

Hun Ships' Surrender Pays All, Says Premier London. — Articles by Premier Lloyd George, Sir Eric Golden, the First Lord of the Admiralty, and Lord Pirrie, the controller general of merchant shipbuilding, are printed in the current number of an educational journal devoted almost entirely to matters connected with the navy and the merchant marine. Mr. Lloyd George in his article, referring to the surrender of the German fleet, says it was a significant event because it symbolizes a fitting tribute the absolute triumph of the Allied cause.

"It was our day, the supreme hour in Great Britain's history, the justification of all the sacrifices and sufferings of the last four years," the Premier writes. "The German fleet was beaten because the hearts of the men who manned it were not steered by the consciousness of a righteous cause."

Sir Eric Geddes, describing the influence of the navy on the course of the war, says when last March the Germans made an overwhelming attack on the British line it was the navy that enabled Great Britain to repair her losses, so within a few weeks the front was at least as strong in men and material as before.

Lord Pirrie deals mainly with the British mercantile marine and the output of shipping, showing how Germany tried to catch up with Britain in colonial and commercial development and, he adds, found it impossible.

CANADIAN MECHANICS
 Ottawa, Ontario—Shortly after the start of the war a number of Canadian mechanics went over to England for the purpose of working in government shops. The Minister of Labor announces that these men will be given free transportation back to Canada, as will also the wives and children of the men whose families joined them in England and Scotland.
