

Secret of Jack Dempsey's Success Is Short, Hard, Put-to-Sleep Punch

Since Jack Dempsey began punching on heavyweight aspirants, the manner in which he does it has been a source of discussion by the sports of the game. On the subject of those who gained fame as wallflowers in the days gone by Otto Florio, the well-known Denver writer, talks interestingly.

Dempsey's quick knockout of Battling Levinsky is what started the veteran Florio on his reminiscences. It wasn't so much the quickness with which Dempsey turned the trick, but the short route the blow traveled to put the clever Hebrew out of the way. All great fighters, Florio says, employed the same punch as does Dempsey to-day.

"It seems when a fighter has a kick behind his jolt it need travel only a few inches to deliver the goods," says Florio. "We could glance back and call to mind many fighters of the past who were proficient in producing this short circuit."

"To my mind Peter Maher could deliver a blow with more power behind it than any other man who ever won the gloves. I have seen Peter knock out opponents when his fist seemed to travel but a fraction of an inch. It was more like a twist of the wrist. I recall his bout with Nick Burley and Tom Johnson in the old Grand Opera House in Mission street, San Francisco. Peter kayoed both these tough babies in half a round, and it seemed as though his fist went round a distance of an inch, yet the terrific jolt it contained stretched both men prone on the roiled canvass, apparently lifeless. I saw him with the same punch knock Al the front tooth out of Ike's mouth, and sending him headlong under the ropes of the stage. I have always maintained that to be the hardest blow I ever saw struck by any fighter living or dead."

"I saw Maher in New Orleans hit Fitzsimmons with the same short punch and knock him over the top rope as cold as any fighter ever was. Joe Chynowski reached over, pulled the belt cord and then jumped into the ring and carried Fitz to his corner, while Al the front tooth pulled out of Fitz's glove and pushed the blade of a penknife under his thumb to bring him back to consciousness again. It took the whole minute's work between the two rounds to push Fitz out of his chair toward Maher again. If Peter Maher had possessed Jack Dempsey's heart he would have been the greatest heavyweight champion of the ring ever known."

"Then there was Fitz, another great champion and with a champion's punch. You who ever watched him battle recall that famous 'shift,' which proved the undoing of so many of his opponents. Many thought Fitz employed any sort of swinging blow to make his connection. True he varied its delivery. When in close he would shift and then uppercot an opponent and when at arm's length he would let it go with a sort of stiff arm movement in which he threw his whole body in rigid fashion after the punch. But it always spelled curtains when it landed on the duck for which Ruby Rober headed it."

"Joe Gang, a past master and the Ole Marster" as he was deservedly called, knew the value of a punch that did not spend its force while traveling. All his great battles were won by this same short jolt, which seemed to be of sufficient vigor against all opponents, excepting Battling Nelson. The Durable Dane could always assimilate an overdose of punishment.

"Stanley Ketchel, another great puncher, always sent his right hand across straight, while his left, when in a sort of semicircle fashion to deposit the object it came in contact with on the floor. Believe us, this same S. Ketchel could send them home labeled 'tohuson,' and what a heart he possessed along with his other great fighting qualifications. He was truly gameless personified."

"Kid McCoy was another of our topnotchers that could jolt you to the very marrow with his rail-like

Huge Boxes Ready For Red Cross Shipments

There is a certain corner in Red Cross workrooms to-day that looks like a front-line trench or a pile of fortifications around some famous cathedral in the theater of war. Huge stacks of packing boxes are piled up to the ceiling of the room and even the Home Service Station offices have had to shrink a wee bit to make room for this immense pile.

The cases were made by boys at the Technical High School. They will be used to ship Red Cross work to headquarters and these overseas. The aim of the Tech boys is to make 250 boxes. Every day a long procession of them march into the workrooms with several of the packing cases. "Sure an we want to help the Red Cross, too!" they declare.

