PENROSE TALKS AGAINST CHANGE

Thinks Constitutional Convention Had Better Be Considered For Two Years Senator Penrose Saturday went upon record as opposed to the holding of a convention to revise the State Constitution, at least during the first two years of Governor Sproul's administration, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

"It is a question if the people of the state want a constitutional convention at this time," remarked Senator Penrose, at least during the first two years of the new Governor's administration. It should be remembered that, due to the great war, abnormal conditions exist everywhere and what is most needed now is peace and quiet and cessation of agitation so that we can go through the process of reconstruction and readjustment which are going to be hard enough at the best.

Another matter in connection with a constitutional convention, continued the Senator, is that it would be bound to cause controversy and division, either in connection with the division, either in connection with the convention itself or the campaign for ratification of the same. The community is so unsettled that it is doubtful if the vital questions involved could be passed upon in a sane manner. It is interesting to note that most state constitutions have failed to be ratified in recent years, particularly that of New York, where some of the greatest men in public life were members of the convention and yet the constitution they produced was a wonderful disappointment in its style and contents and it was repudiated by the people.

In commenting upon the charter revisions situation regarding the curtailment of the powers of the Mayor, Senator Penrose said: "I don't think there is any wide divergence of views on the details of the proposed reform legislation. I am willing to go along with the best thought of the majority. However, the concentration of power in the hands of a Mayor has proved a failure and a source of corruption. The legislation was copied after the system made famous in Brooklyn under Seth Low, but the theory has passed among modern students of municipal questions. I only want results that will take the police out of politics, stop assessments of officeholders and rescue the city from contractor government."

State Officials to Get Passes in New Jersey After a conference with the Governor, Secretary of State Martin, of New Jersey announced that he would issue certificates entitling certain state officials to ride on railroad cars in that state, despite the federal railroad administration's recent order cutting off passes. It will then be necessary for the railroads to pay the fares of passengers to the railroad administration.

Railroad Notes Two new zone modification orders, permitting the further shipment of bituminous coal from parts of West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania into sections of Maryland, New England and the District of Columbia, have been made public. One order permits the all-rail shipment of bituminous coal on the Baltimore and Ohio, the Western Maryland, and the Coal and Coke railroad, in West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, to all points in New England. The other order provides for the shipment of bituminous coal from all districts of Pennsylvania

NEWS OF THE RAILROADS QUILTS AFTER 54 YEARS' SERVICE

W. A. Patton, Assistant to Pennsy President, Quits - on December 31

As the new year enters, the career of one of the most prominent figures in railroad circles in the country will end with the retirement of William A. Patton from active service of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

For nearly fifty-four years, during which he rose from messenger to assistant to the president of the railroad, Mr. Patton has served with the fidelity and wisdom that has placed his name among those of the foremost railroad executives in the East.

Mr. Patton has worked with zeal for the success of the Young Men's Christian Association, in the affairs of which he has played a prominent part. He is a prominent churchman active in the educational life of Philadelphia and active in the historical organizations of the state. He also has been identified with the agricultural and commercial development of the Maryland and Virginia peninsula, as well as the advancement of Norfolk, Va., as a seaport and railroad center.

Mr. Patton's home is at Radnor. He is a member of the Radnor Hunt Club, St. David's Golf Club, Merion Club, Cricket Club, Union League, Franklin Institute, the Pennsylvania Scotch-Irish Society, the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.
