The coal situation in Harrisburg depends entirely upon the weather, Paul Johnston, acting fuel administrator, said to-day. The pregent mild weather has conserved the city's fuel resources, but snappy winter weather would quickly exhaust the supply of prepared anthracite.

With seasonable weather, the supply of coal now in dealers' yards would last only two weeks, Mr. Johnston said. Therefore he urged that all those presons who have not se-

Board May Issue Bonds to Get Itself Out of Present Trouble

Taxpayers of the city declared to-day that in order to complete either the original high school program as outlined and approved in 1916, or the one approved in 1916, or the one just proposed in the latest report of Drs. J. *H. Vansickle and Henry Snyder, the school board will be compelled to use large sums of money either from direct taxation or from an additional bond issue.

Of the $1,250,000, authorized to be spent to complete the program of 1916, $663,000 has been expended for the Edison school and the addition to the Camp Curtin building, while about $100,000 more will be needed to take over the buildings adjoining Technical High school, leaving about $490,000, and less, than one-half of the work completed.

In Need of Money

Robert A. Enders, president of the city school board, said he was in favor of the co-educational plan as outlined in the latest report, including the remodeling of Technical High school and the erection of an adotton so that it can be used for a co-educational junior school, and the erection of a new senior boys and ection of a new senior boys' and rls' high school.

This amount, together with the $490,000 of the $1.250,000 loan, would make a total of $896,000 for the work.

The report of the two school experts will be submitted at the board meeting to-merrow and may be discussed, but it is not believed it will be acted upon.
