our customers.

Cedar Chests, some with trays; brass trimmed and plain, $12.00 to $32.00.

Matting Boxes and Cretonne-covered Boxes, $4.50 to $15.

Madras, for draperies and portieres, in rose, blue, brown, gold and green, yd. 85c.

These Oriental Rugs Are Unusual in Value

You know what the war did to the Oriental rug trade. The world's finest rug makers found it difficult to continue business and almost impossible to ship the goods on hand to markets. Much of the stock was destroyed in the war zone.

We have a choice lot of Shirvan and Mossul Rugs that arrived in this country via the Mediterranean sea, after a stormy passage of many months.

The Shirvan Rugs average in size 3x5 feet, priced at $25 each.

The Mossul Rugs average in size 4x6 feet, priced from $50.00 to $60 each.

Rich in design, these Rugs would be eagerly prized if received as a Christmas gift.

BOWMAN'S—Fourth Floor.

One Hundred and Fifty Pieces of Fine Ivory

The collection contains mirrors, brushes, combs, puff boxes, hair receivers, picture frames, hat and clothes brushes, cream and salve jars, trays, pin cushions, perfume bottles and holders, nail files, nail buffers, rouge boxes, button hooks, cuticle knives, jewel holders, candlesticks, hat-pin holders, clocks, shoe horns, soap boxes and various other articles. Good suggestions for your Christmas gifts, 25c to $1.50.
