Little Talks by Beatrice Fairfax

No, I am not going to give their letters; they reflect too unlovely a picture of human nature.

No, I am not going to give their letters; they reflect too unlovely a picture of human nature. We'll agree they are young, don't know their minds have made a mistake—these wicked daughters of Eve. We'll be generous, and let it go at that, for while the boys "Over There" may not be so bright, yet you've no well rid of girls who have not sufficient character to remain true to a promise. I am speaking of the innocent, the innocent who wrote us letters saying they "allowed themselves to become engaged to a soldier, or a sailor, and now that he has gone they had themselves in love with some other fellow."

Preparing to Feed Quail in Perry During Winter

Newport, Pa., Dec. 15.—That the limited supply of quail in Perry county may be best cared for, S. Maurice Shuler, of Liverpool, has issued a circular asking that information be given as to the location of different coveys that he may make arrangements for their feeding this winter. He says: "Every true sportsman knows the value of quail. The past winter was a very severe one on game of all kinds, especially quail. I would appreciate it very much if the persons or persons who know where there are any quail would notify me at once, and I will make arrangements for winter feeding. I would be willing to trap quail in such places where we could find some person who would be willing to care for them during the winter months. Write me at once if you know where any quail are located."