New Jersey sportsmen to the number of 1,200 have organized the New Jersey Fish and Game Conservation League. The league is pledged to the protection and conservation of fish and game, the forests and waters of New Jersey. The organization has begun work in a business-like way by appointing a supervisor in every county. Through these leaders the clubs and individuals will be interested in the true work of conservation.

Now Shoot on Sunday

The Spokane (Wash.) City Council has revoked its order prohibiting trapshooting on Sundays at Glover Field and every Sunday now the Spokane Gun Clubs entertain at the traps. The Sunday shooting was stopped last spring because of objection by a nearby church. This objection has been withdrawn.

Sixty-seven deer were killed on the two deer hunting days in Vermont in November. Vermont is thought favorably of by sportsmen who desire good fishing and hunting for nearly 2,000 licenses were issued this fall.

Chamber of Commerce May Hold Its Annual Meeting New Year's Day

It is likely that the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce will be fully organized to begin the New Year in spite of the delay in arranging the annual meeting. It was said this morning. President, vice-presidents, secretary, treasurer, and Board of Directors will be elected by January 1, it is thought.

The board of five directors will be elected at an informal meeting to be held in the Board of Trade Hall next Friday evening. The meeting will be a smoker, held for the purpose of electing directors. The annual meeting, at which a speaker of national prominence will speak, will be held later in the Penn-Harris hotel.

The directors will hold a meeting soon after they are elected, and elect a president, two vice-presidents, secretary, and treasurer, for the ensuing year. The president then will appoint the various committees for next year, so that the chamber will be ready to begin the new year with a complete organization.

The board of directors will be elected from ten nominees, who are: E. R. Eckhardt, Robert H. Irons, William Jennings, Simon Micholitz, John C. Mitter, John S. Musser, Frank A. Robbins, Jr., E. M. Singer, E. J. Stackpole, and A. K. Thomas.

The present board of directors is composed of Arthur D. Bacon, Robert McCormick, Andrew S. Patterson, A. Carson Stamm, and E. Z. Wallower.

WRITES A BOOK ON TRAPSHOOTING

David H. Eaton Produces the First Volume of the Kind, Assures Peter P. Carney

"Trapshooting" the Patriotic Sport," is the title of a book just off the presses of the Sportsman's Review Company and written by David H. Eaton, of Cincinnati, Ohio. This is the first book published about trapshooting. Consequently there is a lot in the book to interest those who have been shooting at the traps or in the field. While the book is not as complete as Mr. Eaton wished it, it is as good as he could turn out with the material he was able to gather. It fills a long-felt want in trapdom.

Eaton delves into the manufacture of the various kinds of traps and balls, includes some sketches of past-time shooters, and brings the book and the sport down to the present time.

This book should pave the way for many interesting pamphlets on this fascinating sport.

More Trapshooting Schools

The success of the trapshooting school on the Million Dollar Pier, Atlantic City, N. J., may prompt the Interstate Trapshooting Association to open other trapshooting schools in different sections of the United States and Canada.

Thousands of cohorts have been made to trapshooting at the Atlantic City school, and the belief is that with schools at the leading seaside and mountain resorts thousands of new trapshooters would be made each year.

Twelfth Pinchurst Shoot

Pinchurst (N. C.) is now preparing for the twelfth annual midwinter trapshooting tournament. This tournament will be held at the famous southern resort the week of January 20. The Pinchurst tournament is the pioneer of resort trapshooting events and always attracts hundreds of shooters. It is the opening event of the registered target season. The 1919 trapshooting affair at Pinchurst will be bigger in every way than the tournaments that have preceded it.

Up to the Leaders

Trapshooting was the last sport to be hit by the war—and it got a lot of severe knocks a month or so before the armistice was signed. Conditions are now righting themselves, and if the management of the Interstate Trapshooting Association doesn't lose too much time in getting out its plans for 1919 the year we are coming to should be one of the best trapshooting years ever had. The future of trapshooting is in the making.

