LONGNAKER TO BE CHIEF OF POLICE

Succeeds Chief Grove, Whose Resignation Takes Effect Next Wednesday

With no other applicant for the position, it is quite certain that H. P. Longnaker will be Steelton's new chief of police. His was the only name brought before the police committee of the borough council, and the committee decided to recommend him to the council at its next meeting, which will be held January 6. There is no doubt of the appointment being made.

Longnaker is at present employed at the local steel plant in the open hearth department. He has had eight years' experience as chief of police in Steelton, having been appointed to the position during a former term of Burgess McIntee. He is a barber by trade and had a barber shop in South Front street, up to the time of his entering the police force. He was sergeant of police for a short time prior to his being appointed chief.

He enters office at this time with the force brought to a high state of efficiency—that is, as high as a force of seven men in a town of over 20,000 can be brought.

Mortally Injured, He Tells of His Fight With Bandits

Philadelphia, Dec. 30.—His head badly battered and his knuckles bleeding from a fight with two hold-up men, one white and the other a negro, Oscar James Dean, of Huntingdon, Pa., staggered into the Twelfth and Pine streets police station about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and told Sergeant Toland he had been held up and robbed of a new watch and his money.

"It was about four squares away. We battled for some time," said the man, and fell unconscious. He was hurried to the Pennsylvania Hospital and died two hours later, without recovering consciousness. From papers and a railroad pass in the pockets of his clothes the police learned that he was a carpenter for the Pennsylvania Railroad. Among the papers was a receipt, which showed that he had purchased a watch here Saturday. He wore a pair of slippers, and the police think that he had stepped from a nearby hotel when he was set upon by the men who killed him. His wife, on being notified of her husband's death, wired from Huntingdon that she and her daughter would arrive here this morning to take charge of the body.