AROUND THE BASES

All baseball patrons had a sad heart today when they learned that Francis ("Slick") O'Laughlin, veteran American League umpire, was at the point of death in Boston from influenza. Physicians have given him up, and last rites of the church have been administered. O'Laughlin was the most individual umpire ever seen on the diamond. He gave his decisions in loud, clear, distinct voice with peculiar inflection that made a great hit. He ranked high in his profession.

Captain Harry McCormick, famed as a giant pinch-hitter of a few seasons ago, who went through a year of fighting in France, suffered from shell shock and was sent back to this country and detailed as an instructor in a training camp in California, is in New York again.

Captain McCormick, who, by the way, earned his promotion from the rank of lieutenant by his excellent work on the battlefield, will be mustered out of the service within the next week or so.

He says he has no intention of returning to baseball, and adds: "You can't fool the people all the time."

You can't always tell an umbrella by the cover. They say Mr. Glass, new Secretary of the Treasury, is a strict prohibitionist.

Johnstown, Pa., Dec. 20.—Attorney Clayton C. Townes, of Cleveland; Tom Nokes, of Johnstown; and members of the semiprofessional division of the National Baseball Federation, the national governing body of the country, met in Pittsburgh this afternoon to discuss plans for the new year. The return of thousands of players from the Army promises to bring about a wonderful sandlot baseball season next year. The annual meeting of the National Baseball Federation is to be held at the Hollenden Hotel in Cleveland, on Saturday, January 18.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 20.—"Jack" Barry, former manager of the world's champion Boston American League Baseball Club, was honorably discharged yesterday from the Officers' Material School at Harvard. He still is on the Red Sox roster, and said he expected to play for them next season.

VICE-PRESIDENT AT CARLISLE

Speaks at Chamber of Commerce Banquet in Metzgar Hall This Evening

Carlisle, Pa., Dec. 20.—This evening the banquet of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce will be held in Metzgar Hall and about 450 people will be present. The distinguished speaker will be Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall. Delegations will be present from the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce and from Mechanicsburg, Newville, Shippensburg and Chambersburg. The banquet will begin at 8 o'clock.

Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall will arrive at Harrisburg at 6.40 o'clock this evening and will be met there by a committee of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce. A. F. Bedford, Walter Stuart and Merckel Landis, they will be brought from Harrisburg to Carlisle by automobile.

Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall will remain in Carlisle over night as guests of Dr. Lee and will return to Harrisburg by automobile, going to Harrisburg about 10.30 o'clock.

Britons to Demand Damages in Mexico

Monterrey, Mexico. — Claims for losses and damages to British-owned property in Mexico by revolutionists and bandits are to be presented to the Mexican government as soon as the lists of such claims are completed by British consular representatives in this country.

British subjects in Mexico who have suffered property losses at the hands of the turbulent element have recently received questionnaires and blanks which they are requested to fill out and file as soon as possible with the representatives of the British government.

The heaviest claim will be that of the Mexico Northwestern Railroad Company, owned by Britishers, which was attacked there and again, and much of its track and rolling stock destroyed by different revolutionary factions. The same interests also own large lumber mills at Matamoros and Pearson, in the State of Tamaulipas. The Mexico Northern Power Company, which is constructing a great hydroelectric plant and dam near Santa Rosalia, also suffered heavily at the hands of the revolutionists. It is reported.

The Mexican (Vera Cruz) Railroad, called the "Queen's Own," is also a British property that will present a bill for losses and damages. Besides these and other corporations there are many individual British subjects who are included in the list of claimants.

DR. RAUNICH SPEAKS BEFORE BIBLE CLASS

Dr. J. M. J. Raunich, city health officer, was the principal speaker at a meeting of the members of the Boyd Memorial Church held last night. He gave first hand information on the ash and garbage collection problem and pointers on the present condition.

WAR BLOCKS THE BIG YACHT RACE

New York Club Will Accept Challenge in 1920, Reply to Sir Thomas Lipton

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 20.—The New York Yacht Club decided at a meeting to-night to decline the challenge of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club for a race for America's cup in 1919, but announced that if the challenge was renewed for 1920 it would be accepted.

In replying to the challenge the following was cabled to Secretary H. L. Garrett, of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, Belfast, Ireland, by G. A. Cornack, secretary of the New York Club.

"The challenges, of which you notified us by cable, for a series of races in September, 1919, reached us yesterday, December 15th. While we fully appreciate its cordial and friendly expressions, we must frankly say to you that the members of the New York Yacht Club are strongly of the opinion that, with peace not yet concluded, with a long list of casualties still to be reported, with returning transports bringing home our wounded, and with conditions unsettled as they are, this is not an appropriate or fitting time for us to arrange for a purely sporting event of such importance as a match for the America's cup. Accordingly it seems best that we suggest to you that the challenge be withdrawn. If at some future date, when there is no question on either side as to the propriety, you wish to challenge with Shamrock IV for a race in 1920, we shall accept the challenge to be decided by one of the boats which we built in 1914 for that purpose.

"We trust you will accept this suggestion in the spirit in which it is given."

Big Night For City Basket Ball Enthusiasts

In the numerous basketball frays last evening an interesting one was that of the girls of Beckley's Business College arrayed against Camp Hill's speedy five at the Hasselt Club court. The score was 14-7 and a generous crowd made the occasion merry with all kinds of applause. Miss Hollenbaugh, with six goals, starred; Beckley's College: Camp Hill Woods, f. Dennison, f. Hollenbaugh, f. Naylor, f. (Lady) McHaffee, c. Kempt, c. Park, s. e. Blup, g. Kitzmiller, g. Wolf, g. (Cooper Landis) Field goals—Hollenbaugh, 6; McHaffee, 1; Naylor, 2; Dennison, 1. ## U. S. Destroyers Sunk U-Boats in Last Fight

New York, Dec. 20.—Three of five German submarines attacking an American transport were sunk in the Mediterranean by American destroyers two days prior to the armistice signing. It was revealed yesterday when officers of the transport, the Black Arrow, arrived here. One of the officers said:

"We were attacked on November 9 off the African coast, near Tangiers, by five submarines, the nearest being five miles distant when first sighted. H. M. S. Britannia, conveying us, came between us and the submarines had been reduced to three-quarters of a mile. "The submarines sank the Britannia, and we made off at top speed, finding G. O. S. for help. American destroyers joined us and gave battle to the submarines, sinking three with depth bombs. The other two escaped. The casualty on the Britannia must have been great."

Baseball Dicker Gives Yankees Three Famous Boston Players

The first of many dickers in big-league baseball was negotiated in New York yesterday when the Yankees procured outfielder George (Duffy) Lewis and pitchers Ernle Shore and Hubert (Dutch) Leonard from the Boston Red Sox in exchange for Pitchers Ray Caldwell and Edward (Slim) Love, Catcher Albert Walters, outfielder Frank Gilhooly and a cash consideration. The check was said to be for $15,000.

"Dutch" Leonard intimated to-day that unless he gets part of the purchase price he will not report to the Yankees.

"If New York had to add some cash," Leonard said, "I want part of the purchase money, and New York will have to pay me a nice fat salary or I will not join the Yankees."

Leonard is in Cleveland with his wife, who is playing at a local theater.

The deal pleased Miller Huggins. Says he: "We got three star players from the Boston club, all of whom have proved over a stretch of years that they rank with the best in the game. With Shore, Fisher, Shewkey, Schneider and Quinn, right handers, and Leonard, Mogridge and Thormahler, left handers, we shall have one of the greatest pitching staffs in baseball. Lewis gives us a kick in our outfield, something we were in sore need of."

Harry Frazee and Ed Barrow also appeared to be pleased with the transaction. "We won the world's championship without the men we traded to New York and got four splendid players from New York," said Barrow. "The Boston club was so many stars in service that we were able to dispose of some of our players. Besides I wanted a fast, young catcher and I have one of the catching stars of baseball in Walters. Love came fast last season and Caldwell still has a lot of ability left. Gilhooly is a good run-getter and a smart young player."
